

Name of Supreme Being.

JHVH is the Hebrew name of the Supreme Being, erroneously written and pronounced Jehovah; see p. 163, l. 36. The true pronunciation of JHVH is Yahway, or Jahveh, the initial j=y, as in Hallelujah, and the e as in English there, where. The first h in JHVH should be sounded as an aspirate. The accent is on the final syllable. Compare Introductory Remarks, p. vii, l. 12, and p. viii, l. 38b.

Italics.

Italics (e. g. p. 2, 1. 30) are used for the titles of the Psalms (including historical and musical notices) as well as for Selah (see p. 165, 1. 8) and other liturgical formulas (see p. 166, 1. 28); also for the doxological subscriptions at the close of the first four books (Pss. 41, 13; 72, 18; 89, 52; 106, 48). None of these words or phrases printed in Italics formed a part of the original text of the Psalms to which they are attached.

Spaced Type.

Spaced type is used for the refrains which we find in some salms (for instance, Psalm 8, verses 1 and 9).

Hebrew Characters in Margin.

The Hebrew characters in the margin of certain Psalms (for instance Psalm 119) indicate the acrostic letters of the Hebrew original.

Compare p. 163, ll. 21-31.

Footnotes.

Introductory Remarks

TE present rendering of the Old Testament is not a revision of the Authorized Version, but a New Translation from the Hebrew, in modern English. The aim has been to render the sense of the original as faithfully as possible rather than to sacrifice that 5 sense in order to give a literal translation.

This new Translation appeals to all interested in the Bible. The Explanatory Notes are free from technical details which have no interest for the average reader. We had no desire (as the translators of the Authorized Version say in their Preface) 10 to weary the unlearned, who need not know so much; and trouble the learned, who know it already. The reader may rest assured, however, that all variations from the Authorized Version in the present Translation are the results of the ripest Biblical scholarship of the present generation both in Europe and in America. The translation is based throughout on the new critical edition of the 15 Hebrew text of the Old Testament, published under the auspices of the Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore.

Departures from the Received Text are indicated by special marks, whereby the reader can see at a glance whether a variation is based on parallel passages, or on the authority of the Ancient Versions, or is merely a conjectural emenda-20 tion, &c. These critical marks are, designedly, so unobtrusive as not to interfere with the comfort of the ordinary reader; they are mainly intended for the benefit of those who are interested in the details of textual criticism.

Explanation of Critical Marks.

- $(1) \leftrightarrow (i.e. \ V=Versions)$ indicate a reading adopted on the authority of 25 the Ancient Versions (Septuagint, Targums, Peshita, Vulgate, &c., in reference to which the reader may consult the Preface to the Authorized Version, also the List of Abbreviations below, p. ix, under LXX, Pesh., Targ., Vulg.).
 - (2) \Leftrightarrow (i. e. c = conjecture) indicate Conjectural Emendations.
- (3) \odot (i. e.), the first letter of the Hebrew word niqqid 'punctua- 30 tion') indicate changes involving merely a different division of the consonantal text, or a departure from the vowel-points which the so-called Masorites added to the original consonantal text in the eighth and ninth centuries Δ , D.
- (4) $\circ \circ (i.\ c.\ Q = Q \check{e} r \hat{e})$ indicate that the marginal reading (Heb. $Q \check{e} r \hat{e}$ 'what is to be read') has been adopted instead of the $K \check{e} t h i b$ 'what is written.'

- (5) indicate changes introduced by reason of Parallel Passages.
- (6)  indicate Doubtful Words or Passages.
- (7) · · indicate deviations from the Received (or Masoretic) Text, suggested by the Versions as well as by Parallel Passages.
- (8) \leftrightarrow indicate departures from the Masoretic reading of the consonantal text, which are supported by the Ancient Versions.
 - (9) In cases where critical marks occur without any letters or words between them (<>, o, &c.), Omissions are indicated, based on the Versions or on Conjectural Emendations, &c.
- (10) + indicate words implied, but not expressed, in the Hebrew. These marks, therefore, take the place of italics in the Authorized Version.
 - (11) [] indicate Transposed Passages, the traditional position of the words in the Received Text being marked by [], while the transposed words are enclosed in []; see e. g. Ps. 35, 7.
- 15 (12) | indicates transposition of the Masoretic ":" which marks the end of a verse in the Hebrew Text.
 - (13) . . . indicate Corrupt and Unintelligible Passages.
 - (14) * * * * indicate Lacunæ in the Hebrew Text.

Explanation of Colors.

Older incorporated documents or later sections in Biblical Books of a composite character are printed on backgrounds of different colors. The explanation of the colors employed in the Books of Isaiah and of Judges is given on p. 132 of the Notes on Isaiah and on p. 46 of the Notes on Judges, respectively.

Footnotes.

Marginal Sigures.

In the Explanatory Notes the figures in the margin on the right refer to 30 the chapters and verses commented on; the figures in the margin on the left merely number the lines. On those pages, however, where there are no references to chapters and verses in the margin the line-numbers are placed in the outer margin. In the Translation the lines are always numbered in the inner margin, while the traditional numbers of the chapters and verses are 35 placed in the outer margin.

Heavy-faced Alumerals.

Heavy-faced numerals are used instead of Roman letters to distinguish the number of the chapter from the number of the verse; c. g. Ps. 88, 8 = Psalm lxxxviii, verse 8; but Pss. 88.89 = Psalm lxxxviii and Psalm lxxxix.

References to Biblical (Passages.

References to Biblical passages follow, throughout, the Authorized Version, not the Hebrew Text. It is well known that the division of the chapters is occasionally not the same in the Hebrew and in the English Bibles; and that the title of a Psalm, where it consists of more than two words, is usually 45 reckoned in Hebrew as the first verse.

Untransfated Hebrem Words.

A few Hebrew words have been left untranslated, viz. ben, the Hebrew word for son (e. g. Isaiah ben-Amoz = Isaiah, the son of Amoz); Sheol (Heb. she'ol), the abode of departed spirits, the habitation of the dead (Greek Hades); Asheráh, the sacred post or pole, the wooden symbol of a goddess, beside an 5 altar (see Notes on Judges, p. 57, l. 32; p. 69, l. 22); Negeb, the steppe-like region in the South of Palestine (see Notes on Judges, p. 49, l. 8); Arabah, the great geologic depression extending from the Dead Sea to the eastern gulf of the Red Sea (see Notes on Judges, p. 64, l. 39; cf. Notes on Isaiah, p. 159, l. 14); Selah at the end of certain stanzas in the Psalms (see Notes on 10 the Psalms, p. 165, l. 8); Salan, in Hebrew = adversary, accuser (see Notes on Ps. 109, 6); Hallelujah (Ps. 104, 35 &c.) = Praise ye Jah (a shorter form of Juvii); Sabaoth (cf. Jas. 5, 4; Rom. 9, 29 = ls. 1, 9) in the name Jiviii Sabaoth, Juvii of the Hosts, i. e. the God of the armies of Israel (1 Sam. 17, 45; cf. Pss. 44, 9; 60, 10 = 108, 11). For Juvii, see below, List of Abbreviations, p. viii.

Transsiteration of Oriental Mames.

All Biblical names are given in the form used in the Authorized Version. In the transliteration of other Hebrew words, or of modern Oriental (Arabic) names, the vowels have their Italian sounds: \hat{a} is like the a in far or father; i is the i in marine; and $\hat{u} = oo$ in cool; $\hat{e} = a$ in name; short i = i in pin; 20 &c. (e. g. Tel- $Ab\hat{u}$ - $Qud\hat{e}s = Tel$ -Aboo-Koodace). As to the consonants, j and j are pronounced as in English; q has about the same sound as English e in cool (not as e in e in Spelling.

English readers who object to the 'American' spelling, honor, &c., may be referred to Henry Sweet's New English Grammar (Oxford, Clarendon Press, 1892), p. xi and ½ 1710, &c., or to Dr. Murray's remarks on the spelling of all in the New English Dictionary on Historical Principles (Oxford, Clarendon Press).

Abbreviations.

The following List includes a large number of abbreviations which would not require explanation if the present Translation were for the exclusive use of American or English readers.

&c. stands for And others, or, and so forth (Lat. et cæleri, cæleræ, cælera, respectively).

1, 2, 3, &c., before the name of a Biblical book, stands for First Book, Second Book, Third Book, &c., respectively: 1 Kings is the First Book of Kings; 2 Sam. = the Second Book of Samuel; 3 Psalms = the Third Book of Psalms. 4 Isaiah = the fourth part of the Book of Isaiah in the present 40 Translation, &c.

², or ³, &c., after the title of a book (e. g. Notes on Isaiah, p. 157, l. 19), stands for second or third editions, respectively.— For D², E², &c., see D. E, 45 &c.

a stands for first part (or first line) of a verse. Subdivisions of parts of verses are indicated by , respectively; e. g. 2, 14^{a8} (Judges, p. 54, l. 36) refers to the second clause (8) of the first part (a) of the verse (and delivered them to spoilers who despoiled 5 them). The first clause of the second half of the verse (and he sold them into the power of their enemies on all sides) would be v. 14^{ba}.

Ertracts from the Preface of the Authorized Wersion.

In conclusion, no words of ours can so befittingly, or so eloquently, set 40 forth the motives which have guided us, or so amply justify our Translation, as the following extracts from the Preface to the Authorized Version of 1611; three hundred years have not veiled their truth, and they encourage us to-day in tones as commanding as when the pious translators first uttered them:—

"Things of this quality have ever been subject to the censures of illmeaning 45 and discontented persons. For was there ever any thing projected, that savored any way of newness or renewing, but the same endured many a storm of gain-saying or opposition? In some Commonweals it was made a capital crime, once to motion the making of a new law for the abrogating of an old, though the same were most pernicious. As oft as we do any thing of note or consequence, 50 we subject ourselves to every one's censure. So hard a thing is it to please all, even when we please God best, and do seek to approve ourselves to every one's conscience. Whosoever attempteth any thing for the public (specially if it pertain to religion, and to the opening and clearing of the word of God) the same setteth himself upon a stage to be glouted upon by every evil eye; yea, he casteth himself headlong upon pikes, to be gored by every sharp tongue. 5 For he that meddleth with men's religion in any part meddleth with their custom, nay, with their freehold; and though they find no content in that which they have, yet they cannot abide to hear of altering.

But now what piety without truth? What truth, what saving truth, without the word of God? What word of God, whereof we may be sure, without the Scripture? The Scriptures we are commanded to search, John 5, 39; Esa. 8, 20. The Scripture is not only an armor, but also a whole armory of weapons, both offensive and defensive; it is a fountain of most pure water springing up unto everlasting life. Happy is the man that delighteth in the Scripture, and thrice happy that meditateth in it day and night.^a

But how shall men meditate in that which they cannot understand? How shall they understand that which is kept close in an unknown tongue? Translation it is that openeth the window, to let in the light; that breaketh the shell, that we may eat the kernel; that putteth aside the curtain, that we may look into the most holy place; that removeth the cover of the well, that we may 20 come by the water. Indeed without translation into the vulgar tongue, the unlearned are but like children at Jacob's well (which was deep)⁸ without a bucket or something to draw with; or as that person mentioned by Esay,⁷ to whom when a sealed book was delivered with this motion: Read this, I pray thee, he was fain to make this answer: I cannot, for it is scaled.

The godly learned were not content to have the Scriptures in the language which themselves understood, but also for the behoof and edifying of the unlearned, which hungered and thirsted after righteousness, and had souls to be saved as well as they, they provided translations into the vulgar for their countrymen. So that to have the Scriptures in the mother tongue is not a quaint conceit lately taken up, but has been thought upon, and put in practice of old, even from the first times of the conversion of any nation; no doubt because it was esteemed most profitable to cause faith to grow in men's hearts the sooner, and to make them to be able to say with the words of the Psalm: As we have heard, so we have seen.

Many men's mouths have been open a good while (and yet are not stopped) with speeches about the translation so long in hand, and ask what may be the reason, what the necessity, of the employment. Hath the Church been deceived, say they, all this while? We hoped that we had been in the right way, that we had had the Oracles of God delivered unto us, and that 40 though all the world had cause to be offended, and to complain, yet that we had none. Hath the nurse holden out the breast, and nothing but wind in it? Was their translation good before, Why do they now mend it? Was it not good, Why then was it obtruded to the people? We will answer them briefly with St. Hierome: Do we condemn the ancient? In no case; but after the 45 endeavors of them that were before us, we take the best pains we can in the house of God. Blessed be they, and most honored be their name, that break the ice, and give the onset upon that which helpeth forward to the saving of souls!

Now what can be more available thereto, than to deliver God's book unto 50 God's people in a tongue which they understand? Since of an hidden treasure, and of a fountain that is sealed, there is no profit. As St. Augustine saith:

^a Psalm 1, 2. ^β John 4, 11. ^γ Isaiah 29, 11.12. ^δ Matth. 5, 6. [¢] Psalm 48, 8.

A man had rather be with his dog than with a stranger (whose tongue is strange to him). If we, building upon their foundation that went before us, and being holpen by their labors, do endeavor to make that better which they left so good, no man, we are sure, hath cause to mislike us; they, we persuade ourselves, if they were alive, would thank us. How many books of profane 5 learning have been gone over again and again, by the same translators, by others? Let us bless God from the ground of our heart for working this religious care to have the translations of the Bible maturely considered of and examined. We do not deny that the very meanest translation of the Bible in English containeth the word of God. But to whom ever was it imputed for a 10 fault (by such as were wise) to go over that which he had done, and to amend it where he saw cause? If we will be sons of the truth, we must consider what it speaketh, and trample upon our own credit, yea, and upon other men's too, if either be any way an hindrance to it.

To that purpose there were many chosen, that were greater in other men's 15 eyes than in their own, and that sought the truth rather than their own praise. And in what sort did these assemble? In the trust of their own knowledge, or of their sharpness of wit, or deepness of judgment, as it were in an arm of flesh? At no hand. They trusted in Him that hath the key of David, opening, and no man shutting.^a In this confidence, and with this devotion, did they 20 assemble together; not too many, lest one should trouble another; and yet many, lest many things haply might escape them. If you ask what they had before them, truly it was the Hebrew text of the Old Testament, the Greek of the New. These are the two golden pipes, or rather conduits, wherethrough the olive branches empty themselves into the gold.^b

Matters of such weight and consequence are to be speeded with maturity; for in a business of moment a man feareth not the blame of convenient slackness. Neither did we think much to consult the translators or commentators, Chaldee, Hebrew, Syrian, Greek, or Latin; neither did we disdain to revise that which we had done, and to bring back to the anvil that which we had 30 hammered; but having and using as great helps as were needful, and fearing no reproach for slowness, nor coveting praise for expedition, we have at length, through the good hand of the Lord upon us, brought the work to that pass that you see.

Some peradventure would have no variety of senses to be set in the margin, 35 lest the authority of the Scriptures for deciding of controversies by that show of uncertainty should somewhat be shaken. But we hold their judgment not to be so sound in this point. There be many words in the Scriptures, which be never found there but once (having neither brother nor neighbor, as the Hebrews speak) so that we cannot be holpen by conference of places. Again, there 40 be many rare names of certain birds, beasts, and precious stones, &c., concerning which the Hebrews themselves are so divided among themselves for judgment, that they may seem to have defined this or that, rather because they would say something, than because they were sure of that which they said. Now in such a case, doth not a margin do well to admonish the Reader to 45 seek further, and not to conclude or dogmatize upon this or that peremptorily? For as it is a fault of incredulity, to doubt of those things that are evident; so to determine of such things as the Spirit of God hath left (even in the judgment of the judicious) questionable, can be no less than presumption. Diversity of signification and sense in the margin, where the text is not so clear, must needs 50 do good; yea, is necessary, as we are persuaded.

a Rev. 3, 7-

Another thing we think good to admonish thee of, gentle Reader, that we have not tied ourselves to an uniformity of phrasing, or to an identity of words, as some peradventure would wish that we had done, because they observe, that some learned men somewhere have been as exact as they could that way. 5 Truly, that we might not vary from the sense of that which we had translated before, if the word signified the same thing in both places (for there be some words that be not of the same sense every where) we were especially careful, and made a conscience, according to our duty. But that we should express the same notion in the same particular word; as for example, if we translate the 10 Hebrew or Greek word once by purpose, never to call it intent; if one where journeying, never traveling; if one where think, never suppose; if one where pain, never ache; if one where joy, never gtadness, &c., thus to mince the matter, we thought to savor more of curiosity than wisdom, and that rather it would breed scorn in the atheist, than bring profit to the godly reader. For is 15 the kingdom of God become words or syllables? Why should we be in bondage to them, if we may be free? Use one precisely, when we may use another no less fit as commodiously?

A godly Father in the primitive time reporteth that he was much abused for turning cucurbita (to which reading the people had been used) into 20 hedera. Now if this happen in better times, and upon so small occasions, we might justly fear hard censure, if generally we should make verbal and unnecessary changings.

We might also be charged (by scoffers) with some unequal dealing towards a great number of good Engtish words. If we should say, as it were, unto 25 certain words: Stand up higher, have a place in the Bible always; and to others of like quality: Get you hence, be banished for ever; we might be taxed peradventure with St. James's words, namely, *To be partial in ourselves, and judges of cvit thoughts.*⁸

Lastly, we have on the one side avoided the scrupulosity of the Puritanes, 30 who leave the old Ecclesiastical words, and betake them to other, as when they put washing for baptism, and congregation instead of Church; as also on the other side we have shunned the obscurity of the Papists, in their azymes, tunike, rationat, hotocausts, præpuce, pasche, and a number of such like. We desire that the Scripture may speak like itself, as in the language of Canaan, 35 that it may be understood even of the very vulgar.

Many other things we might give thee warning of, gentle Reader, if we had not exceeded the measure of a preface already. It remaineth that we commend thee to God, and to the Spirit of His grace, which is able to build further than we can ask or think. He removeth the scales from our eyes, the veil from our hearts, opening our wits that we may understand His word, enlarging our hearts, yea, correcting our affections, that we may love it above gold and silver, yea, that we may love it to the end. Ye are brought unto fountains of living water which ye digged not; do not cast earth into them, neither prefer broken pits before them. Others have labored, and you may enter into their labors. O receive not so great things in vain. Be not like swine to tread under foot so precious things, neither yet like dogs to tear and abuse holy things. If light be come into the world, love not darkness more than light; if food, if clothing be offered, go not naked, starve not yourselves. Remember the advice, It is a grievous thing to neglect a great fair, and to seek to make markets afterwards. Amen."

Psalm 18.

For the Liturgy. Of the Servant of JHVII, David, who addressed the words of this Psalm to JIIVII, when JIIVII had saved him from all his foes and from Saut; and he said:

- WILL love Thee, O JHVII, my Strength! JIVII, my Rock, my Fortress, my Deliverer, 30 My God, my Strong Tower whereto I flee, My Shield and Horn² of my victory, my Stronghold! 3 Worthy to be praised is JHVH! cried I aloud; Safety I found from my foes. 35 4 Round about me were billows of death,
- Floods of ruin appalled me,

18 ,5	Ropes of Sheol enringed me,
	Snares of death confronted me.
6	I called, in my need, upon Jнvн,
	And I cried to my God;
	In His palace He heard my voice,	5
	My cry reached His ears.
7	Then the earth rocked and reeled,3
	The foundations of mountains trembled,
	Quaked, because He was enraged.
8	Smoke ascended from His nostrils,	10

	And forth from Him flashed coals of fire.
9	He bowed the heavens, and came down,
	Clouds of darkness beneath His feet.
10	He rode on the Cherub,4 and flew,	15

	Lightnings He hurled, and affrighted them.	25
15	The bed of the sea was then seen,
	The foundations of the earth lay bare,
	At Thy threatening, О Јнvн,
	At the fierce breath of Thy wrath.
16	He reached from heaven, and grasped me,	30
	And forth from the vasty deep drew me,
17	He rescued me from my mighty foes,
	From my haters, for they were too strong for me.
18	They confronted me in the day of my calamity;
	But JHVII became my stay,	35

6 Should one come to visit +me+, he speaks lies,
His heart lays up malice,
He goes out, and spreads rumors.

7 All who hate me whisper together against me, They devise mischief against me:

8 "Incurable disease has its course in his veins,

Now that he is down, he will never rise again."

9 Even good friends, in whom I had trusted, Who had eaten my bread, lift up the heel against me.

10 But Thou, О Jнvн, be gracious to me; Let me recover; then I will repay them.

That Thou wishest me well, I know by this:

That no enemy ever dare triumph over me.

For the Liturgys. Of David. Psa/m, Song.

- GOD arises, His enemies scatter, Before Him His haters are fleeing;
- 2. As smoke vanishes defore the wind, As wax melts before the fire, So do the wicked perish before God.
- 3 But the righteous rejoice and exult before God,
 And shout in their joy.
- 4 Sing to God, praise His Name,
 Make music to Him who drives over deserts,

 Jan is His name, and exult ve before Him!
- The father to orphans, the pleader for widows.

 God, in His holy dwelling;
- 6 God brings home the forsaken,²
 He leads forth prisoners² to comfort;
 Only the rebellious dwell in land that is parched.
- 7 O God, when Thou marchedst in the van of Thy people, 35 And through the desert didst stride, Schali.

68 ,8	Then the earth quaked, and the heavens dripped at the presence of God,
9	That Sinai yonder, at the presence of God, the God of Israel. With generous rain, O God, Thou didst water Thy heritage,
10	And when it was worn out, then Thou didst strengthen it. They who were Thine settled therein;	5
II	Through Thy goodness Thou preparedst it for the pious, O The Lord fulfils the promise.4 [God.
I 2	Of women who herald victory there is a great host; Kings of armies flee, they flee;	10
13	The swoman who remains at homes distributes the spoil. The wings of the dove were covered with silver, And her pinions with gold that is red,
14	When the Almighty scattered kings, When they stumbled in the night of death.	15
15	A mountain-range of God is the range of Bashan,	-0
16	A range full of peaks is the range of Bashan.8 Why look ye unfriendly, ye peaks of the mountains,
	At the mount whereon God loves to dwell?
17	JHVH nevertheless will dwell there for ever. [thousands. The chariots of God are myriads in number, thousands on The Lord is come from Sinai in holiness.9	20
ıS	Thou hast ascended the height, Thou hast made booty of Thou hast received men as a gift; [men,
	Only the rebellious dwell onot with Jah, God.	25
19	Praised be the Lord, day by day; He helps us to endure, God is our Aid. Selah.
20	God is for us a God of deeds of deliverance, And escape from death belongs to Jhvh, the Lord.
2 I	Ay, God crushes the heads of His enemies, The shag-haired pate ¹¹ of him who continues in guiltiness!	30
22	The Lord has said: ¹² From Bashan will I save thee, From the depths of the sea will I save thee.
23	Thy foot shall bathe in blood; The tongues of thy dogs shall have their share of the foes.	35
24	Behold the procession of God,

The procession of my God, of my King in holiness!

- 68,25 Singers lead the way, then stringed instruments follow.

 In the midst of maidens with timbrels.
 - 26 Praise God in choirs, Ye who spring from Israel's fount!
 - There is Benjamin, the diminutive, who treads on them,

 There the princes of Judah in throngs,

 The princes of Zebulon, the princes of Naphtali.¹⁴
 - 28 (Unfold), O God, Thy might,
 The mighty deeds, O God, which Thou hast wrought for us!
 - 29 * * * from Thy temple overhanging Jerusalem; 10 Let kings bring Thee gifts!
 - Threaten the Beast of the Reed,

 The herd of bulls, with calves of the peoples! Trample Thous down the dovers of lies!

 Do Thous scatter the peoples who take pleasure in wars! The state of the people who take pleasure in wars! The state of the people who take pleasure in wars! The state of the people who take pleasure in wars!
 - Let mighty men come out of Egypt,
 - Let Cush lift up her hands unto God!
 - Ye kingdoms of earth, sing to God,

 Play to the Lord! [primeval heavens;
 - 33 Make music | for Him who drives over the heaven: of 20 He thunders with a voice that is mighty.
 - 34 Give glory to God! His majesty extends over Israel, And His might is in heaven.¹⁷
 - From Thy sanctuary:, O God, Thou showest Thyself terrible, 25 O God of Israel!

 He gives might and power to the people.

 Praised be God!

HELP me, O God! For the water mounts to my life,

	What I have not stolen, forsooth I must even restore!3
5	O God, Thou knowest my strayings,
	And my guiltinesses are not hidden from Thee.
6	Let not those who look to Thee be disgraced in me,4 O	5
	Lord, Jhyh Sabaoth,
	Let not those who seek Thee be dishonored in me,4 O God
	[of Israel!
7	Because for Thy sake I bear scorn,6
,	Contumely 6 covers my countenance.	10
8	I am become a stranger to my brothers,
	An alien to the sons of my mother. ⁵
9	Because zeal for Thy house has eaten me up,
,	And on me has fallen the abuse ⁶ of those who abuse Thee.
10	I have chastened myself with fasting,	15
	And it has brought me abuse.	•
ΙI	I have clothed myself in sackcloth,
	And by them I was jeered.
12	I am the talk of those who sit in the market,
	And +the subject+ of wine-bibbers' ballads.	20
13	But my prayer turns to Thee, О Јнvн,
	Be to me gracious, O God, for Thy great goodness' sake,
	Answer me with Thy trustworthy help!
1.1	Rescue me from the mire, lest I sink;
	Let me escape from my haters and from the deep waters!	25
15	Let not the swell drown me,
	Nor the flood swallow me,
	Nor over me the well close its mouth!
16	Answer me, O Jhvh, according to Thy goodness,
	According to the fulness of Thy compassion turn to me!	30
17	Hide not Thy face from Thy servant,
	For I am in distress; answer me speedily!
18	Draw nigh to my soul, and protect it,
	Because of my foes set me free!
19	Thou knowest how I am despised and reviled,	35
	And dishonored before o all mine oppressors.
20	Abuse breaks my heart, and makes me sore sick.
	I look for sympathy. but there is none:

69	For comforters, but none do I find.
21	They put poison in my food,
	And give me vinegar to drink for my thirst.8
22	May their table become for them a snare,
	And for the careless a trap!9	5
23	May their eyes grow dim, that they cannot see,
	And make their loins keep trembling!
2.1	Pour out over them Thy wrath!
	May the heat of Thy wrath seize them!
25	Let their encampment become waste!	10
	In their tents let no one dwell!
26	For they persecute him whom Thou hast smitten,
	And the sorrows of those whom Thou hast laid prostrate
27	Give them punishment for their iniquity! [they increase.
	And be theirs no share in Thy righteousness!10	15
28	May they be blotted from the Book of Life, II
	And not stand in the roll of the righteous!
29	But as for me, miserable and suffering as I am,
	Thy help, O God, will save me.
30	With songs will I praise the Name of God,	20
	And honor it high with thanksgiving.
31	That will please Juvu far more than a bull,
	-Than- a bullock with horns and with hoofs.
32	This, the pious will behold and rejoice,
	Who seek after God, and their heart will revive,	25
33	In that Jhyh has answered the poor,
	And His prisoners He has not despised.
34	Heavens and earth will praise Him,
	The sea and everything which therein swarms.
35	For God helps Zion,	30
	And builds up the cities of Judah;
	So that they dwell there, and possess them, 12
36	And the descendants of His servants will inherit them,
	And they who love His Name will dwell therein.

Psalm 73.

Psalm of Asaph. OD is good, and good only, to Israel, 73,I To those who are pure in heart.¹ 5 Well nigh sweres my feet gone from under me, There was nothing to keep my steps from slipping; For I was indignant at fools, 3 When I marked the success of the godless; Forsooth, nothing thave they to endure, IO Their bodies are thealthy and sound. In the suffering of others they do not +share+, They never are plagued like the rest. 6 Hence pride is for them as a necklace, The garment of violence clothes them. 15 7 Their <sin> blossoms out of their fat, The thoughts of their heart break forth +into act+. 8 They scoff, and devise what is bad, They haughtily plot what is wrong. 9 Their speech they direct against heaven, 20 And their tongue roves over the earth. 10 Yet care they sated with bread, And water stands ready for them in abundance. 	And incensed the Holy One of Israel.	15
42	They gave no thought to His hand,
•	Nor how from the foe He had freed them,
43	When in Egypt He revealed His signs, 12
73	And His wonders on the fields of Zoan. ³
44	He turned their streams into blood, ¹³	20
7-1	So that the running water thereof they could not drink.
45	He sent flies 4 against them, which devoured them,
40	And frogs 15 which destroyed them.
46	To the grasshopper He gave their harvest,
40	And to the locust +the fruit of their toil. 16	25
	He killed their vines with hail,	25
47	And their sycomores with shoar-frosts.
40	He gave over their cattle 17 to the hail,
40
	And their flocks to the lightning. 18
49	He let loose against them the heat of His anger,	30
	Wrath, and fury, and affliction,
	An uncoupling of messengers of woe.
50	He leveled the path for His anger;
	He spared not their souls from death,
	But surrendered their life to the pestilence.	35
51	He smote all the first-born in Egypt, ¹⁹
	And the firstlings of male strength in the tents of Ham. ²⁰
52	But He led forth His own people like a flock,
	And drove them like a herd through the desert.
53	He guided them safely, that they were not afraid,	40
	But their foes He overwhelmed with the sea.21

78 ,	54	He brought them to His holy territory,
		To the mountainous range ²² which His right hand had won.
	55	He drove out ²³ peoples before them,
		And divided ²³ their land as a heritage,
		And gave their tents as dwellings to the tribes of Israel.	5
	56	But they tempted and vexed God, the Most High,24
		And did not obey His precepts. ²⁵
	57	They swerved, and revolted like their fathers,
		And were unresponsive like a treacherous bow.26
	58	They angered Him with their high-places,27	IO
		And provoked His jealousy with their sidolatrous images.
	59	God heard it, and fell in a passion of anger,
		And utterly abhorred Israel.
	60	He spurned the dwelling at Shiloh,28
		The tent He had pitched among men.	1,5
	61	He surrendered His power ²⁹ to captivity,
		And His pride ²⁹ to the hand of the foe.
	62	He abandoned His people to the sword,
		And raged against His inheritance.
	63	Its young men were devoured by fire,	20
		And no nuptial songs sung to its maidens.
	64	Its priests fell by the sword,
		And its widows could not lament.30
	65	Then the Lord awoke as a sleeper -awakes-,
		Like a hero overpowered by wine;	25
	66	He smote His foes in the rear,3r
		And on them inflicted eternal disgrace.
	67	But He despised the House of Joseph,
		And of the tribe of Ephraim would He know nothing.
	68	He chose out the tribe of Judah,32	30
		Mount Zion, which He loves,
	69	Built like His sanctuary,
		Like the earth He has founded for ever.
	70	He chose out David, His Servant,
		And took him from the folds of the flocks,33	35
	71	From following after sucking ewes He fetched him away
		To tend ³⁴ Jacob, His people,
		And Israel, His inheritance.
	72	He tended them with an upright heart,35
		With a prudent hand he led them.	40

- There must be in the midst of thee no strange god, No foreign god must thou worship.
- I am Jhvh, thy God, who brought thee from Egypt. Open wide thy mouth,—I will fill it."
- But my people hearkened not to my voice,⁶
 And Israel would none of me,⁷
- So I resigned them to their stubborn heart, That they might follow their own counsels.
- Oh, that my people would hear me, That Israel would walk in my ways!

81,14 Right soon would I make their foes bow, And turn my hand against their oppressors.

Their haters would have to fawn on them, While their time would for ever endure.

16 I would feed them with the marrow of wheat, 5
And with droppings from the honey-comb sate them.

7 Under Thy displeasure we perish, Under Thine anger are we benumbed.3

8 Thou placest our sins4 before Thee, Our secretest act in the light of Thy face;

There ride the ships And that Leviathan which Thou hast formed, to play with They all wait upon Thee To give them their food in due season. What Thou givest to them, they gather; Thou openest Thy hand, they feast; Thou withdrawest their breath, they die, And turn again into dust. Thou sendest forth Thy breath, they spring into Being, And Thou renewest the face of the earth. Be Jhyh's Glory eternal! Let Jhyh rejoice in His works! Psalm 105.

·[Hallelujah!]-

105,1	THANK ye Jhvii, call upon His Name, Make known among the peoples His deeds!
2	Sing to Him, play to Him,	5
	Devoutly praise all His wonders!
3	Glory in His holy Name,
	Let the heart rejoice of those who seek Jhvh!
4	Turn ye to Jhyh and to His Power,
	Seek ye His face for evermore!	10
5	Remember the wonders which He has done,
	His signs, and the judgments He has uttered,
6	Ye descendants of Abraham, His Servant,
	Ye Sons of Jacob, His chosen oneo!
7	He is Juvu, our God,	15
	His judgments +go forth- over all the world.
S	He remembers His covenant for ever,
	The word He has given, for a thousand generations,
9	Which He made with Abraham,2
	And swore unto Isaac,3	20
10	And confirmed as law for Jacob,4
	And as an eternal covenant for Israel,
11	Saying:—"To you do I give the land of Canaan,
	As your heritage and possession."
12	When they were still few ⁵ in numbers,	25
	Hardly to be counted, and not settled ⁶ in the land,
13	But wandered from people to people,
	And from one kingdom to another,
14	T T 22 .
	And for their sake punished kings,7 saying:	30
15	"Touch 8 not mine anointed one 119
	And do my propheto™ no harm!''
16	He decreed a famine in the land,
	And broke in pieces every staff 12 of bread.
17	He sent forth a man in advance:13	35
	Joseph was sold as a servant.
18	They forced his feet into fetters,
	-And- he 14 was put into irons
19	Until what he had said was fulfilled,
	And the command of JHVH proved him. 15	40

105,2	o The king sent and loosed him,
	The ruler of peoples let him go free.
2	He made him the master over his house,
	The ruler over all his possessions, ¹⁶
2	2 So that he dared at will to fetter the nobles,	5
	And to chastise the elders.
2	3 Israel came to Egypt, ¹⁷
	Jacob sojourned in the land of Ham; 18
2	4 And He increased His people greatly,19
	He made them stronger than their foes,20	ю
2	5 Whose heart He turned to hate His people,
	To practice craftiness ²¹ on His Servants.
2	6 He sent Moses, His Servant,
	+And+ Aaron whom He had chosen;
2	7 <he> performed among them His signs²²</he>	15
	And His wonders in the land of Ham."
2	9 He turned their waters into blood,24
	And killed their fishes.
3	o Their land swarmed with frogs,
	+Even+ in the chambers 25 of their kings;	20
3	1 He spoke, and there came flies,26
	Gnats ²⁷ throughout their dominion.
3	² He turned their showers of rain into hail; ²⁸
	Blazing fire ²⁸ fell on their land.
3	3 He trampled their vines and fig-trees,	25
	He broke in pieces the trees ²⁹ in their dominion.
3	4 He spoke, and there came locusts
	And grasshoppers without number,
3	5 Which ate up every herb in their land,
	And ate up the fruit of their field.30	30
3	6 He smote all the first-born in their land,
	The firstlings of all their strength.31
3	7 He led them forth +laden+ with silver and gold,32
	And among their tribes was there no one that stumbled.33
3	s The Egyptians rejoiced at their departure,	35
	For a dread of them had fallen upon them.34
3	He spread out clouds as a covering,35
	And fire to give light in the night. ³⁶

105, 28 "He sent darkness, and made it dark, And they rebelled not against His words²³

105,40	They asked, and He brought quails,37
	And satisfied them with the bread of heaven.36
41	He opened the rock, and water gushed forth,
	A stream ran in the desert. ³⁹
42	For He remembered His holy word	5
	-And- Abraham, His Servant.40
43	Thus He led forth His people with rejoicing,
	His chosen ones with shouts of triumph.41
44	He gave them the lands of the heathen,
	And they inherited the fruit of the toil of the peoples,42	1
45	So that they might keep His commandments,
	And observe His directions. ⁴³
	Hallelujah!

Pralm 106. Hallelujah! 15 ✓ IVE thanks to Јиун, for He is kind, U His goodness is ever-enduring. 2 Who can utter the great deeds of JHVH, Who can make known all His fame? 3 Happy are they who observe justice, 20 And o at all times practice righteousness. 4 Remember me, TO JHVH, with the favor Thou showest Thy Visit me with Thine assistance! That I' may mark the prosperity of Thy chosen ones, May rejoice in the joy of Thy people, 25 May glory with those that are Thine! 6 We have sinned like our fathers, We have turned back, and wickedly acted. 7 Our fathers, in Egypt, disregarded His2 wonders, They were unmindful of the abundance of His2 benefits, And gave +Him+ offense at the sea.3.1 s Yet for His Name's sake He helped them In order to show forth His might. He menaced the Red Sea, and it was dried up.

He led them through the depths, as through pasture-land.4 35

	And rescued them from the hand of the foe.5
11
	There was not a single survivor.
12	*	5
	They sang His praise.7
13	+But+ they soon forgot His deeds;
	They did not await His decree.
1.1	They were seized with a lust ⁸ in the wilderness,
	And tempted God in the desert.	10
15	He granted them what they asked for,
	And sent them9—a wasting disease.10
16	In the camp they were envious in of Moses,
	And of Aaron, the holy one of Jhyh.
17	The earth gaped, and swallowed Dathan,	15
	And closed over the crew of Abiram. 12
18	Fire consumed their crew,
	Flame scorched the wicked.
19	They made a calf at Horeb,
	And worshiped a molten image.	20
20	They bartered their honor
	For the image of a bull that eats grass. ¹³
21	They forgot God, their Helper,
	Who had done great deeds in Egypt,
22	Wonderful deeds in the land of Ham, ¹⁴	25
	Mighty deeds at the Red Sea.
23	Then He thought to extirpate them,
	But Moses, His elect, facing Him, stepped into the breach, 15
	To turn aside His wrath, lest He should destroy them.
24	They scorned the land of delight, ¹⁶	30
	And believed not His word.
25	They murmured 17 in their tents;
	They hearkened not to the voice of Jhvh.
26	Then He swore to them, with uplifted hand,
	That He would let them perish in the wilderness ¹⁸	35
27	And would scatter their descendants among the heathen,
	And disperse 19 them through the lands.20
28
	And ate the sacrifices of the dead.22
29	, 0	40
	And among them the plague broke out.

106	, 30	Then Phinehas stood up, and executed judgment,23
		And the plague was checked.
	31	It was counted to him for righteousness,24
		Unto all generations for ever.
	32	They provoked anger at the water of Meribah,25	5
		And on their account it fared ill with Moses;26
	33	For they 27 angered His 28 spirit,
		And he ²⁾ spoke unadvisedly with his lips. ³⁰
	34	They did not root out the peoples, ³¹
5		As Juvu had commanded them.32	10
	35	They mingled ³³ themselves with the heathen,
		And accustomed themselves to their doings.
	36	They did obeisance to their idols,
		Which became to them a snare.34
	37	They sacrificed their sons	15
		And their daughters to demons;35
	38	They poured out innocent blood,*
		So that with bloodguiltiness- the land was polluted.
	39	They became unclean in action,
		And practiced idolatry. ³⁷	20
	40	Then JHVH's wrath was kindled against His people,
		And His heritage became to Him an abhorrence.
	41	He gave them into the hand of the heathen,
		And their haters ruled over them;
	42	Their foes oppressed them,	25
		And they had to bow themselves under their hand.
	43	Many times did He save them,
		But headstrong they kept to their counsel;
		And wasted aways in their iniquity.
	44	But He regarded their need,	30
		When He heard their wailing;
	45	For them He remembered His covenant,
		And relented, according to His great goodness,
	46	He caused them to meet with compassion
		From those who had carried them captive. ³⁶	35

5 Hungry and thirsty,

Their soul fainting within them,—

- 6 When they cried to JHVH in their trouble, He delivered them from their distresses,
- 7 He brought them on the right road, To reach a city to dwell in.
- 8 May they give thanks to JHVH for His goodness, And for the wonders -which He does for man;
- 9 For He satisfies the soul that is longing, And the soul that is hungry He has sated with good.
- They who sat in gloom and in darkness, Fettered in affliction and iron,²
- Here are they resisted the commandments of God, And refused the counsel of the Most High;
- 12 He bowed down their heart with sorrow, They stumbled, and there was no one to help them,—
- 13 When they cried to Јнун, in their trouble, He rescued them from their distresses,

107,14	He led them forth from gloom and darkness,
15	He burst their bands asunder. May they give thanks to Jhvh for His goodness,

21	May they give thanks to JHVH for His goodness,	15
	And for the wonders -which He does- for man;
22	And offer the sacrifice of thanksgiving,7
	And rehearse His deeds with shouts of joy.
23	They who sail the deep in ships,8
	Trafficking over great waters,	20
24
	And His wonders on the deep.
25	He spoke, and caused the stormy wind to rise,
	Which tossed the billows on high;
26	They mounted to the sky, they went down to the depths.	25
	Their courage melted away in their distress,
27	They reeled and staggered like men who are drunk,
	And were at their wits' end,—
28	When they cried to JHVH, in their trouble,
	He brought them out of their distresses;	30
29	He hushed the storm to a gentle whisper,
	And the billows kept silence;
30	They were glad, because they were quiet,
	And He led them to the desired shavens.
31	May they give thanks to JHVH for His goodness,	35
	And for the wonders +which He does+ for man;
32	May they extol Him in the assembly of the people, 10
	Praise Him in the company of the elders. ¹⁰

GATES OF BRONZE

107,33	He turns streams into desert,
	And fountains into parched ground,11
34	A land of fruit into a salt waste,12
	Because of the wickedness of those who dwell therein.
35	He turns deserts into pools of water,	5
	And parched ground into fountains;
36	There He settles the hungry,
	That they may establish a city to dwell in,
37	Sow fields, and lay out vineyards,
	And gather the fruits of the harvest;	1 €
38	He blesses them, so that they greatly increase,
	And He suffers not their cattle to decrease.
40	He pours out contempt upon nobles,
	And in pathless deserts makes them wander astray,
39	So that they are minished, and brought low,	15
	By oppression of evil and sorrow.
41	But the poor man He lifts out of his misery,
	And increases his kindred like a flock of sheep.
42	The upright see it, and are glad,

	For the Liturgy. Psalm of David.
1	GOD, my Glory, be not silent! [against me,	20
2	For they open the mouth of wickedness and lying
	They utter false speeches against me, ¹
3	With words of malice do they encircle me,
	And fight against me without any cause;
4	In return for my love, they persecute me,	25
5	And (repay) me evil for good,
	And hatred for my love.
6	Give power to a wicked man over him,
O	And let Satan stand at his right hand! ²	20
7	From trial ³ let him go forth condemned,	30
/	And his prayer become sin!4
8	Let his days be few!
o	Let another +man+ seize his possessions!
0	Be his children orphans,	25
9	And his wife a widow!	35
	A XII O TO T

10 Be his children vagabonds and beggars,

And be they <driven> from their ruined homes!

	Let his creditor distrain all his possessions!
	And the fruit of his toil fall as spoil to a stranger!
	Let no one retain any love for him!
	On his orphans let none take compassion!
	Let extirpation befall his posterity,	5
15 ^b 2	In the next generation may their name be extinguished, And from the earth &be their memory blot ted!
	Let the iniquity of his fathers be remembered with JHVH, Of the sins of his mother let there be no oblivion!
15ª I	Before Jиvи may they be ever-present!	10
16 I	Because he never remembered to show any mercy,
ŀ	But hunted to death the wretched and poor
Ì	And the broken in heart.
17 l	He delighted in curses,—det them strike him!
I	Te took no joy in blessing,—det none light on him!	15

	And into his bones like oil!
	Let them be to him like a garment which he dons,
	And like a girdle which he ever wears!	20
	Be this the reward from Juvn of my accusers
Ė	And of those who speak evil against me.
21 I	But Thou, О Јиун, Lord,
	Deal Thou with me [] according to Thy goodness,
5	Save me [for the sake of Thy Name].!	25
22 I	For wretched am I, and poor,
1	Wounded to death is the heart in my bosom.
23 I	Like a shadow, when lengthening, I am passing away, am shaken off like a locust.
	My knees give way from my fasting,	30
	My flesh is losing its fat.
	And to them I am become a derision,
ı	They see me, and wag their heads.5
	Aid me, O Jhvh, my God!
		35
	Let them mark that this is Thy hand,
_	That Thou it is, JHVH, who hast done it.

Psalm 115.1

115,1	NOT to us, O JHVH, not to us, But to Thy Name, give glory,
	Because of Thy goodness, because of Thy faithfulness!
2	Why should the heathen say:	5
	"Where is that God of theirs?"	* *
3	Forsooth, our God is in heaven,
	Whatsoever He wills, that He does.
4	Their idols are silver and gold,
	Handiwork fashioned by man.	IC
5	They have a mouth, but talk not;
	Eyes have they, but they see not;
6	Ears have they, but they hear not;
	Nostrils have they, but they smell not;
7	With their hands they handle not,	15
	With their feet they walk not,
	With their throat they speak not.
S	As dead- as they may their carvers become,
	And all who in them put their trust!
9	O Israel, trust Thou in Juvu! ²	20

Psalm 123.

Song of Ascents.

- 123, 1 TO Thee do l lift up mine eyes, O Thou, who dwellest in heaven!
 - As the eyes of servants to the hand of their master, As the eyes of a maid to the hand of her mistress, So do our eyes +look+ to Jhvh, our God, Until to us He be gracious.
 - 3 Be gracious to us, O Jhvh; be gracious to us! For amply sated are we with contempt.
 - 4 Amply sated is our soul. With the jeers of the proud, the contempt of the arrogant.

Øsalm 125.

Song of Ascents.

- That is not shaken, that stands for ever.
 - ² Mountains encircle Jerusalem, And JHVH encircles His people, From this time forth for ever.
 - 3 -He lets- not the sceptre of outrage rest On the lot of the righteous;² Lest the righteous reach out Their hands unto evil.³
 - 4 Do good, O Jhvн, to the good And to those who are upright in their heart.
 - 5 But those who follow their crooked paths,—
 May Jhvh drive them off with evil-doers!

 Fair befall Israel!

(Psalm 126.

Song of Ascents.

- I WHEN JHVH turned the Captivity of Zion, It was as though we dreamed!
- Then our mouths were filled with laughter,
 And our tongues with shouts of joy;
 Then was it said among the heathen:
 A great thing has Jhvh done for them.
- A great thing +indeed+ had Jнvн done for us! We were joyful!
- 4 Turn Thou, O Jhvh, our captivity.¹
 * * * * * like channels in the dry land.²
- 5 Those who sowed in tears Will reap with shouts of joy.
- 6 The o sower of seed goes forth weeping,
 With shouts of joy he returns, the bearer of sheaves.

Soug of Ascents. Of Solomon.

- The builders labor thereon in vain
 Unless Jhyh watch over the city,
 The watchman is awake in vain.

 In vain is it that we rise up early, so late take reserved.
 - 2 In vain is it that ye rise up early, so late take rest, And eat distressful bread; Even so He gives to His beloved in sleeps.
 - 3 Sons are a gift from JHVH, The fruit of the womb is a present.
 - 4 As arrows in the hand of a warrior, So are the sons of the days of youth.²
 - 5 Happy the man who has his quiver full thereof; They will not be put down, when they argue with foes 15 before judges.3

(Psalm 128.

Song of Ascents.

- HAPPY is every one, who fears Jhvh, And who walks in His ways!
- 2 What thy hands gain, thou dost eat; Happy, thou! and fair may it befall thee!
- 3 Like a fruitful vine is thy wife, In thy dwelling's innermost chambers. Like young olive trees are thy children, About thy board in a circle.
- 4 Ay, in this way shall he still be blessed, The man who fears Jhyh.
- May Jиvи bless thee from Zion! Rejoice in the good of Jerusalem^т All the days of thy life, Song of Ascents. Of David.

HOW good it is, and how lovely,
When brethren are all dwelling together! 20 2 It is like the precious oil on the head, Which flows down on the beard, Aaron's beard, That flows down on the collar of his garment; 3 It is like the dew of Hermon,3 which flows down on the mountains of Zion. 25 For there has JHVH commanded the blessing: Life for evermore.4

- JHVH gives sight to the blind, JHVH raises up those who are bowed down, JHVH loves the righteous,
- JHVH guards those who seek protection,2 The orphans and the widows He upholds; But the course of the wicked He leads to ruin.
- 10 JHVH reigns for ever, Thy God, O Zion, to all generations! Hallelujah!

Motes on the Psalms

HE PSALMS are a Collection of Hymns for use in Public Worship. Only a small proportion, however, were composed expressly for this use. Some are of a secular nature (c. g. Ps. 45), some give lyrical expression to the thoughts of an individual (c. g. Pss. 3 and 4); but all were received into the Collection to promote the edification of the Congregation. This is to be inferred from the Hebrew name of the Book of Psalms, Sépher Tehillim, 'Book of Praises,' and Tephilloth David, 'Prayers of David' (Ps. 72, 20).

To some of the Psalms neither of these titles applies, which may be accounted for by the fact that, whatever the character of special Psalms, the Collection as a whole was to be used in Divine Service. The headings also, and the musical directions which are interspersed, even where the Psalm is of a purely personal character, show that the Collection was compiled for musical rendering and liturgical use. Finally, the use of the Psalms in the exercises of the Christian Church, which were derived from the Jewish Synagogue, warrants the same conclusion.

The Psalms are divided into five Books: 3-41; 42-72; 73-89; 90-106; 107-150. The division of the last two Books is due simply to an ancient error (see the note on 106, 48); and whilst a division may be made between the Second and Third Books, it is only the division between two halves of a whole (see the note on Book 2, p. 182). This reduces the five parts to three: 3-41; 42-89; 90-150. And these three parts are not subsequent divisions of the final collection; they are rather strata, originally independent, which were afterwards brought into connection. Psalms of the first stratum reappear in the second (14 = 53; 40 = 70); Psalms of the second, in the third (57.60 = 108). In the first the divine name JHVH (see note on 1, 2) is employed, in the second Elohim (God) predominates. There are several signs (see note on 45, 6) which indicate that this variation is due not to the authors but to the editors; the editors of the Second Book were, consequently, not the same as those of the First. (For Pss. 1 and 2, see the note on 2,1.)

In the first two divisions anonymous Psalms are rare; and such as do occur were not found in the original editions. Pss. 3-41 are Psalms of David, and so are 51-70; but 42-50 and 73-89 are Psalms of the Levitical Guilds of Singers 35 (cf. the notes on 39,1; 42,1). Throughout these Psalms, but with varying degrees of frequency, directions are interspersed indicating the proper manner of musical execution. The significance of these notices was soon forgotten; even in the oldest Versions they were not understood. In the third stratum (Pss.

90-150) most of the poems are anonymous, and, although a much larger proportion than in the first two Books were composed expressly for the Liturgy, musical directions are not given.

Within the three principal divisions smaller groups may be distinguished, 5 c. g. the Psalms of Korah and Asaph in the second, and in the third especially the Shiré ham-Ma'alôth, 'The Songs of Ascents' (see the note on p. 210).

The Psalter is a part of the Hagiographa. It is the Hymn-Book of the Second Temple. The titles of the Psalms presuppose the musical service described in the Book of Chronicles, and the David of these titles is the David of the Chronicler. With these facts before us, it is not a question whether there be any post-Exilic Psalms, but, rather, whether the Psalms contain any poems written before the Exile. The strong family-likeness which runs through the Psalms forbids our distributing them among periods of Israelitish history widely separated in time and fundamentally unlike in character. The so-called 15 Psalms of Solomon (63-48 B. C.) do not differ from the canor-ical ones in any essential characteristic, and the fact that there are such is a proof of the late date at which Jewish poets continued to write Psalms. The determination of date, therefore, so far as it is possible at all, depends entirely on the interpretation; it is now commonly recognized that the historical notices given in the titles do not contain genuine traditions.

In the present translation of The Psalms the titles (including historical and musical notices), as well as Selah and other liturgical formulas (e.g. 7, 17), are printed in italics, also the doxological subscriptions at the close of the first four Books (41,13; 72,18; 89,52; 106,48). None of these words or phrases (printed 25 in italics) formed a part of the original text of the Psalms to which they are attached. Spaced type is used for the refrains which we find in some Psalms (e.g. 8,1.9; cf. the note on 42,5).

The Hebrew characters in the margin of Pss. 9.10.25.34.37.111.112.119:145 indicate the acrostic letters in the Hebrew original. These eight Psalms 30 are, in form, alphabetical; each verse or stanza commences with the successive letters of the Hebrew alphabet.

Motes on Book 1

Motes on Psalm 1.

- (1) Counsel = practical conviction in regard to a mode of life (14,6; Job 1, 1 35 10, 3; 21, 16).
- (2) It is very doubtful whether the Israelites continued to pronounce their 2 special name for God at the time when the composition of Psalms was at its height. Yet we can hardly substitute God or The Lord, seeing that, in writing, the distinction was maintained between [HIVII (Heb. Yahvéh), Elohim, 'God,' and 40 Adonai 'Lord.'

[JIIVH represents the Ineffable Name of the Supreme Being, erroncously written and pronounced Jehovah which is merely a combination of the consonants of the sacred tetragrammaton and of the vowels in the Hebrew word for Lord, substituted by the Jews for Jhyh, because they shrank from pronouncing the name, owing to an old misconception of the two passages, Ex. 20,7 and Lev. 24,16. The true pronunciation of Jhyh seems to have been Yahav (or Iahway, the initial I=y as in Iachimo). The final e should be pronounced like the French \hat{e} , or the English e in there, and the first h sounded as an aspirate. The accent should be on the final syllable. To give to the name Juyh the vowels of the word for Lord (Heb. Adonai), and pronounce it Jehovah, is about as hybrid a combination as it would be to spell the name Germany with the vowels in the name Portugal, viz. Gormuna. The monstrous combination Jehovah is not older than about 1520 A. D. The meaning of Jhyh is uncertain.—P. H.]

- (3) Compare Joshua, chapter I, verse 8.
- (4) i. e. not in the Last Judgment, but in a judgment which God pronounces 5 and executes here and now. Its object is the separation of the true Israel from 15 the false.
- (5) The dominant note in this Psalm, as in so many others, is the contrast 6 between the godly and the wicked. Both contrasted groups here belong to Israel. The piety described is somewhat Puritanical. Its chief occupation, moreover, is the study of the Law, day and night. The Psalm resembles the Book 20 of Proverbs in depicting the wicked as scoffing, worldly-minded, frivolous men, altogether different from the godly. The similarity to Jer. 17, 7.8, as well as the difference between the two passages, is worth noting.

Motes on Psalm 2.

- (1) Ps. 2 is the counterpart to Ps. 1. In Ps. 1 we have the contrast between 2, 1 25 the true and the false members of the Theocracy; now we have the contrast between the Theocracy and the heathen world. Neither of the Psalms has a title, nor do they belong to the Psalms of David of the First Book.
- (2) The Messiah is the speaker, and the whole Psalm is composed in his 7 name. It is not merely the hopes concerning the future to which he gives 30 expression; it is the claims to world-wide dominion already cherished by the Jewish Theocracy. All the heathen are destined to obey the Jews; if they fail to do so, they are rebels. The Messiah is the incarnation of Israel's universal rule. He and Israel are almost identical, and it matters little whether we say that Israel has or is the Messiah; cf. the note on 28,8. On the day when Jhvh 35 founded the Theocracy, He gave it the right to unlimited earthly dominion. This right is involved in the very idea of the Theocracy. Zion, as being the seat of the divine rule, is ipso facto the seat of universal rule.

Motes on Psalm 3.

(1) The statement made in the title respecting the occasion that gave rise to 3, 1 to this Psalm is not borne out by the contents of the Psalm. Not a single feature reminds us of David's situation and mood during the rebellion of Absalom (cf. especially v. 7 with 2 Sam. 18, 5.12; 19, 1). The speaker is a Jewish prince or general. His enemies, the wicked, are also enemies of Juvh and of His people; that is to say, they are heathen. This is clear from vv. 7.8, and we must accordingly take the many of v. 1 to be foreign foes. Does the same hold good of the many in v. 2? Our first impulse would be to reply unhesitatingly in the affirmative. The assertion in v. 2, however, does not suggest malicious joy, it sounds despondent. This would induce us to find in the speaker's own army the men who reckon his position desperate, and to distinguish between 50 them and the foes who have brought him into this condition. Ps. 4, 6, and indeed the whole of Ps. 4, is unmistakably in favor of this view. The situation 3 which it depicts is identical with that in Ps. 3. In both poems we have a general who must needs deal, not only with external foes, but also with the treacherous despondency of his own troops: they doubt his fitness to meet the 5 danger. The two Psalms are correctly held to have been written by the same author under the same circumstances. But it is a mistake to say that Ps. 3 is a Morning Psalm, and Ps. 4 an Evening Psalm.

(2) Selah is one of the musical notices in the liturgical redaction of the 2 Psalter; the meaning of the term has not been transmitted to us. It is always 10 found within the hymns, usually at the close of a paragraph. In the Greek

Bible it is rendered diapsalma 'interlude.'

Motes on Psalm 4.

- (1) The translation of this term is very doubtful. Even in the Ancient Ver- 4, 1 sions it was not understood. Against the usual interpretation, For the Chief 15 Musician, the objection has been rightly raised, that it is unnecessary to state that the leader of the choir had to be apprised of what he was to perform.
 - (2) i.e., who dealest with me according to my righteousness; cf. 18, 20; 7, 8.
- (3) Shrink back with horror from the sin of giving voice to your despond- 4 ency in this traitorous fashion! Another interpretation also might be given: 20 Be afraid, as much as you please, but do not commit the sin of proclaiming your fear aloud, as you are doing; rather, be calm and still!

Motes on Psalm 5.

- (1) i. e. in the way which is proved to be right and well-pleasing to God 5, 8 by its leading to the goal, to prosperity.
- (2) Because they are God's enemies, too (vv. 10 ff.), and His cause, as well as the petitioner's, is at stake. The godly man cannot claim deliverance because of his own merits; but, compared with the wicked man, he is, at all events, the one who inquires after God. And God cannot but show that such a one is more precious to Him than a man who does not desire to know Him. We have here so a strongly marked contrast between two parties within the community, the godly and the wicked. The man who is praying speaks in the name of the true Israel; hence (v. 2) my King: Jhyh is the King of Israel. Convinced that the wicked will not be allowed to continue to dwell with Jhyh, he looks forward with longing to the judgment which will sweep them away, and bring about the striumph of the godly in Zion.

Notes on (Psalm 6.

- (1) Probably the number of the mode or key is here indicated; cf. Ps. 12. 6, 1
- (2) This is borrowed from Jer. 10, 24 and = Do not so punish me as to over-whelm me. The punishment of children is designed for their amendment; pun-40 ishment in wrath is directed against enemies, and destroys them. G. Ps. 38, 1.
- (3) Death = the state of the dead. Sheol is Hades, whither all mortals go 5 after death. The OT makes no distinction between Gehenna and Paradise. The argument maintained in this passage would be greatly strengthened if we could hold that it is the true Israel, not a mere individual, who is praying. For if 45 the congregation of the godly in Jerusalem had succumbed to the hostility of their opponents, the worship of the true God would have disappeared from the earth. On the other hand, the offering of praise presented by any one man must be eventually terminated by death, and what can it signify to God whether it last a little longer or shorter?

- (4) From this point onward it is clear that the suffering endured by the 6,7 petitioner does not arise from bodily illness, but from the oppression of foes. In itself, of course, there is nothing incredible in the idea that enemies may have been only a secondary cause of this suffering. For every mishap, whatever 5 the quarter from which it may come on the godly, is complicated with and embittered by the malignant joy of the wicked. But in v. 7 enemies are expressly designated as the real source whence the trouble springs. Whether they are Jews or heathen, or both, cannot be made out with certainty.
- (5) The confidence now expressed does not contradict the lamentation 8 to which has been already uttered. Nor does it indicate a change in the state of affairs. He who sets forth his lamentation before God is always confident that help will be found in Him.

Motes on Psalm 7.

- (1) Of the Benjamite Cush (or Cushi, according to the Greek text) nothing 7, I is known. In the Psalm itself there is no indication that points to David.
 - (2) The two parts of the verse wholly disagree with each other. Probably 4 two lines have fallen out: If I have done evil to him who is at peace with me, [and repaid my friend with hatred; if I have not, rather, returned good for evil,] and delivered him who is without cause mine enemy.
 - (3) Mine honor (or my glory) = my soul; cf. 16, 9 and the note on 57, 8.
 - (4) Text and translation are uncertain. But it is quite certain, from this 7 and the following verse, that the judgment is upon peoples, and that a people, namely, the people of JHVH, is praying. Only thus can the assertion JHVH judges the peoples become the motive of the prayer Judge Thou me, O JHVH.
 - (5) Lit. kidneys or reins, i. e. inward impulses; cf. 16,7; 139, 13.
 - (6) The section 12-16 does not appear to be the genuine continuation of 11 vv. 1-11. Cf. 19,6; 24,6; 27,6; 77,11; 95,7; 144,11.
 - (7) A verse which forms the liturgical close of the Psalm; cf. 19, 14.

Motes on Psalm 8.

- (1) We do not know whether Gittith here means belonging to the City of 8, 1 Gath, which probably had been destroyed before the Babylonian Exile, or belonging to a wine-press (= Song for the Vintage?), or whether it denotes a mode or key, or a musical instrument. Cf. the titles of Pss. 81.84.
- (2) The continued adoration of Jhvh is ensured by the next generation. 2 35 Enemies trouble themselves in vain.
- (3) The verbs are preterits. How God distinguished man, when He first 6 created him, is what we are told. The reference to Gen. I is evident, especially in the prominence given to man's close relationship to the Divine Nature, and to that dominion over the animals which depends on this relationship. These 40 prerogatives inspire the poet with an enthusiasm against which the raillery of Job 7, 17 seems to be not wholly unjustified. It is important to know that Ps. 8 is older than Job 7, 17, and later than Gen. I. The linguistic affinities with Deuteronomy, especially with Deut. 32, also merit attention.

Motes on (Psalm 9.

- (1) This is perhaps the catch-word of some song, to the melody of which 9, I the Psalm was to be rendered.
 - (2) In this Psalm the heathen are called the wicked, and the Israelites are 5 designated as the godly or the pious, literally, the lowly, the humbte (Heb.

'anawim, v. 186, i. c. those who submit to the will of Juvii; cf. Matth. 5.5. a 9 quotation from Ps. 37, 11).

- (3) A dramatic introduction of that cry of the godly which is referred to in 13 v. 12. This cry is not heard now; but it was heard in bygone days.
- (4) The gateways of death = the entrance to the underworld = the brink of destruction.
 - (5) The meaning of this term is uncertain.
 - (6) Sink back into nothingness. The heathen are to vanish from the earth, 17 and make way for Juvu's rule.
- (7) To the contrast heathen—Israel, the other contrast corresponds, Man's 19 rule—Juvus rule.

Motes on (Bsalm 10.

- (1) In the Greek Bible Ps. 10 is the continuation of Ps. 9; nor has it a 10, 1 separate title in the Hebrew text. The two Psalms exhibit a striking agreement 15 in their use of words, and originally formed but one alphabetical Psalm. The traces of the alphabetical arrangement of the verses (or, rather, of the stanzas) may still be followed from Ps. 9 into Ps. 10. But the order of the letters and the form of the Psalm as a whole have been disturbed. This happened, in the first place, by accident, and, secondly, through the attempts that were made 20 to restore the original. The unity of the Psalm has been thus made unrecognizable. In the text which we now possess very few traces of it can be found. For the triumph of Ps. 9, lamentation is substituted in Ps. 10, without any explanation. The distress described in the latter remains, and appears to be of a different kind from that which is mentioned in the former, more especially in 25 that it is not clear that the enemies are heathen. This certainly holds good of 10, 1-15, although, at the close, Ps. 10 reverts to the train of thought followed in Ps. 9: the heathen are destroyed out of Juvn's land, and the ardent desire of the godly finds a response.
- (2) He puffs at them = he despises them; (in undignified modern phrase, but 5 30 which exactly expresses the meaning by onomatopæia: he pooh-poohs them).
 - (3) Under his tongue, i. c. as a store from which the tongue draws at need. 7

Motes on (Psalm 11.

- (1) We do not know whether of David means by David, or on David, or II, I from David. It has been suggested that David is perhaps merely the name of 35 a post-Exilic guild of Levitical singers from whose hymnal the Psalm was taken (cf. the note on 39, 1). This suggestion, however, is very improbable.
- (2) The fate of the person here addressed is evidently connected with great historical convulsions: he is not a mere private man who can be selected arbitrarily out of the crowd; he is the representative of an important political party. 40 As a matter of course, this is the party of the righteous and upright. Whether their opponents be Jews, or heathen, or a combination of both, cannot be determined.
 - (3) Verses 2 and 3 are a continuation of the speech made by the despon-3 dent advisers. Cf. Pss. 3.4.
 - (4) This holy Temple is in heaven, not in Zion.
- 45 (5) Juvu is at present hiding His face, and seems indifferent to the rights 7 of His godly ones. But eventually He will interpose and do them justice. The deeds which He will then perform in the world will be the manifestation of His countenance. The phraseology appears to be derived from the arrangements 50 at an Eastern court, where it is difficult to reach the king's presence and obtain a hearing for a request, but where, a hearing once obtained, the suit is generally won.

Motes on Psakm 12.

- (1) This is not a quotation from a prophecy. It is the vigorous utterance, 12,5 in poetic style, of faith in Jhvh's readiness to help.
- (2) Us = the godly and poor of v. 5. From v. 5 onward it is plain that the 7 5 Psalm is not a complaint that the world at large is corrupt, but that the ill-treatment spoken of is that which the godly in Judah endured from the godless (v. 5). And these godless men appear to be Jews.

Mote on Psakm 13.

(1) The focs are not the enemies of a single pious man, in the concrete, I3, 4 to but their enmity is partisan and directed against piety itself, in the abstract. In the misfortune of every pious man they discern the defeat of the cause of piety, although that cause be the cause of JHVH Himself.

Motes on (Psakm 14.

- (1) It is the heathen who are spoken of. For some time past they have 14, 15 run riot in the world, and have been specially outrageous against Israel (v. 4), as though there were no God, or as if Jhvh were not God. Jhvh, however, suddenly interposed, and made His presence felt. This is related in vv. 1-5, and the wish of v. 7 is connected with the narrative: Oh that now, in this time of need, Jhvh would renew the help which then came in with such decisive 20 effect! V. 6 holds a somewhat obscure position between vv. 1-5 and v. 7: according to the text of Ps. 53, it forms part of the narrative of past events (cf. Ps. 36).
 - (2) JHVH is the speaker.
- (3) i. c. the practical conviction upon which the godly found their life, viz. 6 25 the assurance that Jhvh is their refuge. The wicked, who in this passage are heathen, would fain prove, by the evidence of facts, that this conviction is erroneous.
 - (4) To turn the captivity = to change misfortune into prosperity (cf. 126,4). 7

Motes on Psalm 15.

- 30 (1) As citizens of the Theocracy, the Jews are sojourners (see on Levit. 17,8) 15, 1 with Jhvh, who Himself dwells at Jerusalem (the Mountain of Jhvh), and permits them to dwell with Him. But this is only on condition of their complying with His demands. Probably the Psalm has a polemical reference to those who presume to reckon themselves members of the Theocracy, and, indeed, to use a 35 commanding tone in Jerusalem, while, at the same time, they take bribes, practice usury, and shamefully ill-treat the godly worshipers of Jhvh.
 - (2) The OT, of course, makes no distinction between usury and interest. 5 The early Church followed its example.
- (3) The assertion is not to be taken too literally. The wicked man also 40 thinks (10,6): I cannot be shaken; I remain for ever.

Motes on Psalm 16.

- (1) The meaning of Michtam (or Miktam; cf. Is. 38,9) is wholly unknown. 16,1
- (2) The holy ones and the superb ones are the idols of v. 3.
- (3) The Hebrew word may mean either idots or sorrows (32, 10). The 45 former must be intended, because the plural pronouns which follow certainly refer to beings to whom offerings are presented and whose names men invoke. 16 Those others (v. 4) are heathen or men of heathen sentiments. The speaker is the godly Israel, which must, at this time, have been exposed to the seductions of idolatry. The tone of this beautiful Psalm is enthusiastic, not hostile and bitter. 5 Juvu's friends are in peril, but are not undergoing actual persecution for their religion.

- (4) JHVH Himself is the possession and inheritance of Israel, i.e. of the 6 people, not of the individual Israelite.
- (5) The determination not to fall away into heathenism is ascribed to Juvii's 7 to admonition, with which, however, the deepest feelings of the good man are in complete accord.—For thoughts, literally reins, compare the note on 7,9.

(6) My honor = my soul; cf. 7, 5.

(7) There is no need to substitute the singular (Acts 2, 27) for the plural 10 of the Received Text. The speaker is not a mere individual. Pious Israel 15 will not succumb to the danger with which it is threatened by heathenism. When fighting for Jhvii's cause, it will not be destroyed.

Motes on Psalm 17.

- (1) i. e. at a time when I do not expect a search, when I should be 17,3 unable to conceal anything impure or wrong about me.
- (2) Of Thy favor show noteworthy tokens, so that friend and foe may 7 know assuredly on whose side Thou art. The petitioner is not a private person, but holds a position of public importance. He is the representative of Juvu's cause as against the wicked, who direct their animosity specially against him. In almost all the Psalms we observe the same fact; and this has led to their being commonly ascribed to a royal author. But the person who speaks in the name of the community is not necessarily its official representative. To ensure his sharing and expressing the common sentiment, he need be only a member of the body. It would be, indeed, remarkable if the Psalms were composed exclusively by kings or chiefs.
- 30 (3) The sudden transition from the plural to the singular is not at all unusual 12 in Hebrew speech and thought.
 - (4) The first two lines of v. 14 are quite unintelligible, owing probably to 14 their having been mutilated.
- (5) The second half of v. 14 contains no doubt a curse on the enemy. 35 What is stored up for them is the wrath which is treasured up or predestined in Heaven (Rom. 2,5). To store up is the exact phrase for to predestinate. The Jews look on that which God will hereafter effect on earth as already concealed or stored up in Heaven.
- (6) Connected as they are with I shall look on Thy face, the following words, 15 40 at awaking, can have no other meaning than when Thou awakest, not when I awake. God is now hiding His face and sleeping; God awakes, when He uncovers His face and shows that He is still there.
 - (7) Lit. shape or form, look, appearance; cf. Num. 12, 8; Deut. 4, 12, 15.

Motes on Psalm 18.

(1) It is not merely in the title of Ps. 18 that the claim to Davidic author-18, 1 ship is advanced: the Psalm itself professes to come from him. But this claim must be disallowed. The decisive argument against it is furnished by the total absence of definite historical allusions. If David reviews his own wonderful history we expect to hear something fresh and personal, not a collection of 50 general phrases which might just as well be composed by a Jew who lived after the Exile. How very different, in this respect, is the Inscription of the Moabite 18 King, Mesha (cf. note on ls. 15, 1.4), in which he casts up the account of his life, and thanks his god for his marvelous dealings! And, although we must admit that, in other respects, Jud. 5 and 2 Sam. I are not closely analogous, we are 5 justified in pointing to these old Israelitish poems as being totally unlike Ps. 18. Nor is it credible that the genuine David would blend all his enemies, Saul and Absalom, the Philistines and the Arameans, in one indistinguished mass, as though they had all conspired together to engage in a mighty struggle against him (cf. v. 18, they confronted me in the day of my calamity). Can it be believed 10 that an experienced warrior would describe his fight as a falling into water, and as being drawn out by Jhvh? Would he have reckoned himself among humble people (v. 27), and limited his share in the merit of his victories to his having observed JHVH's statutes and ordinances? Would be have spoken of David and his descendants for ever (v. 50)? Hardly; these are all indications that 15 the Psalm was written in the later days of Judaism. Nor does its reappearance as 2 Sam. 22 conflict herewith. The poems 2 Sam. 22 and 23, 1-7 form part of an appendix to the Books of Samuel. They are interpolated at a very unsuitable place and interfere with the natural connection between 21, 15-22 and 23, 8-39. If they had been received at an early date into the context of the history, we 20 should have been obliged to acknowledge at least their antiquity. As it is, they stand quite apart from the context. But, if Ps. 18 was not written by David, it is a poetic device, herein differing from the Psalms which are ascribed to him merely in their titles. It is the product of an age when pseudonymous literature flourished among the Jews (cf. Ps. 144).

- on Ps. 89, 17.
- (3) Juvh, as usual, descends in a storm from heaven (or from Sinai) upon 7 the earthly battle-field, where His helpful presence is sorely needed. But the distress which David is suffering at the hands of the enemy is depicted under 30 the figure of a struggle with the waves of the sea, where he is in danger of drowning (cf. note on 69, 1).
 - (4) The Cherub here is the thunder-cloud; cf. notes on Ezek. 1,4-13.
- (5) We should not have expected the enemies to cry to Jhvh. Either the 41 expression is an inexact one, or the enemies are Israelites. But the historical 35 David does not triumph over the death of Saul (2 Sam. 1) or of Absalom (2 Sam. 19).
 - (6) Civil wars appear to be meant; cf. Isaiah 55, 5.

(7) David and his descendants for ever is that Messianic article of the 50 Jewish creed which was held fast when faith and facts presented but slight cor-40 respondence to each other. The entire Psalm appears to have been composed for the purpose of strengthening the Messianic hope that the ideal image of David would be seen at last by his people.

Motes on Psalm 19.

- (1) Not, one day hands it on to the next; it would have to hand on the 19,2 45 story to the night following it, and this, in turn, must deliver it to the next day. Rather, The blue vault tells it by day, the starry heavens teach it by night.
 - (2) An extremely prosaic intimation that the voice of v. 2 is not to be taken 3 literally.
- (3) There does not refer to any of the words which now stand before it. 4 50 A clause seems to have fallen out, which mentioned the antipodean world, the waters of the ocean, where the sun spends the night.
 - (4) The praise of God's revelation in Nature is now suddenly followed by 6 the praise of His revelation in the Law. No connecting link is supplied; the 19 second theme is not taken up as a complement to the first; the first breaks off at v. 6 without having been exhausted. On this account it is supposed that the Psalm has been formed out of two fragments which had no original connection 5 with each other. But the language and the contents agree in proving that both portions belong to the same late period.

(5) Enlightening the eyes = refreshing, reviving the heart (1 Sam. 14, 27, 29, 8

(6) The arrogant are the heathen; the Servant is Israel (cf. the note on 13 ls. 42, 1; 52, 13; 61, 1, and note 4 on Ps. 22). If the heathen bear rule this 10 is a proof of Israel's guilt; if the reverse be the case Israel knows itself to be righteous before Jiivi, and free from gross transgression.

(7) A liturgical concluding verse; cf. 7, 17.

Mote on Psalm 20.

(1) The person who is addressed is the anointed one of v. 6, the king of 20, 1 v. 9. Accordingly, it would seem that this Psalm (and, on the same grounds, the following one) belongs to the days of the kingdom of Judah. This, however, would remove the two Psalms entirely out of the sphere to which The Psalms, as a whole, belongs; and there are hardly any other points suggesting an earlier date. On the other hand, they cannot be dated as late as the period of the 20 Maccabean kings (105-63 B. C.), who were hardly called kings in the sacred tongue. This we cannot understand.

Motes on Psalm 21.

- (1) It seems that this king, if he be already a king, has not inherited the 21,3 crown, but has won it. It may be, however, that a hope for the future, rather 25 than a description of existing facts, is here expressed.
 - (2) He is priest, as well as king, and stands before JHVH (Jer. 30, 21; 6.6 also Ps. 110, 4).

Notes on Psalm 22.

(1) Probably the catch-word of an old song, to the tune of which this Psalm 22, 1 30 was sung.

(2) Thou sufferest no attack upon Thyself and Thine.

- (3) If these be silenced, the foundation whereon Thy worship rests gives way. V. 4 supplies the reason why JHVH should not forsake the petitioner; but this reason is valid only if the petitioner is the true Israel. Hence, too, the I= 35 we in v. 6 ff.
 - (4) Is. 41, 14; 49, 7; 52, 14; 53, 3 show that this refers to Israel as the 6 Servant of JHVII.
 - (5) Shaking the head is sometimes a gesture of sympathy (see note on 7 69, 20); here it is one of mockery (as at 44, 14; 109, 25).
- 40 (6) A child's relation to JHVH does not begin immediately on its birth, nor to is it of so specific a nature as is here described. As in other passages, Israel is personified sometimes as an aged man, sometimes as a child; so, in the one before us, it is Israel that is intended. Israel came into being, and JHVH entered into relationship with His people, at one and the same time. And the fact that 45 JHVH stood at its cradle is a reason why He should not forsake it in its old age.
 - (7) The animals (butts, dogs, lions) no doubt represent heathen. In v. 7, 12 also, we might think of heathen, seeing that from the times of Jeremiah and Ezekiel (628-573 B. C.) downward we have clear evidence of the malicious hatred entertained by the neighboring peoples against the Jews. This hatred 22 was 'aroused because the Jews deemed themselves superior to others, and emphasized their peculiarities. The apparent distinction between the active opponents (v. 12 ff.) and the malicious onlookers (v. 7 f.; v. 17) is not a very 5 sharp one; for the onlookers, too, hope to share in the booty (v. 18).

- (8) Bulls of Bashan (Am. 4, 1) = powerful, noble bulls; of the best breed.
- (9) My hands and feet like a lion is quite unintelligible here. The reading in 16 the Greek Bible, They have dug through my hands and feet, is equally inexplicable in this connection. Besides, the Hebrew word, which the Greek translator to thought he read, can hardly mean to pierce through (notwithstanding 40,6). In the Gospel, also, there is nothing said about the piercing of the feet of Jesus. The passage appears to have found a place here by pure accident.
 - (10) They look on me as already dead.

(11) My lonely life or my solitary soul; cf. 35, 17.

TRANSPORTATION OF COLOSSAL WINGED BULL.

(Yulgate, unicornis); cf. Pss. 29,6; 92,10; Job 39,9; Num. 23,22; 24,8; Deut. 33,17 (contrast Is. 34,7). The unicorn is described by Aristotle, Pliny, and other ancient writers, and even in modern times the belief has been expressed* that the unicorn is an animal actually existing. African explorers heard reports concerning unicorns in several regions of the Dark Continent and occasionally found even pictorial representations of the animal. All these pictures, however, are probably merely profile delineations of straight-horned antelopes, just as we find, on the Assyrian and Babylonian monuments, stags, ibexes, cows, bulls, &c., with one horn instead of two (see the plate facing p. 20, No. V). The inability of the ancient Assyrian artists to draw according to the laws of perspective is manifest in the picture representing the transportation of a colossal winged bull.

In medieval collections horns of the rhinoceros (cf. AVM Is. 34.7) or tusks of the narwhal (also called unicorn fish or unicorn whale): figured as horns of 22 the unicorn. Under the name of fossil unicorn's horn they were formerly of great repute in medicine, and, when grated, were regarded as a powerful antidote to all poisons. The jewel-chamber of the Margrave of Culmbach, at the 5 Castle of Plassenburg, contained four "unicorn's horns," gratings of which were given only to princes who were deemed to have been poisoned. The Republic of Venice is said to have offered, in vain, 30,000 ducats for one of these horns in 1559.

^{*}For instance, by the German scholar J. W. von Müller, who published a special book on the subject (Stuttgart, 1853).

The idea of the existence of the unicorn seems to be derived from Persian sculptures at Persepolis and Susa. We see there the King struggling with a powerful one-horned animal (No. IV); on another relief a one-horned animal is attacked by a lion (No. I). This animal is, of course, a bull with two horns and cloven feet, although it looks like a horse. The Persian reliefs were undoubtedly influenced by Assyro-Babylonian sculptures. On the reliefs from 15 the North-Palace of Assurbanipal (the Sardanapalus of the Greeks, B. C. 669–625) we see the King grasping a lion by the ear and piercing his body with a spear (No, III). The Persian relief (No. IV) seems to be based on a combination of the two Assyrian reliefs, Nos. II and III. The imagination of the Persian artist developed into a powerful horn the arrow in the forehead of the lion and 20 the ear of the lion which the King grasps. (See the plate facing p. 20.)

For the rendering unicorn of AV, the RV has substituted wild on, because the Hebrew word reem has this meaning in Assyrian. But in Arabic the name is applied to the leucoryx (Oryx leucoryx), a powerful antelope that can cope with lions and tigers, and whose large sharp-pointed horns (more than three 25 feet long) are a formidable weapon; whereas the horns of the wild on are somewhat short in proportion to the size of the animal. If we read, therefore, c. g. in Ps. 92, to: My horn juts on high like that of a unicorn, the rendering wild on would seem to be less suitable.—P. H.]

^{*} The horn of the unicorn in the British royal coat of arms is the tusk of a narwhal. This left upper incisor of the male narwhal, which projects from the jaw like a horn, is sometimes nearly ten feet long and consists of the hardest ivory.

(13) Not only the worship and praise of JHVH in the religious assemblies of 22,27 the Jews, but also the conversion of the heathen, depend on the preservation of the petitioner (cf. 51, 13 and Isaiah, cc. 40 ff.).

Motes on Psalm 23.

- 5 (1) The shepherd tends the whole flock, not a single sheep. Jhvh is the 23, I shepherd of Israel, not of the individual Israelite. The title shepherds in the OT is regularly employed in the transferred sense of shepherds of the peoples, kings. Any further interpretation of the imagery is modern.
- (2) In the later OT literature (Is. 40 ff., Job, Psalms) righteousness has a 3 to double meaning, derived from legal terminology: a man is righteous, i. e., is innocent; or he obtains right, i. e., wins his suit. Righteousness, therefore, is (a) the characteristic of one who is right, an inherent moral quality; and (b) the condition of the man who has obtained right, whose righteousness has been recognized; an external consequence of the status justificationis, depending on 15 the judge. The recognition of the righteousness of the righteous, his justification by God, consists in God's blessing him, rescuing him, granting him victory. That is the objective evidence of his righteousness for himself, as well as for everybody else; and he requires it as a sure sign of his own piety and of the favor of JHVH. We can thus understand that righteousness, as the state of one who 20 has obtained right from God, is equivalent to good fortune and welfare. Success is looked upon as a divine sentence. We are, therefore, justified in speaking of inner and outer righteousness; and they stand to each other as actuality stands to appearance (cf. 5, 8; 24, 5; 35, 27; 69, 27). See also note 4 on Ps. 31.
- (3) Because He is called the God of Israel, and cannot leave Israel in 25 straits without exposing Himself to the jeers of the heathen. Cf. also 25, 11; 31, 3; 79, 9; 109, 21; 143, 11.
 - (4) In spite of my enemies (31,19), and to their vexation. The words 5 might be spoken of citizens besieged, who, although access to them is cut off, are better supplied with food than the besiegers. Cf. also 138,7.
 - (5) JHVH dwells in Jerusalem, and His own people dwell with Him, under 6 His protection, as members of His household. Such is the idea involved in the Theocracy, and the summary of all that those who belong to it can desire:

Motes on Psalm 24.

(1) The earth is a disc floating on the ocean.

- (2) An idea of the reverence due to the God of Israel may be gathered from that greatness of His which dominates the world, and is depicted in vv. 1.2. The missing link between vv. 2 and 3 is to be thus supplied.
- (3) It is hardly possible to make out a connection of vv. 7-10 with the pre-6 ceding verses. For in vv. 3-6 we are told the conditions on which men may 40 come to Jhvh at Jerusalem, whereas here the allusion is to an entry of Jhvh Himself into Jerusalem.
- (4) The heads of the gates can hardly be the lintels or arches. We must 7 not understand the words too literally. All that is meant is that the gates are to carry their heads high (cf. 83,2) because of the distinction they have gained 45 by Juvu's solemn entrance through them. The occasion, no doubt, was some triumphal return from a campaign at the head of the Israelite army (see p. 175).
 - (5) The adjective primeval, applied to the gates of Jerusalem, deserves 9 attention. In David's time they were not ancient enough to be thus described.

Motes on (Psalm 25.

- (1) This alphabetical song (cf. p. 163, l. 28) is an epitome of that world of 25, 1 religious thought and of that religious vocabulary which we find in the Psalms. LUTHER rightly appreciated it as such. The poet everywhere keeps the entire 5 community in view, but in such a manner as to leave each individual at liberty to appropriate for his own benefit the truths which belong to the whole.
 - (2) The opposing party, whose sentiments were heathenish.
 - (3) The godly are in a difficult position, in which they desire to act rightly 4 so as to secure JHVII's approval and blessing (cf. vv. 8.9).
 - (4) By the compassion of Juvu, which has been ever thus from the first, 6 nothing else can be meant than His compassion toward Israel, whose representatives the faithful deem themselves to be.
- (5) According to the view of the history of Israel which was maintained by 7 the Prophets, Israel, in her early days, was constantly unfaithful. JHVH's displeasure at this has been shown by the banishment of Israel from His presence; but, even after the close of the Exile, His anger seems to display itself occasionally.
- (6) From the use of the word God instead of Juvu, and from the fact that 22 the alphabet is exhausted in v. 21, it may be inferred that this verse is a later 20 addition. An exactly similar case is found in 34, 22.

TRIUMPHAL RETURN OF AN ASSVRIAN KING.

Motes on Psalm 26.

- (1) In Thy faithfulness (or in Thy truth, 25,5) = on Thy trustworthy way, 26,3 which is a safe one, and leads to the goal (cf. 86, 11; Gen. 24,48). The words (foring-)kindness (or love, 85, 10) and faithfulness are generally united, almost 25 like a standing formula. They do not mean mercy and truth.
 - (2) The figure is not quite clear. We cannot look upon innocence either as 6 the medium or as the consequence of the washing. Both here and at Ps. 73, 13 the idea is: I behave blamelessly, not, I declare myself to be guiltless (cf. Deut. 26 21, 6; Matth. 27, 24). Only the man who has guiltless hands can draw high to Jhvii with a good conscience,—this is the connecting thought which binds together the two statements of the verse.

(3) The wicked, who are swept away by the judgment, are described as 9 high officials and judges; cf. 28, 3.

Motes on Psalm 27.

- (1) To enjoy in the Temple the sweetness of His presence. The speaker 27,4 expresses the desire of the Congregation. War is not waged against an inditional; it is not round about one man that armies and enemies encamp. Nor is it an individual, but Israel, that dwells in Jhvh's house as His ctient and sojourner (cf. notes on 15,1; 36,7; 92,13; 146,9). The house of Jhvh is the Theocracy, which has for its centre Jerusalem and the public worship there. The contrast with this is expulsion from the house of Jhvh (Hos. 9, 15), such 15 as befell the people at the time of the Exile.
 - (2) This appears to refer to war, from which the Jews feel themselves 5 secure in Jerusalem.
 - (3) The change of mood in the following lines is so complete that it is 6 hardly possible to believe in the unity of the Psalm.
- 20 (4) The Servant of Jhvh is the godly Israel; compare because of my foes 9
 - (5) Not to be understood literally, but = all who may be naturally expected to help. Israel is very frequently called an orphan (cf. 68, 5; 94, 6).
- (6) The incompleteness of the verse is a beauty, and by no means indicates 13 a mutilation of the text.

Notes on (Psalm 28.

- (1) Cf. note on Ps. 26, 9. In this passage, again, the wicked are a clearly 28, 3 defined set of people; the fierce hatred which the godly bear to them is not capable of explanation on merely general grounds.
- 30 (2) They do not believe in the approaching judgment. They do not note 5 the signs of its approach. The thought is derived from Is. 28.
 - (3) The anointed is the people (84,9; 89,38.51; 105,15; Habak. 3,13). 8 Cf. the note on Is. 61, 1 (ibid. p. 196, 1.45).

Motes on Psalm 29.

- 35 (1) In Ps. 96,7 the nations stand in the place which the Sons of God take 29,1 here. Judaism has turned the heathen gods into angels, commissioned by Jhvh to govern the various nations (Deut. 4, 19; Dan. 10, 13; cf. Pss. 58 and 82). The secondary meaning of to ascribe honor is to acknowledge superiority. Jhvh's pre-eminence above the gods of the peoples consists in His being the God of 40 heaven, i. e. of the world (68, 34; 96, 5; 103, 19).
 - (2) For the scene, cf. v. 10. Jhvh is holding a solemn assize.—Hoty 2 adornment is not priestly apparel, but such as is reserved for occasions when worshipers appear before Jhvh.
- (3) In Palestine storms usually travel from the sea landward.—The God 3 45 of majesty = the God of Nature; Nature, being God's work, is called majestic.
 - (4) The Phænician name of Mount Hermon; see Deut. 3, 9.—For unicorn, 6 see the note on 22, 21.

1.7

(5) That is, in the desert between Canaan and Egypt; cf. H. C. TRUMBULL, 29,8 Kadesh Barnea, New York, 1884, pp. 31-43. The wilderness of Kadesh is an extensive hill-encircled stronghold, the strategic key to Canaan; within striking distance of all the main roads from East, West, and South.

WILDERNESS OF KADESH.

5 (6) Sitting is the posture of a judge. It is in order that He may judge, 10 that JHVH appears in the storm. The storm is the opening of the Assize.

(7) The object of Jhvh's judgment is to do justice to His people.

Motes on Psalm 30.

- (1) David never dedicated a temple. The dedication of the Temple by 30, 1 Solomon was not contemporaneous with a deliverance from great distress, nor do we find it called Chanukkah. The Chanukkah is that Jewish feast which took its rise from the events (165 B. C.) described 1 Macc. 4, 52. From very ancient times our Psalm was used in the liturgy of that feast, although it is not at all probable that it was composed expressly for that use.
 - (2) The foes are heathen.—(3) Similarly Psalms of Solomon I, 3.
 - (4) G note on 6, 5. (5) Literally, my honor; cf. note on 7, 5.

Motes on (Psalm 31.

- (1) He does not plead in his own name alone. He feels with and for the 31.3 Congregation. Hence the expressions lead and guide, which are used of the 20 pasturing of the flock, hence also for The Name's sake (cf. note 3 on Ps. 23).
 - (2) Compare Psalm 16, 3, 4; Jonah 2, 8.
- (3) As yet we have not reached the position of v. 19 ff. At v. 9 ff. the com- 7 plaint of vv. 1-6 is resumed; and it would cause confusion if exultation came in momentarily, and broke the continuity of mood. Our translation is an attempt, 25 perhaps somewhat forced, to overcome this difficulty.

- (4) i. c. my punishment. Guilt, like righteousness (23, 3), has a twofold 31, 10 meaning. It is the quality of the guilty man, and it is the condition of the one who has been pronounced guilty, and condemned to punishment.
- (5) The words because of my foes belong to v. 10. They have been incor- 11 5 porated in v. 11, where they do not fit in the least, only because the illness was regarded as a real illness, and not one caused by men. For illness caused by enemies, cf. 6, 7. The open foes are distinguished from the false, fair-weather friends. Yet they do not seem to be thought of as occupying different camps.

(6) Forgotten by acquaintances and friends, not by JHVH.

- (7) Borrowed from Jer. 20, 10. Jeremiah is the model followed by the 13 congregation of the pious in later days; one might almost call him the nucleus out of which the congregation developed. The Israel that had gone before was summed up in him; the new Israel grew out of him. He exercised a larger influence than any one else in forming the pietism of post-Exilic times. Moreover, 15 the qualities ascribed to the wicked (i. c. the enemies) in vv. 18.20, point to partisanship and intestine divisions; amidst these the tongue is the readiest weapon, although other weapons may be employed as well.
- (8) Like most of the Psalms, this one did not spring from a merely tran-19 sient experience. It glances back over a longer period within which the situa-20 tion and mood have changed,—have been, in fact, reversed.
- (9) If the traditional reading in a strong (or fenced) city were correct, a 21 most important and unsuspected element in the situation would be supplied. The Psalm might then date from the time of Nehemiah (430 B. C.), when the Jews, in spite of all kinds of open and secret enmity on the part of the Persians 25 and of the neighboring peoples, succeeded in fortifying Jerusalem, and holding their ground. Furthermore, it would be possible to see, in the peculiar use of regard (Heb. shômĕrîm) of v. 6, an allusion to the Samaritans (Heb. Shômĕrônim), who were not at that time the strict monotheists which they became later. The points of proof, however, for attributing the Psalm in this way to a 30 definite historical period are far too isolated and ambiguous; the general impression which we get here (different from that given by Ps. 22) is one of keen party strife within the ranks of the Jewish people at a later date.

Motes on (Dsalm 32.

- (1) i. e., perhaps, a skitfut song (cf. Ps. 47,7), or a Psalm giving instruc- 32, 1 35 tion. Perhaps our Psalm is thus named, because of I will instruct thee (Heb. askîtěkha), v. 8.
 - (2) Guilelessness, uprightness, is the condition on which the pardon of sins 2 depends.
 - (3) When I failed to confess my sin.
- 3 40 (4) As it is punishment that makes men sensible of guilt, so is it the 5 removal of punishment that assures them of forgiveness. At the outset, the man who is here praying deemed himself unjustly treated, and would not admit that he had deserved the punishment. Cf. notes on 31, 10; 38, 4.
- (5) The prayer to JHVH for deliverance implies an acknowledgment that 6 45 the misfortune was deserved; without such a confession there can be no acceptable prayer. This makes clear the transition from v. 5 to v. 6.
 - (6) A gap. We miss the intimation that JHVH is now speaking.
 - (7) The line is so corrupt that it is not possible even to guess at the 9 general meaning.
- (8) The antithesis to this is found in 34, 19. 50

Motes on Psalm 33.

- (1) This Psalm is without title, doubtless because it found its way into the 33, 1 collection at a later date.
- (2) A clear reference to the Story of the Creation as told in Gen. \mathbf{r} (cf. 9 5 note 3 on Psalm 8).
 - (3) The heathen intended to put an end to Jiivii's congregation and to 10 the worship offered to Him on earth.

Motes on Psalm 34.

- (1) Abimelech (Gen. 20, 26) is a mistake for Achish (1 Sam. 21). No feat- 34, 1 to ure of this alphabetical Psalm (cf. p. 163, 1, 28) accords with the scene in which it is laid.
 - (2) Cf. 35, 5. For the angel of JIIVII, see the note on Jud. 2, 1.
 - (3) The grace of JHVII is tasted and seen; it is not enough to believe it. 8
 - (4) Frar of JHVH = Religion, Morality; cf. 19,9.
- 15 (5) The traditional position of vv. 15.16 is due to an alteration, the object 16 of which was to restore the usual alphabetical order.
 - (6) From Isaiah, chapter 57, verse 15.
 - (7) Death comes to the godly also, but not the evil, sudden death of catas- 20 trophe.
- 20 (8) Compare the note on Psalm 25, 22.

Motes on Psalm 35.

- (1) The second line of the verse seems to refer to an actual scene of judg- 35, 11 ment; and, if it be so, the first line must be understood literally (cf. 69, 4).
 - (2) i. e, the destruction of the pious which they wished for.
- 25 (3) Judge me = do me justice. The judgment is not terrible to the right- 24 eous; they always long and hope for it. They demand judgment against the wicked, in comparison with whom they know themselves to be in the right; although they are not pure toward God and cannot complain of any injustice in His chastisement.
- 30 (4) Cf. 40, 16. Right (1. 8) = righteousness; see note on 23, 3.

Motes on Psalm 36.

- (1) Heathen are meant, as in Ps. 14. The spirit of heathenism consists in 36, 1 revolt against Juvu and in untruthfulness. The heathen are specially regarded as rebels when they seek to use their power against the Theocracy (Ps. 2).
 - (2) The moral order of the world is as deep and stable as the natural.
- (3) The declaration that the beasts also are helped by God's judgment points to a special occasion, probably to a siege, when animals shared the sufferings of the people.
- (4) The children of men, who dwell in the shadow of God, are the Jews, 7 40 who live securely in Jerusalem. Since they belong to His household, as His clients (cf. note on Ps. 27), He takes care likewise that they are fed.
 - (5) Me = us.
 - (6) A clear reference to an historical event, when heathen tried in vain to 12 force their way into Jerusalem (Ps. 14,5).

Motes on Psalm 37.

- (1) The prosperity of the wicked is a sore offense and a painful mystery to 37, I the godly, because it shakes their belief that God makes a distinction between those who inquire after Him and those who have no desire to know Him.

 5 Hence, the exhortation to avoid indignation, and to wait patiently for the final judgment which will destroy the wicked, and justify the godly (cf. 39, 1.2; 49, 5; 73, 3; Eccl. 8, 11; Job 5, 2). According to the whole tenor of Jewish hope, the judgment does not take place in the other world, but on earth; and the result of it is, that the godly take possession of the land, the land which Jhvh has 10 promised to those who keep His covenant (vv. 9.11.18.22.27.29.34). This implies that Palestine is to be taken out of the hands of the heathen, and the Theocracy restored in all its ancient extent (Amos 9, 11 ff.), and also that, within the Theocracy, the true Israelites, not the false, shall bear rule. Cf. Matth. 5, 5.
- (2) This does not mean It is but to make bad worse; the idea is rather: Fret 8 15 not thyself, otherwise thou art apt to do evil and sin with thy tongue; cf. 39, 1; James 1, 20.
- (3) JHVH will bring him victorious out of the suit. The struggle between 33 the godly and the wicked is described under the simile of a suit at law; if the wicked gained it by their wickedness, piety would be an illusion. But JHVH 20 does not permit this. He decides eventually in favor of the good, rescuing them, and destroying the bad.

Motes on Psalm 38.

- (1) For the 'memorial,' see note on Levit. 2, 2 (ibid. p. 63, 1. 46; cf. p. 60, 38, 1
- (2) Compare note 2 on Psalm 6.

[1. 12).

- (3) Taken from Is. 1,6; not to be understood literally in either passage.
 (4) The punishment is felt as guilt; only through punishment do the people 4
- become conscious of guilt. Cf. note on 32, 5.
 - (5) Compare Psalm 69, verse 8.
 (6) Like the Servant of JHVH, Is. 53. Differently in Ps. 39, 9.
- (7) If JHVH is not moved to interpose by His regard for the man who is 16 praying, He will be so moved when He considers the enemies that are fought, and the cause which is fought for and suffered for. The enemies cannot be allowed to triumph; the cause must not go to the ground (cf. 69, 6).

Motes on (Psalm 39.

- of a post-Exilic guild of temple musicians (Neh. II, 17; 1 Chr. 16, 42; 25, 3; 2 Chr. 35, 15).
 - (2) Compare the note on 37,8 and contrast Jer. 20,9.
- (3) He knows only too well how short-lived and transitory is man. His 4 40 prayer Let me know, JHVH, must be, therefore, understood ironically (cf. Job 6, 11.12).
 - (4) The wicked look on the good man's misfortunes as a victory for them- 8 selves, and triumph in them; here, however, they are simply spectators, not authors, of the calamity.
- 45 (5) The tenor of vv. 10 ff. shows no difference in time and tone from that of 9 vv. 4-8; v. 10 is a simple continuation of v. 8, and stands in the closest connection with it. V. 9, on the other hand, breaks the connection violently. Its source cannot be ascertained.

- (6) When the client (see note on 27,4) is weakened and injured, the honor 39,12 of the patron suffers. Apparently, it is the Congregation that is speaking.
- (7) The Psalmist's resignation borders on despair. It is remarkable how 13 little he desires from JHVH. The present is cheerless; of a future world there 5 is no thought. Faith longs for sight, but longs in vain; yet it persists, though it is almost extinguished by the painful contradiction which experience brings. A prayer like this cannot be found except in the OT (cf. Job 7, 19.21; 10, 20.21; 14, 6.7).

Alotes on Psalm 40.

- to (1) Thou hast laid open to me the meaning. As the connecting link 40.7 between v. 6 and v. 8 (It is not offering that Thou desirest, but obedience to Thy commands), v. 7 can bear only a general sense, apart from any reference to a marked and special occurrence in the life of the poet, about whom, personally, we know nothing. Therefore the first half of the verse in the Received Text (Then I said: Lo, I am come) is not suitable in this connection. The book of the Law (literally the roll of the book) prescribed to me (cf. 2 Kings 22, 13), which is spoken of, in the second half, is, no doubt, a sacred book, probably the Law. The words By means of the roll of the book may be fitly joined to the words Mine ears hast Thou opened, which are evidently out of place in v. 6. We need not be surprised that it is by means of the Law that the present poet is led to understand JHVH's preference of obedience to sacrifice. We find, in our books, the thoughts with which we are in sympathy; the rest we pass over. But the book here referred to probably included the Prophets as well as the Law.
 - (3) The days of splendor are over; a change is come.
- (4) It is believed by some that vv. 13-17 (= Ps. 70) form an independent 13 poem, which was afterwards connected with Ps. 40, 1-11 by the insertion of v. 12. But, before we reach v. 12, at v. 10, the transition is anticipated. V. 10 tells us that Israel has not failed to render thanks to God. This is mentioned 30 expressly to obviate the explanation that ingratitude had led Juvii to change His treatment of His people. Conversely, therefore, Ps. 70 is a fragment.
 - (5) Compare Psalm 35, verse 26.
 - (6) Literally, Who say: Aha, Aha!; cf. 35, 21.25; Ezek. 25, 3; 26, 2; 36, 2. 15

Motes on Psalm 41.

- 35 (1) It is not granted to every good man to stand before Jhvit. This is 41, 12 the privilege of the priest, the king, or the prophet. To stand before Jhvit for ever belongs only to the priestly, or to the royal, race, or, as here, to the royal, priestly people, that is, Israel. The disease which has been previously mentioned (v. 8) is not a disease in the true sense of the word. It is a missortune caused by the wicked. These latter are fellow-countrymen of the good, and stand in manifold relations with them. Their enmity, therefore, is somewhat treacherous.
 - (2) A doxology which serves as a concluding formula to the First Book 13 of the Psalms.

Motes on Book 2.

THE Second Book (Pss. 42-72) is distinguished from the First by a preference for the appellation God (Heb. Elohîm) instead of the proper name Jhvh (cf. 53 with 14, and 70 with 40; see also note 4 on 45). In fact, we 5 have God, my God, instead of Jhvh, my God (43,4; 45,7, and frequently). This peculiarity, found in the Third Book also (e. g. God Sabaoth instead of Jhvh Sabaoth, 80,4.7.19) is due to a reviser. From the subscription to 72 we might infer that the Second Book consists wholly of Psalms by David, and that the succeeding Books contain Psalms by other authors; but, in point of 10 fact, the Second Book opens with non-Davidic Psalms, written by poets who appear nowhere else except in the Third Book. This is correctly attributed to an ancient error whereby Pss. 42-50 were transferred from the Third Book to the beginning of the Second.

Notes on (Psalms 42.43.

- (1) Korah and Asaph are not Psalmists, but families or guilds of Temple-42, I singers. Hence, the Psalms may have been attributed to them originally in just the same way that many German hymns are attributed to the Moravian Brethren: they belonged originally to a private collection, and subsequently found their way into the common Hymn-book.
- 20 (2) To behold the face of God = to come to the place of worship, which, 2 in this case, is Jerusalem (cf. Ex. 23, 17; 34, 23; Deut. 16, 16). And thirsts for God, in the preceding line, bears an allied meaning (cf. 43, 3). Cf. the note on Is. 1, 12.
- (3) A refrain, like v. 11; 43,5. Many Psalms of the Second Book have 5 25 refrains, c. g. 46.49.56.57.59.62.67.
- (4) Zion is the diminutive mountain. Palestine is the land of Jordan and of 6 Hermon. Zion is the one spot in all Palestine which is ever-present to the Psalmist's mind. [For Hermon the Hebrew has the Hermons, a so-called amplificative plural, equivalent to the gigantic Hermon; compare the rivers, 30 89, 25; 137, 1 = The Great River, i. e. the Euphrates.—P. H.]
 - (5) While God is opening the sluices of heaven, flood is poured on flood 7 here on earth. It is hardly needful to say that water is an image of distress and danger; cf. 69, 1.2; 124, 4.5.
- (6) This verse completely breaks the connection, and seems to have been 8 35 inserted here by pure chance. If it be omitted the second stanza will then have the normal number of six verses.
- (7) Ps. 43 has the same refrain as 42, and is not separated from the latter 43, I by a distinct title. Its contents show that it is the concluding portion of 42. The oppressors are here distinctly characterized as heathen, but they are content merely to mock at the Jews. The Temple is standing, and the legal ceremonial is kept up. He who is praying, however, cannot attend the service; he is away from Palestine, amid heathen surroundings.

Motes on Psalm 44.

(1) Our fathers.

45 (2) From bygone times the tradition has been handed down that Jhvh 4 drove out the heathen, and gave the Promised Land to His people, who are now undergoing a repetition of that experience; the very thing that is again required is the driving out of the heathen, and the maintenance of Israel's right to the Holy Land. Jhvh is ever Israel's king.

- (3) Hitherto, the fight with the heathen has been successful, but now the 44.9 Israelite army (which all through the Psalm is the speaker, and rightly regards itself as the representative of the people) has suffered a severe defeat which has placed everything in danger.
- (4) God's champions cannot understand why He disowns them, sceing that 17 toward Him they are conscious of unchangeable fidelity.
- (5) It is in defense of their religion that the Jews are now slaughtered by 22 the heathen, and are waging war against them. The only period when this happened was the Maccabean, in the second century 11. C.
- o (6) An impassioned prayer, uttered by those who believe that they have 23 done their part, and may now look that God shall do His part.

Motes on Psalm 45.

- (1) Probably the eatch-word of an older song, to the time whereof this 45,1 Psalm was to be sung; cf. the titles of Pss. 60.69.80. [Or the Hebrew 'al shoshannim may mean With Susian Instruments; compare With Elamite Instruments in the titles of Pss. 46.49.—P. H.]
 - (2) Literally a work (of art); poem is derived from the Greek poiein 'to make.'
- (3) Verses 3-5 do not justify the conclusion that the King is about to 3 20 enter on a campaign.
 - (4) Heb. VHYH (yihyéh), which a subsequent editor mistook for YHYH, i. c. 6 JHYH (Heb. Yahvéh; see note on 1, 2), and accordingly substituted Elohim = God (cf. Notes, p. 162, l. 28; 182, l. 3).
- (5) His own merits have brought him to the throne, and raised him above 7 25 his former equals. But this does not prove that he was not of royal blood (v. 16). Nor does the expression JIIVII, thy God oblige us to believe that he was an Israelite. The Jews were strongly disposed to take the smallest advances made to them by heathen potentates as meaning much more than was really intended. When heathen rulers showed any condescension toward Judaism, by 30 offering a sacrifice, for instance, at Jerusalem, the Jews were ready at once to acknowledge them as servants of Juvii.

The anointing refers to the coronation. Gladness = the fulfilment of man's highest wish, that is, the crown.

- (6) The scene is a marriage ceremony. The royal pair show themselves 8 35 to the people in front of the palace; from within issues the sound of harps.
 - (7) The poet would appear to be no longer young; he takes the poetic to liberty of addressing the bride as daughter.
- (8) Maiden of Tyre does not mean a Tyrian maiden, but the City of Tyre 12 (cf. ls. 37, 22, and see note on Isaiah 1,8). A preceding sentence is lacking, 40 such as, perhaps: Damascus brings thee gifts, and the City of Tyre, &c.
 - (9) The last four lines are addressed to the King, not to his bride. 16
 - (10) Fruitfulness in sons is the desired blessing. V. 16^b appears to refer to a larger kingdom than Israel ever became; so also v. 12. The present is here spoken of, not the Messianic future.

Motes on Psakm 46.

- (1) This verse is a conditional sentence. The apodosis is the same refrain 46,3 (see note on 42,5) as vv. 7.11, which has here dropped out. If it be replaced, the first stanza, like the two following, will then have four verses.
- (2) The poet has already compared the powers which disturb the world to 4 50 the raging waters of the infertile sea. Adhering to the figure he speaks of God in Zion as a fertilizing stream, bringing prosperity and blessing to those 46 who dwell near it (cf. Is. 8, 5 ff.; 33, 21).

(3) The catastrophe depicted has given rise to an empire powerful enough 9 to repress all national animosities within its wide boundaries, and in this way 5 to establish God's peace. To suppose from this Psalm that Zion's situation was that which existed during the siege by the Assyrians (701 B.C.) is an utter mistake. The heathen are not assembled before Jerusalem, but are taken unawares in their own countries. A complete revolution in all the component parts of a great political system, such as was occasioned by Alexander the 10 Great (330 B.C.), would explain this Psalm,—a shaking of the whole ancient world, leaving only Jerusalem unshaken, and appearing to the Jews as Jhvh's preparation for the Messianic kingdom, (just as the destruction of the Babylonian empire by Cyrus in 538 B.C. had once seemed)—this is to be presupposed.

(4) The heathen are addressed.

Motes on Osalm 47.

(1) The jewel of Jacob, the object of his pride, is the Holy Land.

- (2) This verse refers to Jhvh's warlike entry into Palestine with Moses and 5 Joshua; vv. 3.4 relate to the same event. The Psalmist hopes that a second establishment of Jhvh's dominion is now succeeding to the first.
- 20 (3) This is the key to the understanding of the Psalm. The conversions 9 to Judaism, which became much more numerous after the days of Alexander the Great, gave rise to this lofty Messianic hope; they signalized the beginning of Jhvh's universal rule. The remarkable spread of Judaism among all the heathen at that time was undoubtedly a significant fact; it arose out of the 25 Messianic hope, to which, in turn, it gave fresh vigor.

Motes on Psalm 48.

- (1) Obviously this holy mount is not the mount of the Temple, but includes 48, 1 the whole of Jerusalem (cf. vv. 3.11).
- (2) Zion is called the extremest North, i. e. the true abode of God; in the 2 30 extremest North the gods dwell; cf. notes on 68,7; Is. 14,13; Ezek. 1,4; 28,13. [Or the extremest North may be a misplaced gloss on His hoty mount in v. 1.—P. H.]
 - (3) Compare notes on 1 Kings 10, 22; Is. 23, 6; Ez. 27, 12.
- (4) This seems to refer to what has preceded, in which case vv. 4-7 de-8 35 scribe a deliverance of Jerusalem from great danger in the remote past, to which a parallel has been furnished by the most recent experience. The former event must have been the retreat of Sennacherib, 2 Kings 19,36 (B.C. 701). Cf. the note on Is. 36, 1. In Ps. 48 the circumstances are not the same as in Ps. 46; it is not a world-wide calamity that is here spoken of, but simply the 40 fate of Jerusalem.
 - (5) This verse points to the wide spread of Judaism in all lands; every- 10 where people are interested in the fate of Jerusalem.
- (6) Jerusalem has escaped unscathed This is evident to any one who will 13 make the circuit of the city-walls. A siege, at least an imminent siege, is 45 referred to.
 - (7) The words unto death, Heb. 'al-mûth, in the Received Text, are a cor-14 ruption of Heb. 'al-'alamôth [according to GRÄTZ, perhaps, = swith Elamite instruments: (cf. Ps. 46).—P. H.], and belong to the heading of the Psalm following.

1S

Motes on Psalm 49.

- (1) Prominence is given to the universal, nay, to the philosophic nature of 49, r the problem, which is, in fact, genuinely Jewish, and the solution is quite the usual one: Death makes all equal, and strikes the man who has much to lose 5 harder than him who has little.
 - (2) Revealed to me from above.
 - (3) The Received Text reads: none can redeem his brother; but the point 7 is whether the rich man can redeem himself, not at all whether he can ransom his brother.
- o (4) V. 12 reappears as v. 20, and thus indicates a conclusion. The stanzas 12 are, however, of unequal length.
 - (5) These words represent an interpolation, which is extremely inappro- 14 priate here. It shows, however, most characteristically the longing of the Jews for Messianic rule.
- (6) The man who needs deliverance is not yet dead, but is in imminent 15 peril: Sheol does not yet possess him, but is stretching out its hand to seize him (16, 10; 30, 3). The positive comfort, that God may deliver the godly from sudden evil death, is better than the negative consolation that the ungodly cannot enjoy his happiness after death.

(Notes on Psalm 50.

- (1) This is the sigh of some ancient reader. It does not suit the context, 50, 3 and should be struck out. Verses 2 and 3 form only one verse.
- (2) Is this a reference to Ex. 24? The faithful here are the Israelites in 5 general, including the wicked.
- 25 (3) God comes forward, not to act, but to deliver a discourse; the theo-7 phany ends with a sermon.
 - (4) Cf. v. 23. The contrast with the foregoing is not sharply defined, unless 15 the payment of vows mean something else than the offering of sacrifices. Cf. 51, 17; 56, 12; 61, 8; 65, 1; 66, 13-15.
 - (5) Compare Proverbs, chapter I, verse 10 ff.

Motes on Psalm 51.

- (1) This title was suggested by v. 14; it prevents a proper understanding of 51, 1 the Psalm. It is not David who offers these petitions, but the Servant of Juvia, i. e., Israel (cf. 27,9). The iniquity is secret, not public; committed against 35 God, not man. The Servant believes that he is cast off by God. He prays for the restoration of his good conscience toward God, in order that he may execute his prophetic mission, the conversion of the heathen. The whole Psalm is based on Is. 40 ff. Cf. notes on Isaiah 42, 1 (ibid. p. 177).
 - (2) The absolution consists in the removal of the punishment; cf. vv. 8.12.
- 40 (3) In relation to the men who threaten him, i. e. to the heathen, the 4 Servant is guiltless. His iniquity, therefore, must have been against God alone. He does not know wherein it consists, but confesses it in advance, and acknowledges the righteousness of God.
- (4) Iniquity against God is inseparable from Israel ever since the begin- 5 45 nings of her history (cf. Ez. 16). It is, therefore, quite natural that her sins are ever-present to her eyes (v. 3). An individual is not here spoken of (see also Ps. 22,9). The Jews were far from imagining conception as the germ of original sin.
 - (5) It troubles him to be obliged to acknowledge God's righteousness 6 without understanding the reason therefor. If he could but get an insight into 51 the mystery his faith would be strengthened (cf. 90, 8).

- (6) By the clean heart is meant a joyous spirit, assured of the divine favor 10 (v. 12). The opposite to this is the troubled, not the impure heart.
- (7) So speaks the Servant of Jhuh. The holy spirit is the prophetic inspiration, the divine influence from which Revelation springs.
 - (8) That is, from peril of death. The danger arises from the heathen. As 14 against them, Israel is in the right, and can appeal to God's righteousness.
- (9) Zion now comes forward, in place of the Servant. There is no need 18 to regard this verse as a later addition. It seems to lead us into the times of Ezra (450 B.C.).

Motes on Psasm 52.

- (1) Compare 1 Sam. 22, 9. Here again is a title which does not corres- 52, 1 pond to the contents of the Psalm.
- (2) The person addressed is not an alien tyrant, but a Jew in high position (cf. c. g. Is. 22, 15). Opposed to the godly party there is a worldly party, whose representatives are to be found mainly among the chiefs of the theocratic commonwealth.

Motes on Psalm 53.

(1) Compare the Notes on Psalm 14.

53 · I

- (2) [Heb. Machtáth. This is perhaps the catch-word of an older hymn, the first line of which may have been: The sickness of Thy people heat, O God! It is possible, however, that Machtáth is the name of a musical instrument. Cf. the title of Ps. 88.—P. H.]
- of the narrative better than the parallel passage in Ps. 14, 5.6. In certain phrases, however, suspicion is aroused: thus in cast them off; again at the end of v. 5, where the Jews are not alluded to, but the heathen.

Note on (Psalm 54.

30 (1) The description of the enemies which the poem itself gives suits 54, 1 neither Saul nor the people of Ziph (1 Sam. 23, 19; 26, 1). The enemies are heathen; it is the Community that speaks. Cf. note on Is. 61, 10.

Motes on Psalm 55.

- (1) Compare Jer. 9, 2. As a rule, people would fain leave the wilderness for 55.7 35 the city.
 - (2) The Received Text reads: They go about it upon the walls thereof. 10 This is appropriate in 59,6.14, but not here. We should expect: Day and night do murder and bloodshed dwell therein.
- (3) The enemies are here unmistakably designated as internal ones (Pss. 13 40 35; 38; 41; 69). The chasm between the parties is very deep: murder and bloodshed reign in the city.
 - (4) Parties, not individuals, are described; not a close friendship, but a 14 national and religious association, which, among the Jews, was peculiarly intimate and sacred.

Motes on Psalm 56.

(1) Compare the note on Psalm 16, 1.

(2) The contrast between God, on the one hand, and man, or flesh, on the other, or, as we should phrase it, between God and the world, makes the men appear as heathen (cf. v. 7, the peoples). Nothing points to the Philistines of 56 Gath (1 Sam. 21, 11).

- (3) The Received Text reads my misery, Heb. nodi, and this word makes a 8 jingle with Heb. bĕnódĕkhá = in Thy jar (lit. waterskin), at the end of the followsing line.
- (4) Being the refrain, vv. 10.11 must form a conclusion to what precedes. 13 Consequently the last two verses, which imply an entirely altered situation, appear to be a later addition, but made by the original author: What I promised to pay Thee, if Thou wouldst deliver me from my distress, has 10 fallen due, now that Thou hast actually delivered me.

Motes on Psalm 57.

(1) Destroy not is an indication of the melody; cf. Is. 65, 8.

- (2) The situation is an extraordinary one. That Juvii is to exalt Himself over and against the whole world appears to imply that the enemies are 15 heathen (vv. 5.11; cf. v. 4^b, men). Saul, at any rate, is out of the question.
 - (3) There is a lack of correspondence in the various parts of the metaphor: 4 teeth must be understood figuratively, and tongue literally, whilst spears and arrows are literal, and sharp sword figurative.
- (4) The last two lines of v. 4 had better be taken as a separate verse, as 20 the two stanzas indicated by the refrain (vv. 5.11) have then an equal number of verses.
- (5) The translation my soul crouches down is but a make-shift. The 6 Hebrew verb does not mean to crouch down, intransitively, but, transitively, to bow down (or droop) the head, &c. (cf. Is. 58,5); nor do people crouch 25 down before a net.
 - (6) The following verses, 7 11 = Ps. 108, 1 5.
 - (7) Literally my glory or my honor; cf. 7, 5; 16, 9; 30, 12; 108, 2.
 - (8) This is best explained by assuming that the speaker himself lived 9 not in Judea, but in the midst of the nations, i. e. heathen.

Motes on (Psakm 58.

- (1) The gods are not human rulers. They are the divinities worshiped by 58,1 the heathen, and placed by Jhvh at the head of the nations (Pss. 29.82). They are held responsible for the conduct of their subjects. If they are righteous gods, they must maintain righteousness and justice within their domain. In 35 point of fact, their rule is thoroughly discredited by the disorderliness and licentiousness of their subjects (vv. 3-5). The godly Israelites suffer greatly through this. Seeing then that they fail in their duty, or are incompetent for their task, Jhvh Himself must interpose, and execute justice against the heathen in order that it may be seen that there is one Supreme Deity upon 40 earth who judges.
 - (2) The wicked here and the men of v. I are the heathen.

(3) The Received Text is unintelligible. (4) Literally fruit. 9.11

Motes on Psalm 59.

- (1) Here again the occasion mentioned in the title (1 Sam. 19, 11) entirely 59, 1 45 fails to correspond to the contents of the poem; the enemies are the heathen.
 - (2) So also v. 8. Particular heathen nations are, of course, meant in the 5 first instance. But the fight is also regarded as waged by heathendom as a whole against Israel. The root of the hostility lies in their religious differences. 59 For robbers thus sacrilegious, in the following line, we might put wicked traitors, because the heathen are regarded as rebels against Jhvh (cf. 36,1).

- (3) V. 6 recurs as v. 14, not far from the refrain in each case (vv. 9.17). 6
 5 Nothing is said about a siege of Jerusalem. The words which have been supposed to indicate a siege do not necessarily mean they go around (i. e. encompass) the city, which procedure might please the besiegers without hurting the besieged. Quite as admissible is the meaning they go about the city, they search through it to drag the pious out of hiding-places. And their barking, to blaspheming, and slandering agree better with this view. The heathen are doing as they please within Jerusalem.
- (4) This line shows that the blasphemy of the heathen is uttered directly 7 against Israel's God, whose vengeance they do not dread, because they do not believe in His existence. In v. 12 also, blasphemy is imputed to them as their 15 capital sin. The position of affairs is such as was to be found in Jerusalem in the period preceding the Maccabean War (167 B.C.).

(5) Cf. 2, 4.

(6) The tone of threatening deserves notice. 8.15

Notes on (Psalm 60.

- (1) The statement made in the title is based on the word Edom in v. 9. 60, I 20 Aram-Naharáim = Arameans on the banks of the Euphrates (cf. notes on Jud. 3, II); Aram-Zobah = Arameans north of Palestine between the Mediterranean and the Euphrates, in the neighborhood of Emesa, the modern Homs. The Valley of Salt (2 Sam. 8, I3; I Chr. 18, I2; 2 Kings 14, 7) is probably the Wâdy ct-Mith near the Dead Sea. For the Lity of the Law, see note on 45, I.
- (2) We have here a state of things similar to that in Ps. 44. The army of the Jews is defeated; it, therefore, appeals to God, and, relying on His promise, prays for help.
 - (3) That is, the Theocracy. The defeat has threatened the overthrow of 2 the sacred commonwealth.

(4) Verses 6-12 = Psalm 108, 7-13.

- (5) Similar words of Jhvh's are often found in the Psalms. They are not actual oracular utterances, sought and given, then and there. But they are ancient, well-known dogmas, uttered in oracular form. Here, for instance, we have the Messianic prophecy that the Theocracy shall one day recover 35 the boundaries which it had in David's time. Evidently the beaten army has been about to execute the fulfilment of the promise, and to reconquer Palestine.
- (6) To the several provinces of David's realm various grades of rank are 7.8 assigned. The conquered Moab and Edom are vessels of dishonor (Rom. 9, 21), 40 common domestic utensils, compared with Ephraim and Judah, the helmet and the sceptre.
 - (7) The Received Text reads: Who will bring me into the strong city? 9 (Heb. maçôr; cf. 108, 10), but Mazor must be a geographical name, like Edom in the following line. [Mazor seems to be a district in northern Arabia.—P. H.]

Me is equivalent to us (cf. notes on 36, 11; 118, 1; Isaiah 26, 8).

(8) A remarkably definite indication of locality.

Motes on Psalm 61.

(1) The situation resembles that in Ps. 60. Here, however, it is not an 61,2 army in the enemy's land that is described. A Jewish community, living 50 at a great distance from Judea, believes itself to be endangered by the neighboring heathen, and longs to be transported to Jerusalem (v. 4).

- (2) The wish to be led to Jerusalem is partly explained by the affliction 6r, 4 which the suppliants were enduring in their distant abode. But added to this was the recent rise of the Jewish state to a position far higher than hitherto attained, a height which satisfied the boldest hopes of the godly. The Macca-5 bean successes (167 B.C.) are the only events that can be fitly suggested. It was the rise of the Maccabean power which roused the hatred of the heathen against the Jews who dwelt among them, and thus brought the Jews into peril.
- (3) The Psalm opens with a wholly different prayer, but it is not unnatural 6 that it should close with a petition for the continued prosperity of the Theocracy. 10 The King belongs to the Hasmonean dynasty, but is not to be identified with Aristobulus 1. (105/4 B.C.), the son of John Hyrcanus 1. (B.C. 135-105) and brother of Alexander Jannæus (B.C. 104-78).
 - (4) The vows are fulfilled by an offering of praise (50, 14; 65, 1).

Motes on Psalm 62.

(1) Compare Notes on Psalm 39.

62, i

- (2) The danger is a public one, threatening the Theocracy (v. 8). It shows 3 itself in an onslaught on a prominent individual who is virtually the leader of the commonwealth. He is attacked by a Jewish faction which, while affecting piety, exerts a pernicious influence. From the sequence of Pss. 61.62.63 it 20 may be gathered, with much probability, that the prominent individual in our Psalm is the same who in Pss. 61 and 63 is entitled King.
 - (3) Lit., men are but a breath (cf. 39, 5.11; 144, 4). It contributes to our 9 comfort that those, who assail us and our chief, are but men.
 - (4) This is addressed to the opposing faction.

(5) Here, as everywhere in the OT, man's reward comes from God's grace. 12

Motes on Psalm 63.

- (1) This longing after God evidently does not spring from the pressure of 63, 1 a mere transient distress; it is felt at all times, and is not left unsatisfied.
- (2) I saw Thee in the sanctuary (73, 17) = 1 was exalted up to the very face 2 30 of God, which is unveiled to mortal man only at rare moments. The meaning is put beyond doubt by the following line, Beholding Thy power and glory. A ray sent from God, an augè Diós, as Pindar has it, has lighted on the man who is praying, and demonstrated God's graciousness, and awakened the knowledge that communion with Him is needful. But this rapt moment was not a 35 private and mystical experience. It was a deliverance vouchsafed by JHVH to Israel, shared by the suppliant, and serving afterward for his sustaining. It was a time of exaltation for the people, which raised the spiritual life of the individual to the very heavens. The people and the individual do not stand in contrast to each other. The religious life of the individual is most intimately 40 connected with the history of the community.
 - (3) Verses 2 and 4 correspond; v. 3 stands parenthetically between; in the 3 translation it has, therefore, been introduced after v. 4.
- (4) It is clear that the common sentiment of the pious community supplies is the background for the personal relation of the suppliant to God: the occasion 45 which decisively affected his religious life was an experience through which the entire community had passed.

Motes on Psalm 64.

(1) This Psalm deals with differences among Jewish factions.

64, I

(2) This account of the fulfilment of the prayer was appended at a later 7 date. Something, however, might be said in favor of the supposition that the 5 Psalmist himself is here anticipating the future.

Motes on Psalm 65.

- (1) To Thee the vow is paid = Thou hearest prayer in the line following. 65, 1 Deliverance makes obligatory the payment of the vow. Cf. 61, 8.
 - (2) This Psalm appears to have been composed for a festival.

- (3) Trespasses = affliction and distress; forgiving = delivering; cf. notes on 3 31, 10; 103, 1 (1, 34).
 - (4) Israel, or the community of the godly, is meant. They seem to have 4 been shut out from Jerusalem for a time.
- (5) Here, and in v. 8, the Jews are seen to be dispersed throughout the 5 world. The consequence is, that far beyond the limits of Palestine an interest is taken in the events that happen in Zion.
 - (6) The occurrences that succeed the deliverance are of no ordinary char- 8 acter.
- (7) The season of the year and the character of the festival give rise to a 9 20 thanksgiving for the bounties of Nature, and this is preceded by thanksgiving for the events that have happened, as it stands in v. 11: Thou hast crowned the graciousness shown to us in our history with the gifts of Nature.
- (8) After the thanksgiving for rain in v. 9, where the early rain in autumn 10 appears to be meant, we now have a prayer for more rain, probably the late rain 25 in spring. Consequently, the festival for which this Psalm was composed may have been the Passover.

Notes on Psalm 66.

- (1) David is not named as the author. This may be a mere oversight, or 66, 1 it may indicate that Ps. 66 found its way into this collection at a later date. 30 The situation and mood here described are precisely similar to what we find in Ps. 65. For a time Israel was oppressed and trodden down by the heathen, but now God has brought deliverance, and shown His power over all the heathen.
 - (2) The reference is to the Exodus.

- (3) The heathen are rebels (cf. notes on 2,2; 36,1; 59,5) whom Jhvh must 7 35 keep under strict watch, lest they rise against Him. Yet events have taken such a shape as to allow the hope that the heathen will acknowledge and praise Jhvh (vv. 8 ff.).
 - (4) By strict right, no human being could rule over the Theocracy; it is 12 God's prerogative.

Motes on Psakm 67.

- (1) The history of the world is sacred history. God guides and judges all 67, 2 the peoples, as well as Israel. Hence it follows that by His action in history His will on earth may be recognized. This Psalm is distinguished by the large-heartedness of its views.
- (2) Compare note 7 on Psalm 65.

45

Motes on Psalm 68.

- (1) To be understood in accordance with vv. 7.8, and to be translated, 68,4 as it is, in the present tense, like the Him who drives over the heaven of v. 33.
- (2) A preliminary allusion to the historical occurrence which the Psalm 5.6 5 describes. The orphans and widows (v. 5; cf. 94,6) are the forsaken and prisoners (v. 6); they are Jews, dwelling apart among the heathen (in Bashan, vv. 15.22), and oppressed by them. They are rescued by a Jewish army, and, with the exception of some self-willed individuals who prefer to dwell among the heathen, are brought to Jerusalem. The position of affairs is that of 1 Macc. 10 5 (167 B.C.); there is nothing to remind us of the deliverance from Babylon (537 B.C.).
- (3) According to the prevalent interpretation the Psalmist is not speaking 7 of that divine interposition in behalf of Israel which is now carrying out: the leading of Israel out of Egypt into the Promised Land, ages ago, is his 15 theme. But it is a mistake to assert that Jirvn cannot now come from Sinai. The use of this archaic expression (instead of from the North; cf. the note on 48,2 and Jud. 5,5) by no means compels us to place in the past the divine appearance which is here described (cf. v. 17). If we do thus date it back, we shall look in vain for the transition from type to antitype, from the hallowed 20 past to the realities of the present. This consideration is decisive. We have before us an impressive event belonging to the present: God has placed Himself at the head of His warlike people, and restored to them their inheritance. The accompanying rain reminds us of 65,9 and 67,6.
- (4) God fulfils the promise that the righteous shall inherit the land which 11 25 up to the present has been held by the wicked and the heathen.
- (5) The woman who remains at home (if we must render it thus) is pacific 12 Israel in contrast to the military states. The Psalmist is laying stress on the paradox that the poor and afflicted (cf. 82,3) have taken up arms, and have beaten kings accustomed to war. There is no ground for the assertion that 30 the division of the spoil was usually left to the women.
 - (6) The dove, again, contrasted with birds of prey, is Israel (cf. 74, 19 13 and the title of Ps. 56). The gold and silver, with which the dove clothes itself, is evidently taken from the booty.
- (7) These words are unintelligible here; they may have been derived from 35 Jud. 5, 16.
- (8) One of the most recent occurrences is here selected out of the many 15 which go to form the picture of the glorious present. On this event, spoken of in vv. 6.7.22, the Psalm specially dwells. The Jews who lived in Bashan were oppressed by their heathen neighbors. This arose from the envy and 40 jealousy of the high mountain-chain of Bashan toward the much lower mountain Zion (cf. note on 42,6), or, in other words, from the envy and jealousy aroused among the heathen by that unexpected elevation of the Jews which followed the Maccabean rising (167 B.C.). Ci. 1 Macc. 5.
- (9) Cf. 77, 13. Thy way is mysterious, literally Thy way is in holiness.
 (10) According to the context and to Gen. 49, 9 (From the prey thou wentest 18 up) = Thou hast returned victorious. The men whom God brings home to Jerusalem, as spoils from His campaign, are the Jews who are led back from the heathen land (v. 6).
 - (11) The shag-haired pate is a picturesque taunt, with no further significance. 21 (12) This is not an actual prediction: from what God has done they have 22 learned what He has said and determined. G. 75,4 and note 5 on 138,4.
 - (13) A new section, opening with the description of a procession. This 24 procession is not a march to war, but a celebration of victory, as we see 68 depicted on Assyrian monuments; cf. the note on 24,7.

ASSYRIAN TRIUMPHAL PROCESSION.

- (14) Zebulon and Naphtali, joined with Benjamin and Judah, show that the 27 Psalm belongs to a late date. We do not know precisely when Galilee began 5 to be so closely connected with Judea. Cf. Stade, Geschichte Israels, ii, 198 ff., Wellhausen, Israet. und Jüd. Geschichte², p. 247, and 2 Chron. 30, 10 ff.
 - (15) The Beast of the Reed alludes to Egypt; bulls (cf. 22, 12) refers to 30 the heathen princes, and calves to their subjects (cf. Jer. 46, 20.21).
- (16) The prayer Scatter the peoples who take pleasure in wars (the great 10 heathen powers) does not prove the impossibility of this Psalm's having been written during the Maccabean period in celebration of a victory gained by the warlike Israel of that time. Notwithstanding great victories and a constant state 34 of preparation for war, any warlike nation could have adopted that prayer.
- (17) The God of heaven and of the world, who rules in Nature, is at the 15 same time the God of Israel; cf. note on 29,1 (l. 40).

(Notes on (Bsalm 69.

- (1) For the figure, cf. vv. 14.15; 40,2; 124, 4.5; 144,7.
- 69, 1 (2) According to v. 4 the misfortune is occasioned by innumerable foes; 4 according to v. 5 (cf. v. 26) by God Himself. The suppliant does not deny that 20 God has cause to punish him (v. 5). But he intimates that, by allowing the punishment to be inflicted by the wicked, God gives the impression that He is on the side of the wicked, and in opposition to His own people who are suffering persecution for His sake, because they are faithful to His covenant (vv. 7.9).
- (3) Doubtless a proverbial expression, which in this place means merely: I am ill-treated by the authorities, and have not deserved it (cf. 35, 11).
- (4) It may be that the Psalmist here distinguishes between himself and the 6 godly; he is, no doubt, a member of their party, and in his destruction they see an overthrow of their cause; yet they are not destroyed along with him, 30 they are only disgraced when he perishes. Or else we must read succumb in me, i. e., If I succumb, the representatives of the true faith succumb.
 - (5) These people appear to have drawn back timidly from the suppliant, 8 but not to have joined in the outcry against him (cf. 38, 11).
- (6) Scorn, contumely (cf. v. 7), and abuse are the shadows cast by the 9 35 more material persecution, vv. 2 ff. The latter seems to come rather from the heathen, the former rather from heathenish-minded Jews (v. 26). It is distinctly said that the persecution is on account of religion.
 - (7) Lit. shaking (of the head), in this place a gesture of compassion. G. 20 note 5 on Ps. 22.

- (8) We show our sympathy with the sorrow of mourners by urging them 69,21 to eat and drink. But here those who are called to sympathize make the sorrow more bitter.
- (9) The curse is invoked, not upon heathen, but upon those Jews who 22 5 were inclined to heathenism; a strong measure, but explained by the circumstances.
 - (10) Compare note 2 on Psalm 23.
 - (11) Not a list of the names of all men living; it is the civic register of the 28 Theocracy; none but Jews are included (cf. 87,6).
- (12) In the Maccabean period the Messianic hope was revived, and eventu- 35 ally became reality.

Motes on Psalm 72.

- (1) This Psalm is ascribed to Solomon because the King of whom it 72, I speaks is a king's son, and because the gift which above all others is desired 25 for him is the ability to judge righteously.
 - (2) Not: his people. They do not look upon themselves as belonging to 2 the monarch for whom they pray. They are a spiritual, non-political people (Thy people = Thy pious ones), taking no part in the kingdom and its government.
 - (3) The land flourishes because of the protection afforded by law.
 - (4) The members of that society connected by ties of blood, that commu- 4 nity of the poor founded on racial relationship (74,19). The Jews designate themselves (cf. note on 68, 12) poor and afflicted (but see v. 15).
- (5) Here, as elsewhere, The River is the Euphrates. Palestine being included, 8 35 this river must be mentioned as forming the northeastern boundary. Consequently it is neither a Chaldean, nor a Persian, nor a Seleucid king that is meant, but an Egyptian. V. 10 confirms this: his power extends over the islands of the Mediterranean, over Sheba (in Southern Arabia) and Seba (in Ethiopia); Egypt, then, is the centre. Pharaoh Necho (610-595 B. C.) is out of the ques-40 tion, so that there remain only the Ptolemies, to whom Judea was subject during the third century B. C.—For Tarshish, compare note on 48,7.
- (6) Here, again, it is the Jews who are spoken of, not the poor, literally, 12 nor the poor in general. This is evident from v. 15. In fact, these poor are rich: they promise the King that, if he will treat them well, they will give him 45 much gold and will pray for him. They pay tribute, and, in consideration thereof, enjoy protection. The government to which they stand in such a relation is certainly a foreign one.
 - (7) A Lebanon of fruit is an hyperbolical plural of fruit-tree = a vast number 16 of fruit-trees.

ю

(8) Cf. the delineation of the blameless king, who maintains and defends 72, 16 the right, in Odyss. 19, 109-114: there the earth bears abundant crops, the trees are laden with fruit, the flocks thrive, and the sea swarms with fish.

- (3) He means: a traitor to the principle on which the community of the 15 godly relies, namely, that God makes a distinction between the righteous and the wicked, and that the community of the godly is not left unaided by Him.
 - (4) Literally the sanctuary, the secret, inner chambers (63, 2).
 - (5) That is, of the wicked.
- (6) The oppression practiced by the wicked is like a nightmare, merely 20 transitory and no more thought of after one awakes.
- (7) The purely subjective conviction that God and man are in communion 23 is nowhere in the Psalms more strongly felt nor more beautifully expressed.20 Yet this conviction does not suffice; a confirmation is needed, which is furnished by the miserable, sudden death of the wicked.

Motes on Psalm 74.

(1) In the second line of this verse the continued destructions wrought by 74, 3 the enemy are spoken of as wrought only on the Temple, and, with this limitation, are more minutely described in vv. 4-7 and similarly in vv. 8.9.

From these descriptions we cannot identify the enemies with the Chaldeans. The Chaldeans, it is true, burnt the Temple (B. C. 586), but the distinguishing features of their hostility were the destruction of the kingdom of Judah, and the deportation of its population. Of this there is no trace in this Psalm. The 30 present enemies wage war, not against the kingdom, but against the Congregation, against the Temple, the Synagogue, the religious ceremonial and symbols. Moreover, the destruction of the kingdom of Judah by Nebuchadnezzar was an overwhelming misfortune which had to be endured, and could not be altered. Here, although affairs are desperate, God can and must help. The voices we 35 hear are not those of dull submission, of absolute stupefaction, such as prevailed at the beginning of the Babylonian Exile. There is warm indignation directed, to some extent, against God Himself, because the afflicted ones do not think that they deserved the blow.

Nor do the details belong to the Chaldean period; the Temple is not 40 entirely destroyed, it is only partially burned, barbarously profaned, and marred.

The declaration (v. 9) that prophets are no longer to be found forces us to a 74 much later date. The mournful longing for the prophetic voice is one of the most pronounced traits in the disposition which prevailed among the Jews while the Syrians (B. C. 175 - 168) were persecuting them for their religion; cf. 1 Macc. 54, 46; 9, 27; 14, 41; Song of Azariah 15. The conclusion that this Psalm is Maccabean, formed by some of the early expositors, is correct. Cf. Ps. 79.

(2) Lit. They set up their signs as signs. These signs are the religious 4 symbols whereby professors of religion recognize one another and keep together.

Every token of the worship of JHVH is swept away. C. | Mace. 1,45 f.

(3) The text of vv. 5.6 is hopelessly corrupt, and quite untranslatable. It 6 appears to contain a detailed description of the barbaric transformation of the Temple of Jhvh into a temple of Zeus Olympius.

(4) VV. 3-6 preclude the thought of an entire destruction of the Temple 7 itself. The Temple-area, as a whole, with all its various edifices, is spoken of.

Motes on Psalm 75.

(1) This is a divine utterance, an answer returned by God to the question 75,2 How long? (74,10). For a time He suffers the heathen to work their will, but it is only for a predestined period; then He interferes (cf. 102, 13). The 25 question as to when this period ends is answered in the Book of Daniel.

(2) The earthquake is not to be understood literally: the sacred ordinances 3 of the land are thrown into confusion by the mad arrogance of the heathen.

(3) God has spoken this in a very emphatic manner, namely, by doing it 4 (68,22). Cf. note 3 on Ps. 85 and note 5 on Ps. 138. See also Ezek. 12, 30 vv. 25.28; 22,14; 24,14; 36,36; 37,14.

(4) The Desert is the South; the Mountains the North.

(5) The passive construction begun in v. 6 (supply: our fate is determined), 7 is broken off abruptly, and the speech is continued in the active voice. It is not any region of the earth which determines what happens: the heavens rule.

35 (6) That is, Israel, not God. The use of the first person brings out the 10 newly aroused martial self-consciousness of the Maccabean heroes.

Motes on Psalm 77.

(1) All prayers, all attempts to come into close relation with God, prove 77, 10 failures. The old relation between Him and Israel has come to an end; His right hand no longer brings help. Times have changed, and God with them. 77 That is the lament of the period.

- (2) A sudden revulsion of feeling. These verses can hardly have been the 11 original continuation of vv. 1-10; two fragments have been joined together.

 5 The second is not so full of meaning as the first; its phraseology is of the ordinary stamp, and follows the model of Hab. 3, 10-15.
 - (3) In other passages of the Old Testament it is asserted that God's Nature 19 and Form cannot be discerned, and that only His footsteps, i. e. His operations, can be traced.

Motes on Psalm 78.

- (1) This Psalm is a poetical Midrash, or popular exposition of the History 78, t of Israel, like Pss. 89.105.106.
- (2) The moral has been already drawn; now begins the narrative. The 8 history of the ancient Israelites, represented by Ephraim, or Joseph (cf. 81, 5), 15 is held up to the Jews as a warning. The ancient Israelites were continually acting the same faithless and ungrateful part toward God until at length He cast them off, and put the Jews in their place. The assertion in v. 9 is not to be understood literally; the meaning is, that when it came to the point, they were unresponsive (v. 57).

It ends with the supremacy of the Philistines and the destruction of the temple at Shiloh (11050) B.C.). This view is based on Jer. 7 (7) esp. vv. 12.14), a chapter which agrees with the Chronicles in holding that, from the time when the Temple at Jerusalem became the religious centre, the genuine ancient Isráelites ceased to be members of the Theocracy.

Motes on (Psalm 79.

- (1) This could not be properly asserted of the Chaldeans, who destroyed 79, 1 and burnt the Temple (586 B.C.). It applies only to the Syrians (169 B.C.), 30 of whom it might be said, quite as truly as of the Chaldeans, that they laid Jerusalem in ruins (cf. 1 Macc. 1, 31; 2, 7; 2 Macc. 8, 2-4).
- (2) This saying (and the corresponding one at vv. 10 f.) is another indication 3 that the Syrians rather than the Chaldeans are in question. The latter made no martyrs, neither did they slaughter the godly without encountering resistance; 35 they vanquished the people in war, and destroyed the kingdom; cf. 1 Macc. $\mathbf{1}$, 37 and especially $\mathbf{7}$, 17.
 - (3) The petty neighboring states at that time took sides against the godly 4 Jews, and showed their hostility in many ways.
 - 6.7 (4) Verses 6 and 7 are quoted from Jer. 10, 25.
 - S (5) They have none to reproach themselves with.

Motes on Psalm so.

- 80, I (1) Compare the title of Ps. 60, and note 1 on Ps. 45.
- (2) Why Ephraim and Manassch specially? Because it was these tribes, not 2 45 Judah, that were driven out of their territories, and the crying need was a vindication of the rights of the Theocracy in this district, and the expulsion of the heathen from it. Of course, it is Jews who are praying, they being at the time the representatives of the whole people.

(2) From this we see that the occasion of the joyful shouting was a festival 3 celebrated at the full moon, though in some manner inaugurated at the new 5 moon. V. 5 does not prove conclusively that this was the Passover. According to Jewish tradition it was the Feast of Tabernacles.

(3) Joseph = ancient Israel; cf. note on 78, 8.

(4) There is no connection between the last line of v. 5 and those which precede it: it is the sole remaining fragment of an introduction to the passage 10 following, which has nothing to do with vv. 1-5.

(5) Compare Exodus 17,7; Numbers 20,13.

(6) A warning addressed by the Psalmist to his contemporaries. Misled, 11 however, by vv. 6-10, he places it in God's mouth; hence it looks as though the speech on Sinai (vv. 9.10) were continued.

 - (3) It is uncertain whether the heathen or their gods are the subject of the 5 sentence.
 - (4) The frame of the world is out of joint because those whose business it is to execute justice fail to do so.
- 25 (5) The address to the gods is now resumed. I say refers not only to v. 6, 6 but most particularly to v. 7. The heathen gods do not deserve to rule for ever. They are gods, but they shall die like human rulers, and come to an end (Is. 24, 21). They are useless, because they do not rightly use their judicial office to restrain their peoples from violence and iniquity.

Clotes on Psalm 83.

- (1) Literally, Thy treasured ones, Heb. çĕfûnékhâ, from çafân, 'to treasure, 83,3 to hide, to shelter' (27,5; 31,20); cf. the name of the prophet Zephaniah, i. c. 'Jhvh treasures.'
- (2) The Arabic name Gebal (i. e. mountain) for the mountain range of Seir 7 35 proves that this Psalm is of very late origin. The mention of Ishmael and Hagar, along with Edom, Moab and Ammon, is additional evidence; it was not until the Persian and Greek periods that the Arabs forced their way into Edom, Moab, and Ammon, and thus, eventually, became dangerous neighbors to the Jews.—For the Hagarenes (v. 6) see I Chr. 5, 10.19.
- (3) The Seleucid Syrians. They hold the supreme power, but in this 8 instance they stand in the background.

- (2) An exclamation of the pilgrims, when they come in sight of their goal, the Temple in Jerusalem.
- 5 (3) It is good to be here. The very birds have noted this, and numbers 3 of them have built their nests in the sanctuary.
- (4) An antithesis, a kind of self-correction. The pilgrims congratulate those 5 who not merely lodge awhile in Jerusalem, but dwell habitually there (v. 4). Yet they can deem themselves happy also in having been privileged to make 10 the pilgrimage by the help of God.
 - (5) This seems to be near Jerusalem.

- (6) This appears to be the corrupt form of some local name.
- (7) The pilgrims are not worn out by their hard journey, and now that 7 they are close to the goal, the attraction which has drawn them on inspires 15 them with fresh strength.
 - (8) That is, Israel; compare note on Psalm 28, 8.

(9) The heathen realm, where these pilgrims dwell; hence the strong to impulse to visit Jerusalem.

Motes on Psalm 85.

- (1) It is not the Exile Captivity = calamity of any kind (cf. notes on 14.7; 85.1 126.1).
- (2) The present state of affairs calls for nothing but thanksgiving (vv. 1-3. 4 9-13). The prayer of vv. 4-7 can belong only to by-gone days before the happy change, of v. 1, occurred. The speaker turns back to the affliction that is past, 25 in order to make the sense of present deliverance more real and deep. Before v. 4 we must supply: We said in the time of misfortune, not We say.
 - (3) God is wroth when He refrains from speech, interference, and judgment. 8 When He breaks silence, and by His deeds speaks in history, it is always for the good of His people. G. note 3 on Ps. 75.
 - (4) Mistrust of the God of Israel (cf. note 3 on Ps. 125).
 - (5) Glory (Heb. kabód) is a proper name, like Shekinah.

(6) Verses 9-13 return to the point of view in vv. 1-3; they describe the 13 signs and pledges of JHVH's gracious presence in Israel.

Mote on Psalm 86.

(1) It is the community of the godly that here prays. Yet we cannot easily 86.1 identify the situation wherefrom the prayer arises; the statements are self-contradictory. Probably the Psalm does not express feelings actually experienced at a definite time. It is made up, almost exclusively, of reminiscences.

Motes on Psalm 87.

- 40 (1) The text is in so defective a state that in many passages we can only 87, 1 conjecture the meaning. The general sense admits of no doubt: the Jews are scattered all over the world, but Jerusalem continues to be their common home and mother. The significance of the Dispersion and the abiding importance of Jerusalem are distinctly visible.
 - (2) That is, Egypt; compare Psalm 89, 10; Isaiah 51, 9.
 - (3) Whatever the place of his birth, here is the home of every true lew. 5

(4) The Book of Nations is a Register kept by JHVH, containing the names 87,6 of His subjects dispersed among various nations (cf. 69, 28; Ezek. 13, 9).

Motes on Psalm 88.

- (1) A prayer offered by the community in time of bitterest distress. The 88, 1 5 conclusion is wanting.
 - (2) For the tune of 'Sickness,' cf. note 2 on Psalm 53.

Motes on Psalm 89.

- (1) The gracious acts of Jhvh, here referred to, are those which were performed for David (Is. 55,3). David, in this place, as Abraham elsewhere, is regarded as the ancestor and representative of the whole people; all Israel is regarded as heir to his merits (132,1) and to the promises given to him.
 - (2) A confirmatory repetition of v. 1: I assert, I hold fast, in spite of all. 2 Present experience seems to prove the very opposite, viz., that graciousness came to an end long ago.
 - (3) By the holy ones are meant the Sons of God, i. e. the angels. 5.7
 - (4) Cf. 87, 4; Isaiah 30, 7; 51, 9.
 - (5) Cf. note on Jud. 4, 6. (6) Cf. notes on 29, 6; 42, 6; 133, 3.
 - (7) Lit. Thou liftest up our horn. Compare v. 24, his face is uplifted, lit. 17 his horn is uplifted. See also Pss. 75, 4.5. 10; 92, 10; 112, 9.
 - (8) Lit. Thy toving one or Thy saint. To whom did God say this? Not to 19 Nathan. It would rather seem as though the revelation to Samuel concerning Saul (1 Sam. 9) were here mistakenly applied to David. But 1 Sam. 16 may also be thought of. [G. also 2 Sam. 7, especially v. 17.]
 - (9) Compare the note on Psalm 42,6.
- In the history of the Theocracy the community succeeded to the place formerly occupied by the kings. When the Theocracy ceased to be a monarchy, and became a republic, the sovereignty passed to the people. As a matter of course, the hoped-for Messiah is not in question here.
- 30 (11) A remarkable motive for the restoration of Israel. Individuals sud-47 denly step into the place of the whole, men into that of Israel.
 - (12) The Psalm can hardly have ended originally with these words.

Motes on Book 4.

BOOKS 4 and 5 really form but one Book (cf. note 40 on Ps. 106). Most of the Psalms found in them are anonymous, of varied liturgical character, and without musical directions.

Motes on Psalm 90.

(1) This Psalm was not written by Moses. He could not look back, as its 90,1 writer does, on a long unhappy history of his people. From the conclusion 40 (vv. 13-17) it is clear that the community is speaking. Because heavy misfortune has been long weighing it down, and JHVH does not manifest His counte- 90 nance, or His hand, the people feel that His wrath rests upon them. But the fortunes of men in general are blended with the lot that history has assigned to the community. And the wrath of God which His people feel is not a mere 5 transient and extraordinary misfortune affecting Israel alone: it is the abiding and inevitable misery of human life. This conveys the impression that JHVH's relation to Israel is neither more nor less close than His relation to men in general. The specific Israelitish way of looking at things is lost in the universal, but comes up again at the close. These inconsistencies make it difficult to 10 point out a logical connection of ideas. In several places we can do no more than indicate the psychological association of ideas, the pathology of the writer's mind. But this does not diminish the deep impression which the Psalm makes.

- (2) The two lines are identical in meaning: God leads men back to the 3 source whence they sprang (Gen. 3, 19; Eccl. 3, 20; 12, 7).
- 5 (3) We are terrified to death by Thy wrath. It does not mean that mor- 7 tality is a sign of God's wrath.
 - (4) The sins for which we are punished are known to God far better than 8 to ourselves. It is punishment that first calls our attention to faults (cf. 51, 4.6).
 - (5) After the long night of misfortune (30,5).
- o (6) The repetition is incorrect. The upon us, which is repeated from the 17 end of the preceding line, is meaningless.

Motes on (Psalm 91.

- (τ) This Psalm may have served as a talisman, and in this regard it is with- 9τ , τ out a parallel in the collection.
- 5 (2) The customary refrain, showing us the background supplied by the 8 position of affairs (cf. 104, 35).

Motes on Psalm 92.

- (1) Ps. 92 is the opening hymn of a series in which one of Jhvh's great 92, 1 deeds (i. c. a great historical event) is celebrated. At every similar crisis, the 30 Jews thought that the new era was beginning, the Messianic kingdom at hand, and Jhvh at last entering on His dominion over the earth. The community speaks.
 - (2) The paradox consists in Juvu's leading them on high through deep 5 abasement, through night to light.
- 35 (3) That is, my strength; cf. note on 89, 17.—For unicorn, see note on 10 22, 21.
 - (4) The house of JIIIII is the Theocracy, and its citizens are sojourners is (cf. note on 27,4).—Planted = firmly rooted, closely belonging to.
- (5) The expression refers to Israel, which, at the very time when it seemed 14 40 to be falling into decay, under Greek dominion, entered upon a second springtide, more glorious and important than its first under David.

Motes on Psalm 93.

- (1) JHVH has restored the disturbed order of the world. 93,1
- (2) The present tense here is noteworthy.

Motes on Psalm 94.

- (1) The wicked, therefore, are the heathen, and it is Israel that prays. 94.5
- (2) Widoves, orphans, and sojourners are a metonymy for Israel (ct. 68.5)

- (3) The dullards and fools are those pious Israelites who abandon their 94,8 hope in Jhvh because of the prosperity of the ungodly (92,6). Hence the character of the address is different from v. 8 onward. To the impatience displayed in vv. 1-7 the answer comes: Wait, vengeance is already on the way!
- (4) Literally planted.

 (5) To give him peace within, so that he does not become exasperated 13 and foolish (cf. 39, 2).
- (6) Here, again, a somewhat different chord is struck, a combination, as 16 it were, of that heard in vv. 1-7 and that of vv. 8-15.

Motes on (Bsakm 95.

- (1) An exhortation, spoken by God, begins abruptly in the last line of v. 7. 95,7 There is no link between the two halves of the Psalm. Probably there is no real connection between them; for the exhortation, vv. 8-11, accords illy with the exultation of vv. 1-7. Two fragments seem to have been united. The 15 end, as well as the beginning, of the second fragment is lost, v. 11 not being a conclusion. Yet vv. 1-7^a may perhaps form a whole.
 - (2) Cf. 81, 7; 106, 32; Ex. 17, 7; Num. 20, 13.—(3) i. e. the Holy Land. S. 11

Motes on (psalm 96.

- (1) Ps. 96 = 1 Chr. 16, 23 33. Cf. note 40 on Ps. 106; see also note 4 on 96, 1 20 Ps. 132.
 - (2) That is, the Universe. The creator of the heavens is the God of the 5 Universe, before whose presence the local and national deities vanish (cf. 103, 19).
- (3) 96,7-9=29,1.2. In the parallel passage (Ps. 29) we find gods (lit. 7 25 Sons of God) instead of families of the peoples, and gods must have been the original reading in our Psalm also; for the holy adornment in v. 9 does not lend itself very well to peoples.
 - (4) Compare Psalm 93, 1. (5) Compare Psalm 98, 17. 10.1
- (6) Cf. 98, 9. In His failhfulness, i. e. toward Israel (98, 3). This shows 13 30 that there was a definite occasion for the thanksgiving, a judgment of Jhvh in favor of Israel.

Motes on (Bsalm 97.

- (1) A reminiscence of Is. 41, where the deities break down before Cyrus; 97.7 here, perhaps, before Alexander.
- 35 (2) That is, Zion has not taken an active part. This excludes all thought 8 of the Maccabean war. It must have been an event which revolutionized the entire Oriental world.

Mote on Psalm 98.

(1) 98, 7^a = 96, 11^b; 98, 9 = 96, 13.—For His right has helped Him, compare 98, 1 40 Isaiah 59, 16; 63, 5.

Atotes on (Psalm 99.

- (1) According to v. 9 His foolslool is the holy mountain of Zion (cf. 15,1). 99,5
- (2) It is not clear why Moses, Aaron, and Samuel are found here. In 6 vv. 7.8 it is the Israelites under Moses that are spoken of, not this holy trio, 45 and there is no indication that the verbs in 1l. 26.28 have a different subject.

Motes on (Psalm 101.

- (1) That is, in my kingdom, for the person who speaks is the ruler (similarly 101, 2 v. 7).
- (2) In this Psalm an exceptionally strong emphasis is laid on the duty of 8 5 weeding out the wicked from the Theocracy. It can hardly be said that this was one of the tasks imposed on David or Solomon. The land and the Theocracy were not at that time identical with the City of Juvu. On the other hand, the early Hasmonean rulers deemed themselves specially charged to expel from Jerusalem those Jews who were inclined to heathenism (1 Macc. 9, 73; 10 14, 14, 36; Meg. Taanith 6, 3).

Motes on Psalm 102.

- (1) The title is quite correct, but it gives merely the result of an analysis 102, 1 of the Psalm. The godly man = Zion (v. 13).
 - (2) I have lost all my flesh; cf. Job 19, 20; Lam. 4, 8.
- (3) Verses 14.16 justify the interpretation: I am a desolate mourner amidst 6.7 15 ruins in the desert.
 - (4) Literally, they swear by me, that is, they say: May it happen to me, as 8 it happened to him, if I speak not the truth. Cf. Num. 5, 21, 27; ls. 65, 15.
- (5) The present generation wants to experience salvation while they are II 20 yet alive. It profits nothing that the nation as a whole is immortal (cf. v. 23).
 - (6) The short-lived mortal takes refuge in the ever-living Eternal; compare 12 vv. 24 ff.; 90, 1; 103, 15-17; 119, 84.
 - (7) Hence, it is the deliverance of Zion that is spoken of.—For the set time, 13 J. 75, 2.
- (8) The city lies in waste and ruin; probably a short time before the 14 25 Maccabean rising (167 B. C.).
 - (9) The martyrs in the Syrian persecution (as in 79, 11). 20
 - (10) It is remarkable how hope immediately takes the loftiest flight. 22
- (11) The men who are praying have no dwelling-place at present (compare 28 30 vv. 6.7).

Motes on Psalm 103.

- (1) This Psalm does not owe its origin to any particular, historical occur- 103, 1 rence, but it has an historic background. It is full of thanksgiving for the forgiveness of iniquity, that is, for the deliverance of the community out of great 35 peril (cf. note on 65, 3), for the renewal of youth in the time of old age.
 - (2) Lit. jaw; cf. 32, 9. (3) C. Psalm 92, 14; ls. 40, 31. 5 (4) Compare Job, chapter 7, verse 10. 16
 - (5) Ability matches Will, Power corresponds to Loving-kindness; the God 19 of Israel is the God of the Universe (cf) note on 29, 1).

Motes on Psalm 104.

- (1) V. 13 shows that these are the seven heavens, which correspond to the 104, 3 seven planets. These upper stories are built of water, not of beams.
- (2) Cf. Job 38,8-11. There is no reference to the Deluge. The work 9 described in vv. 6~9 is that done on the third day of Creation.
 - (3) This must mean the rain, although the expression is somewhat peculiar. 13
 - (4) In the East storks build on high trees. 17
 - (5) Lit, rock-rabbits; see note on Leviticus 11, 5. 18
 - (6) According to Job 41 this is the crocodile. 26

- (7) Not: to play therein, but lo play with him, in accordance with Job 104, 26 41, 5 and with tradition. The religious view of Nature in the OT, which springs from Is. 40 ff., lays stress on two points: on the fixed arrangement of all things in number and measure, and on the playful humor of the Creator, manifested 5 in the exceedingly varied forms of created life.
 - (8) The breath of the living creature is the breath of God; hence in v. 29.30 29 we find their breath and in v. 30 Thy breath.

(9) The customary refrain (cf. 91, 8).

We must read the singular instead of the plural (mine anointed one, not mine anointed ones); these terms, as employed here, can be used only in the singular. There is only one Prophet or Messiah at one time (e. g. Abraham, Isaac, Jacob), and God can speak 20 only concerning this one.

 - (23) Compare Numbers, chapter 25, verse 8.
- (24) That is, as a meritorious work which never loses its efficacy. This is 31 in accordance with the theory of the zĕkūth 'merit,' held by the later Jews, 10 which seems to have furnished the basis of the Roman Catholic teaching concerning the thesaurus or treasury of merits. - (38) A very remarkable expression. The reference here is not to the per-46 mission to return from the Exile, which Cyrus gave the Jews in 537 B.C. It points rather to the kind treatment which the Jews abroad experienced from Alexander's successors. Although the Israelites of the Dispersion were not actually prisoners, they are so called. Cf. note on 72, 10.
- (39) The Dispersion is already wide-spread. It is an essential element of 47 the Messianic hope that the scattered Jews are to be gathered together and 30 joined to the community in Judea.
- (40) The Psalm ends at v. 47. V. 48 has come from 1 Chron. 16, 36, and 48 was subsequently looked upon as a concluding doxology. But this idea does not harmonize with the final words. And may all people say: Amen! It has led to the notion, altogether mistaken, that Ps. 107 begins a new Book. Pss. 35 105.106.107 are closely connected, and form a triad.

Motes on Book 5

Motes on Psalm 107.

(1) From here to v. 32 we have a series of stanzas, or rather paragraphs, x07.4 similar in construction and with the same refrains. Each contains a single 40 theme elaborated in a number of clauses. Striking examples are adduced of deliverances by Jhvh, which call for thanksgiving; and are such as do not belong merely to the history of the past, but occur repeatedly in daily life.

The first example (vv, 4-9) is the rescue of a caravan which has lost its way 107 in the desert. Before They who wandered we must supply Thus may say; they who wandered is coordinate to those who have been rescued by JHVH in v. 2.

(2) Second example: Release of captives from prison and bonds (vv. 10-16). 10 5 It is not necessary to suppose that the Psalmist thought especially of the Jewish captives in Babylonia and Assyria, such as we see sculptured in a relief from Sennacherib's palaces at Nineveh.

- (3) Cf. Is. 45, 2. The full-page illus- 16 tration facing p. 118 represents Mr. PIN-CHES' restoration of the famous bronze gates of the palace of Shalmaneser II. (B. c. 860-824) at Balawat, 15 miles east of Mosul. They were discovered by Mr. Hormuzd Rassam in 1878. The bronze bands, 9 inches broad, are now in the British Museum. They represent in repoussé the campaigns of Shalmaneser. See The Bronze Ornaments of the Palace Gates from Balawat, published by the Society of Biblical Archeology, London.
- (4) Third example: Healing of those 17 who are dangerously ill (vv. 17-22).
- (5) Sickness is looked upon as a punishment for sin.
- (6) He brings about their recovery; 20 this implies that He has given the command (cf. ls. 55, 11).

(7) Sacrifices consisting in thanksgiving (cf. 116, 17).

22 (8) Fourth example: Protection of seafaring merchants in storm and tempest. 23 30 The description of a ship in a storm (Prov. 23, 34) is a sign of date; in early Hebrew times Jews did not cross the great waters to traffic.

(9) That is, the billows; cf. Jonah \mathbf{r} , 11.

Motes on Psalm 109.

(1) The foes are intestine foes. The furious partisanship, by which the 109, 2 45 Jewish Community was convulsed, is revealed as undisguisedly here as in Ps. 69 and in the Psatms of Solomon. The suppliant is in deep distress which enemies have not caused, but have increased and embittered by taking it as a judgment of God against the suppliant and in favor of themselves. His own point of view is taken on the same principle. He, too, perceives that he is engaged against 50 his adversaries, before God as Judge, in a suit not yet decided. When his adversaries assert that it is decided, he regards their assertions as calumnies 109 and false charges. He hopes eventually to come out of the conflict victorious, when his foes will be pronounced guilty, and himself innocent.

(2) The trial is not before a human judge. It is a battle of principles, and 6 5 the decision, given by God, consists in the destiny assigned to the respective combatants. The following verses show this plainly. The wicked man is he who in the following line is called Satan (cf. Zech. 3, 1). The accuser does not always stand at the right hand of the defendant. In v. 31 Juvii stands at the right hand. The expression to stand at one's right hand really means to claim him for oneself, to lay one's hand upon him.

(3) Lit. when he is judged.

Motes on Psalm 110.

- (1) Cf. Zech. 6, 13 in the Greek Bible: And he (Zerubbabel) shall rule 110, 1 15 upon the throne, and he (Joshua) shall be priest on his right hand.
 - (2) JHVH will extend thy dominion from Zion as a centre over the whole 2 of Palestine; through thee, the Messianic hope shall be fulfilled (cf. 2,9).
- (3) The dew, born of the dawn, lies on the mountains. But the dew is 3 here replaced by the Israelite youth, ready for the expedition, and, in the early 20 morning, covering the hills near Jerusalem. It must be admitted that the expression is somewhat Sibylline in form. The text is undoubtedly corrupt.
- (4) The comparison with Melchizedek brings the date of the Psalm very 4 low, because the narrative in Gen. 14 is of extremely late origin. Melchizedek was without father, without mother, without family (Heb. 7,3), and yet was 25 priest and ruler in Jerusalem. In these respects, he resembled the founder of the Hasmonean priestly dynasty (167 B. C.), who reached his station by the grace of God, and not by inheritance. The warlike character here ascribed to the Messiah also suits the Maccabees, who believed themselves to be fulfilling Messianic prophecy. Messianic and Maccabean were identical; it was not until 30 a later date that they became separated.

 (5) i. e. the King. 5
- (6) The text is to us quite incomprehensible. Possibly it refers to some 7 characteristic event, like Jonathan's eating the honey (1 Sam. 14) during the pursuit of the Philistines. This king is not like Saul; he drinks of the brook by the way [like a common soldier] while pursuing the foe, and is revived and 35 strengthened by the draught. V. 7 is not the conclusion; the Psalm is a fragment.

Motes on Psalm 115.

- (1) A prayer offered during divine service, while the Jewish army is marching 115, 1 forth against heathen foes. The poem does not imply that Israel is hard pressed by these enemies; on the contrary, the tone is decidedly confident. 15 Psalm 118 is the counterpart to this.
 - (2) Cf. 118, 2-4; 135, 19-21. These verses indicate that the Psalm was 9 intended for public worship.

Motes on (Bsalm 118.

(1) Ps. 118 is the counterpart of Ps. 115. It is a thanksgiving, offered 118, 1 during divine service, on the return of the Jewish army from a victorious cam-35 paign. Its liturgical character comes out plainly in the introduction (vv. 1-4) and in the conclusion (vv. 19-29). But Israel is also the speaker in the middle part, vv. 5–18. I = we (cf. 36, 11; 60, 9).

(2) That is, the proselytes; see the note on Ps. 115, 13.

(3) Reliance on man is here more precisely defined as reliance on princes, 9 40 that is to say, on political alliances with the Romans, the Spartans, or the rival Seleucid kings.

(4) According to our ideas a somewhat harsh change of metaphor.

- (5) The enemy (all heathendom, v. 10) is suddenly addressed in the singular 13 number. This throws light on the use of the first person singular, I.
- (6) Here, too, the Community speaks. Its existence was threatened by 17 45 Antiochus IV (168 B. C.), who deemed both the Jewish religion and the Jewish commonwealth ripe for destruction.

- (7) The army marches in solemn procession to the Temple gates. This is 118, 19 supposed to have been on the occasion of a festival. But this supposition cannot be upheld by v. 24 any more than by the fact that the later Jews used v. 25 in the liturgy for the Feast of the Tabernacles. Nor must we be influenced by v. 27, with its incomprehensible and, doubtless, corrupt text. The most rational conclusion is that the occasion and object of the festival were neither more nor less than the victory which had been gained, and the procession of the army to the Temple to celebrate this victory with solemn thanksgiving.
- (8) This is the answer to v. 19, returned by those who are already in the 20 to Temple, and who now welcome the fresh arrivals. In other words, the priests are the speakers. So likewise in v. 26. But v. 20 and v. 26 are merely brief interruptions; in the greater part of vv. 19-29 we hear the same voices as in vv. 5-18.
- (9) Literally the head of the corner. In consequence of the Maccabean 22 victories the despised Jewish people now assume a prominent position in the 15 world.
 - (10) This line is altogether enigmatical. [It might possibly mean Decorate 27 the route of the procession with garlands, extending from the starting point to the very altar. The Hebrew word for festival originally means procession; cf. Greek pompé 'procession, festival, pomp.'—P. H.]

Motes on (Psakm 119.

(1) Ps. 119 contains twenty-two stanzas of eight verses each, arranged accord- 119, 1 ing to the letters of the alphabet. Each of the eight verses in a stanza begins with the same letter. Thoughts and feelings closely resembling each other are loosely put together; the very expressions recur again and again. Everything revolves 25 around the words of Jhvu, His promises, and, especially, His commandments. The endlessness, the trustworthiness, the wisdom of the Law are dwelt on, in contrast with the sentiments of the wicked, who do not value it highly, nor concern themselves about it. These scoffers wish to impart to the godly a wisdom surpassing that of the Law (vv. 98-100). Their offer is, of course, rejected, but even the 30 godly are in some degree infected with the craving for knowledge. They are not content to rest in the belief that the meaning of the Law is self-evident. They are continually praying for power to understand the Law; nay, even some portions of it seem paradoxical and meaningless. They seek for a philosophic defense of it. They are bitterly opposed to the wicked, and this brings them 35 into close union one with another. They hope for the judgment by means whereof God has promised to deliver the pious and destroy the wicked; and they repeatedly remind Him of this, His word.

In v. 67 an historical allusion, pointing to the Maccabean period, might be found. But the Psalm contains no trace of enthusiasm or excitement. In fact, 40 it is not a Psalm in the strict meaning of the word; it might have formed a separate Book of the Hagiographa.

(2) Possibly something has dropped out. (3) \mathcal{O} . 105, 19.

(4) In all these passages Thy scrvant does not refer to Israel collectively 17 (cf. note on 71, 1), but is simply a paraphrase for the first person singular.

- (5) Cf. v. 54. The words have a wholly different meaning from I am 19 JULIE's client (39, 12). In a dangerous situation it is most important to guard against false steps; this is the idea which connects the two parts of the verse.
 - (6) The word might also mean judgments, as in vv. 52.75.120.
- (7) Literally mv ways. 1 set forth before Thee in prayer the things that 26 50 happen to me.
 - (8) The misfortunes of the godly man seem like a sentence in favor of the 42 wicked. The godly is thus smitten in the face, and herein cannot justify his conviction that prosperity is closely connected with piety.

15

- (9) That is, the reply which the godly, as we see from v. 42, will make to 119, 43 the wicked.
 - (10) I eagerly long for Thy commandments.

48

- (11) These words have crept in from the preceding verse.
- 5 (12) The Law is the distinguishing possession of Israel; cf. v. 111. It is a 56 special favor on God's part if He enables a man to keep His commandments. The Gentiles do not have the Law; they do not share in that privilege (cf. 89,16; 147,20).
 - (13) The cause of one godly man is the common cause of all (cf. 69, 6).
 - (14) The word good, before judgment, has crept in here from v. 65.
 - (15) Cf. vv. 71.75.87.92. The affliction in question would appear to be 67 the Syrian persecution (168 B. C.), which quickened Judaism to new life.
 - (16) Like a wine-skin unused and hung up, so that it is wrinkled and 83 blackened by the smoke of the tent; cf. 31, 12.

- be pronounced so'phim) was perhaps chosen because of its phonetic resemblance to the Greek sophoi.
 - (21) A new judgment is needed; cf. vv. 136.139.150.158.
- (22) It cannot mean simply often-times. The reference is probably to a 164 25 custom, whereof we have no positive knowledge, prevalent among pious Jews, of praying seven times a day.
 - (23) That is, I am always conscious of the fact that everything I do is done 168 in Thy presence.

Notes on The Songs of Ascents.

Opinion regarding this expression is much divided. The rendering of the Greek Bible, Songs of the Steps, gives no light. It is supposed by some to be a reference to the steps leading up to the Temple, on which steps, according to the tradition of the later Jews, these songs were sung. This supposition, however, must be rejected as untenable for external as well as internal reasons. 35 Equally improbable is the explanation of some distinguished Biblical scholars, who take the title to mean Songs of Progressions, referring to a peculiarity in the structure of these Psalms (c. g. Ps. 121), in which the poem progresses, as it were, step by step, inasmuch as a certain expression is repeated in the following line. But this so-called anadiplosis is by no means common to all the Songs 40 (cf. e.g. Ps. 132), and, moreover, it reappears quite frequently in poems not comprised in this collection of the Songs of Ascents (e.g. Ps. 24,7-10). Other commentators translate the title: Songs of the Return, e.g. from the Exile to the Holy Land; an interpretation, however, which is not sufficiently justified by the tenor of the poems. Others, again, consider them as Songs of the Pil-45 grimages, i. e. Psalms which were closely connected with the legally prescribed pilgrimages to the Sanctuary (Ex. 34, 24), and such a connection seems unmistakable, or, at least, highly probable in several of these Psalms (e.g. 120-122.133.134). The majority of them, however, have, as it seems, nothing at all to do with pilgrimages. The meaning of the expression cannot be 50 regarded as finally determined.

Consequently Meshech and Kedar are too far apart to permit a literal interpretation of the expression. Treacherous Jews are really meant; they are designated Barbarians, Turks and Tartars, by way of reproach.

Motes on Psakm 121.

- (1) The mountains are the boundaries of the horizon, the limit beyond which 121, 1 the eye cannot pierce. G. Psalms of Solomon, 3, 6.7.
- (2) The alternation of the first and the second person in this Psalm is 3 embarrassing. We cannot very well explain it by saying that the two persons 15 play different parts; for on this supposition they are continually exchanging places. At v. 1, for example, the first person puts a doubting question; the confident reply to this, in v. 2, should therefore proceed from the second person, whereas it is the first who answers. The relation between v. 3 and v. 4 is similar to that between v. 1 and v. 2. V. 3 corresponds to v. 1, so that the first 20 person should be the speaker, but here it is the second person that is doubtful and anxious. On the other hand, vv. 5 ff. bring the second person before us as confident and comforting. Under these circumstances we must refrain from distinguishing between the two persons. This alternation of I and Thou creates here no greater difficulty than in old Arabic poems where solilogny and dialogue 25 are constantly intermingled.

Motes on Psalm 122.

- (1) This is not a continuation of the speech of those who in v. 1 declare 122, 2 their intention of going up to Jerusalem. The poet himself, in v. 2, including himself in the first pers. plur., says: "I myself was once among the number of 30 those who were at Jerusalem!" From v. 1 it is plain that, on the present occasion, he did not take part in the pilgrimage; he takes a joyful interest in it, however, when undertaken by younger pilgrims.
- (2) According to this, Jerusalem must have been destroyed not long before. 3 The opposite to a compact city would be a city inhabited as an open country, 35 a town without walls (Zech. 2,4).
 - (3) The tribes of JIIIII are the Jews outside of Jerusalem, scattered about 4 Palestine or elsewhere in the Dispersion.
- (4) It is curious that Jerusalem is here extolled, not as the place of 5 worship, but as the seat of judgment, and that the Sanhedrin, the great council 40 of the Jews, not the house of Jhyh, is declared to be the object of the pilgrimage. Yet the Sanhedrin could not be more than a secondary object. However, we are not surprised to see that the Sanhedrin exercises the judicial powers which in the ancient Theocracy belonged to the king.
- (5) This is another instance of the purely human and national sympathy with 8 45 Jerusalem, coexisting with that which springs from religious motives (v. 9).

- (2) Verses 6-9 contain a vivid account of the finding of the Ark in the 8 field of Jaar—the Ark stood in the country-district near Kirjath-Jearim (cf. note 10 on Jud. 18, 12), not in the town itself—and of its removal to Jerusalem.
 - (3) Righteonsness (v. 9) alternates with salvation (v. 16). Cf. the note on 9 23,3.
- (4) According to what has preceded, David and his people seem to be the 10 speakers. But the words are not suitable in David's mouth. It is true that a 15 king, an anointed one, is speaking, but he distinguishes himself from David when he says: For the sake of Thy servant David, do not reputse Thine anointed. And the parallel passage, 2 Chron. 6,41.42, actually attributes these words to Solomon, not to David. This reference to Solomon is doubtless original. Our Psalm is evidently of more recent date than the passage in 20 Chronicles. The Anointed, originally referring to Solomon, is applied here to Israel (cf. 28,8).
 - (5) Zion is heir to David and to the promises given to him; the covenant 13 with David, like that with Abraham, holds good for Israel.
- . (6) For horn, see notes on 18,2; Ezek. 29,21. The continuance of the 17 25 Davidic dynasty is not requisite to the fulfilment of this promise, but the prosperity of Zion is requisite thereto.

Motes on (Psakm 133.

- (1) The emphasis lies on dwelling. The privilege of dwelling in Zion is 133, 1 made prominent. It is better for the various members of the community to 30 be thus brought into constant contact with each other than to be scattered abroad among the heathen, and see one another in Jerusalem, only occasionally, at the festivals.
 - (2) A comparison which points to the quickening benefit derived from 2 dwelling together.
- (3) Travelers state that the dew is heavier on and near Mount Hermon 3 (42,6; 89,12) than elsewhere in the land.
 - (4) Not that there men live for ever, but Zion ever endures, and is the place where life is worth living.

Mote on Psalm 134.

(1) The Babylonian Exile lies in the past, not the present; the poet recalls 137,3 those times. But it is not actual memory; it is a poet's imagination.

- (2) Edom was the brother of Israel, but the Edomites had looked with 7 malicious joy on the destruction of Jerusalem; cf. Ezek. 25, 12; Obad. 10–16; Jer. 49, 7–22.
- (3) The evils inflicted on the Jews by the Chaldeans have long been for-8 15 gotten, but the hatred against Babylon is as vigorous as ever. Possibly some event has aroused it afresh.

Motes on Psalm 139.

- (1) For reins, compare note on 7, 9. Verses 13 and 15 go together. V. 14 139, 13 breaks the connection, and must, therefore, be placed before v. 13.
- (2) For the explanation of this line we must turn to Job 1,21: the mother's 15 somb to which Job returns is not that from which he came, but the earth, the mother of all things (Sir. 40,1).
- (3) The first line of v. 16 belongs to v. 15. In the Received Text, before the 16 line, And in Thy book they are all recorded, we must supply a line somewhat like So dost Thou oversee all men or Thus are all men known to Thee, and at 40 the end of the verse, escapes Thee.
 - (4) While engaged in the calculation the poet falls asleep, and when he 18 awakes he finds his mind still occupied with this inexhaustible subject.
- (5) The customary refrain (91,8; 104,35) in this passage does not appear 19 to be a digression. It would rather seem to be the main practical point, which 45 until now has been dealt with somewhat too briefly. For the essence of vv. 1-18 is contained in vv. 1-4 (= vv. 23.24), and it is with this essence, and with it only, that vv. 19 ff. can be brought into logical connection: "Thou knowest me, that I am godly, and yet Thou treatest the wicked, Thine adversaries and mine, 139 no worse than me."

Motes on Psalm 141.

- (1) An attempt has been made to trace the following sequence of thought 141,5 in vv. 3-5: "Let not sinful speeches slip from me unawares while I am vexed at the triumph of the wicked (v. 3); let it not come about that, seeing the good fortune of the wicked, I, too, adopt their ways in order to share their prosperity (v. 4); do not entrust the task of punishing me, as I may deserve, to the bad, 15 lest the false impression be created that Thou preferrest them to me (v. 5)." But this requires much reading between the lines. Throughout the Psalm the connection of thought is slight, partly in consequence of textual corruptions.
 - (2) Verse 6 can be translated, but the connection of thought is not dis-6 cernible.

- (3) The poet's hope, then, is for this life, not for the life after death. Does 5 he lay stress hereon, by way of contrast to those who abandon hope here and 30 console themselves with the hope of an hereafter?

Notes on Psalm 143.

- (1) To enter into judgment is an expression used of the plaintiff, not of the 143,2 judge. God's rightcousness (prayed for in v. 1) consists in this very fact, that He does not appear as a complainant against the pious, endeavoring to detect 35 their most secret sins and bring them to punishment. In that case no one could win his suit against Him (51,9; 130,3; Job 9,2; 14,3).

Music of the Ancient Hebrews.

musicians in the very earliest days: Jubal, the second son of Lamech, was the father of all such as handle the harp and pipe 5 (AV, organ), just as his elder brother, Jabal, was the ancestor of all roving herdsmen, the father of all such as dwell in tents of caltle (2 Chr. 14, 15), while his half-brother, Tubal-cain, was the ancestor of all workers in copper and iron (Gen. 4, 20-22). The Hebrews, therefore, must have regarded music as a primeval to art. No festive occasion was complete without it. Its use in public worship is also very ancient. In connection with the holy place, Amos (5,23) speaks of the noise of the songs and the melody of the harps; and similar references are found in the Book of Isaiah (30,29.32).

It is not clear, however, whether music was used only during the procession 15 and while the sacrificial meal was going on, or whether it formed a part of the religious service itself. Probably the latter was not the case till later times. At all events, far greater importance was attached to Temple music after the Exile than before it. By that time, music had become a principal part of solemn religious worship. In the Pentateuch, sacred singers and musicians are 20 not mentioned at all; in the time of Ezra and Nehemiah (B. C. 430) they play a great rôle, rivaling the Levites and gradually coming to be regarded as their equals, and at last their superiors (Josephus, Alntiq. xx, 9, 6).

In the Book of Chronicles, which together with the Books of Ezra and Nehemiah really forms a single work, King David is represented as the originator 25 of the Temple music and the organizer of the guilds of Temple singers. This is, of course, not historical testimony as to what actually happened in David's day; but it is a striking proof of the popularity and the importance of the Temple music in post-Exilic times: what Moses had omitted in the Pentateuch, David must supply in Chronicles. The Psalter was compiled from hymn-books 30 which were used in the musical service of the Temple. Several of these collections belonged to certain well-known guilds of Temple singers (Korah, Asaph, Heman, and Ethan; \mathcal{O} , notes on Pss. II. 39.42).

Some notices regarding the tunes and the musical execution of the sacred songs are contained in the titles of certain Psalms (cf. Pss. 6.8.9.22.45.53.35 57, &c.). But in most cases these musical directions are unintelligible to us; and, indeed, they were so even to the Greek translators (cf. p. 162, below).

The musical tradition embodied in these notices must have been early lost even to the Palestinian Jews, probably from the time when the Temple service came to an end.^a

Consequently, our knowledge is confined to very general facts. Temple 5 music consisted of choral singing with instrumental accompaniment, and was performed by professional singers and musicians. The congregation occasionally joined in, especially at the end of songs or stanzas. There was also antiphonal singing either between two choirs or between a soloist and a choir. Indications of this are found especially in the Psalms of the Fourth and the Fifth Books, to which appear to have been composed expressly for liturgical purposes.

showing the Seven-branched Candelabrum and the golden Table of the Show-bread, together with two Trumpets, all taken from Herod's Temple (see p. 220, 1. 27).

As to the musical instruments, somewhat more can be said. Several of these are mentioned in Ps. 150 and in the third chapter of the Book of Daniel. In the latter passage, however, it is secular music that is spoken of; and the names, and perhaps in some cases also the instruments themselves, are of foreign origin.

^a The so-called accents (which we still have, although we no longer know their exact musical significance) do not make up for this loss. There is no difference in principle between the prose accents and the poetical. The latter are not intended, any more than the former, for choral singing, but are meant to guide the cantillation of a single reciter. Besides, they seem to be connected with the Greek and Syriac methods of chanting the Holy Scriptures, and cannot, therefore, go back to the time when Temple singing was still a living art. Cf. Wickes, Accentuation of the Poetical Books, Oxford, 1881, Chapter I.

During the period embraced in OT literature (B. C. +1300 -+130 B. C.) we have no authentic pictorial representations of Jewish musical instruments. But the archeological material afforded by Egyptian and Assyro-Babylonian monuments may be safely used to illustrate the music of the ancient Hebrews. Egyptians, Babylonians, and Assyrians, all employed similar instruments in the 5 same manner, and it is reasonable to suppose that the ancient Israelites did not differ very much in this respect from their Mesopotamian and Egyptian cousins. These inferences from analogy are further strengthened by the fact that the stringed instruments used by the Egyptians during the period of the New Empire (B. C. 1600-950) were of foreign origin and no doubt borrowed to from Semitic peoples.

Of the representations on Egyptian and Assyro-Babylonian monuments two are of special importance: one of these is the Egyptian picture of a Semitic Bedouin playing the lyre (fig. s, p. 224), and the other an Assyrian relief representing three captives all playing the same kind of instrument (fig. l, p. 225), 15 Several representations of stringed instruments are met with on Jewish coins. These coins are generally attributed to Simon Maccabaeus (B. C. 142-135), but MADDEN (Coins of the Jeves) is probably right in assigning them to the time of the great rebellion of the Jews, A. D. 66-70. At any rate, the instruments figured on these coins are probably more or less influenced by Græco-Roman 20 art. Trustworthy representations of the later form of the Jewish trumpet are found in the well-known relief (fig. a, p. 218) on the Arch of Titus (A. D. 79-81).

Wind Instruments.

Of wind instruments we find mentioned the flule, the horn, and the trumpel. In Hebrew the flute is called 'ugáb and khalil. In Is. 30, 29 it is played during 25 a procession to the Temple (at the feast of Tabernacles). It is used on peaceful occasions, such as dances and other festivities. The Jewish historian Josephus refers to the flute as the instrument used for bewailing the dead, Bell. Jud. iii, 9,5; cf. Matth. 9,23 (RV, flute-players; AV, minstrels), also Jer. 48,36. According to tradition 'ugáb is a syrinx (Pan's-pipe); but some scholars hold 30 that it is a bagpipe.

Fig. b. EGYPTIAN FLUTE-PLAYER.

EGYPTIAN, PLAY-ING ON A DOUBLE FLUTE.

Fig. d.

ASSYRIAN, PLAVING THE DOUBLE FLUTE.

Numerous representations of flute-like instruments are found on Egyptian and Assyrian monuments, but of the bagpipes, supposed to be also referred to in Dan. 3, 5, 10, 15 (see RV, margin; AV, dulcimer), there are none. These flute-like instruments are made either of reed or of wood. They vary greatly 35 as regards both length and number of finger-holes, probably also in the method of playing.

The long flute which an Egyptian musician is playing in a sitting posture (fig. b) is blown like a modern flute at a lateral hole near the upper end of the instrument. A very favorite instrument of the ancient musicians is the double-flute (fig. c). Egyptian pictures show that in the time of the New 5 Empire (B. C. 1600–950) it superseded almost every other variety of flute.

There is scarcely any difference between the Assyrian (fig. d, belonging to the time of Assurbanipal, B. c. 668-626) and the Egyptian double-flutes (fig. c). These instruments consist of two tolerably long flutes generally joined together at the mouth-piece. They are blown like our flageolets and have similar no mouth-pieces. The flutes played by the Orientals of the present day are of various lengths, but otherwise they differ but little, having as a rule six or seven fingerholes. They are made of 15 reed, with the mouth-piece just a little thicker than the rest. The embouchure is quite open, not partially closed by a wooden plug as in some of our penny whistles. The modern Arab flute (fig. e) is held obliquely toward the left and is blown into from above, with the lips but slightly opened.

The note is shrill, but not so high as that of a fife.

In contrast with the peaceful flute, horns and trumpets are warlike and 20 alarming; they are blown for terû âh ('loud noise'), that is, to intensify the hurrah and the war-cry of the warriors; or they are used, like our alarm-bells, by watchmen to give notice of approaching danger (Am. 2,2; 3,6; Hos. 5,8). But when the warlike Theocracy was changed into an ecclesiastical, the terû âh and its instruments were used for religious purposes. The trumpets especially (Heb. khaçôçĕrâh) became the insignia of the priests. There were two silver trumpets in the Temple, by the blowing of which the feasts were announced (Num. 10, 2; 31, 6). On the relief of the Arch of Titus (fig. a, p. 218) we see two trumpets together with the golden Table of Showbread. These must have belonged, therefore, 30 to the state utensils of Herod's Temple, and must have been reckoned as holy as the Golden Table and 35 the Seven-branched Candelabrum. They are of the same form as what are now called Egyptian trum-40 pets (well-known to those who have seen VERDI'S Aida), that is, long metal tubes gradually swelling out into a long but not very wide bell. On the Arch of Titus the mouth-pieces of the trumpets are visible. According description the by Josephus (Ant. iii, 12,6) which corresponds better to the representations Jewish coins than to the two trumpets on the Arch of Titus, the trumpet (asósra) was nearly a yard

45 long, a little wider than a flute, with a slight expansion near the mouth-piece to catch the breath, and ending in a bell, just as in the war-trumpets. Fig. g shows two such trumpets. This coin belongs to the time of Bar-Cochba, the famous leader in the great Jewish rebellion that took place in the reign of the Emperor Hadrian (131–135 A.D.), and it bears the inscription להרות ירושלם, 50 that is, Deliverance of Jerusalem. The bell is like that of trumpets still in use. Near the broad mouth-piece appears to be a globular enlargement of the tube, the object of which may have been to intensify the sound when the current of air passed through. The Egyptian war-trumpet (fig. h) is formed in the same way, but without the widening near the mouth-piece. The trumpeter is standing with his face toward a troop of soldiers who are in the act of attacking. The instrument is a straight narrow tube, of moderate length, suddenly widening to a bell. An earlier Egyptian instrument (fig. i) is something between a horn and a trumpet. With the two trumpets on the Arch of Titus we may compare the trumpet of the modern Arab (fig. j), which is a long instrument, made of thin brass, tapering toward the mouth-piece. The opening for the emission of sound at the other end is not wide.

Fig. j.

MODERN ARAB TRUMPET.

Horns (Heb. shofár) were more extensively used than trumpets. In some respects they bore the same relation to the Temple and to the synagogues (Lev. 25,9) as bells to our churches. The Hebrew horns, however, were not made of metal but were real horns; in Josh. 6,4 ff. they are in fact called rams' horns. According to a statement in the Talmud they were at first always (5 crooked, and it was only in later times that they were straightened, because after the destruction of the Temple they were confounded with trumpets.

The modern Synagogue has preserved in its ceremonial the use of the shofár. At stated times during the services on New Year's day (but not when it falls on the Sabbath), at the conclusion of the Day of Atonement, 20 on the seventh day of the Feast of Tabernacles, and during the entire month of Elul, after the recital of the supplications, the shofár is sounded. Its use on all these occasions, however, is not general, and probably never was so, but it still survives in many places. For the New Year's service it is the character-no adornments. It is not only the one ancient musical instrument actually pre-5 served in the Mosaic ritual, but it is the oldest form of wind instrument in the world still retained in use. There seems to be little doubt that it has been continuously used in the Mosaic service from the time that service was established until now.^a Stringed Instruments.

To accompany singing, or at all events sacred singing, stringed instruments only were used, and never wind instruments. The strings are called in Hebrew minnîm, originally bow-strings.⁸ The earliest lyre was a strung bow (cf. fig. ce, p. 229). To strike or twitch a string is in Hebrew, naggén (in the Historical Books) and zammér (in the Psalms), Greek psállein; hence mizmór, Greek 15 psalmós, Psalm.

In the OT only two stringed instruments are mentioned, kinnôr and nébel (ARV, harp and psatlery). We have no certain means of determining the difference between them. Both were made of wood (1 Kings 10, 12), and the performer could play while walking. The Babylonian exiles hung their kinnôrs on the willows (Ps. 137, 2). The nébel appears to have had a convex body like the Egyptian and Assyrian lutes; the Heb. word nébel means literally water-skin and secondarily pitcher. As distinguished from the nébel, the kinnôr had no lute-like body at the lower end; at any rate, it was the earlier, simpler, and more common instrument, the one Jubal invented (see p. 217, l. 5)

[&]quot; Cf. Cyrus Adler, The Shofar (Report of the U.S. National Museum for 1892, pp. 437-450). Washington, 1894.

^{*} In Arabic also wátar means both bow-string and string of a musical instrument, like our English string; in Syriac, however, the equivalent of Heb. minnîm (Syr. minnê) means hairs, sinews, chords, but not bow-strings.

[&]quot;Or ziol; see e. g. Am. 5, 23; 6,5; Is. 14, 11; 5, 12. In the last passage RV has lute instead of ziol. It is hardly necessary to state that none of the Hebrew stringed instruments were played with a bow like our violins.

and on which David played. It may have been an open lyre or cittern, perhaps also a portable harp (1 Sam. 10,5; 2 Sam. 6,5). It is not impossible that this name was in the course of time applied to different varieties of this instrument.

Later tradition confuses nébel and kinnor; but this cannot be regarded as proving identity. We must bear in mind that St. Augustine (353-430 A.D.) 5 and other Fathers of the Church clearly distinguish an instrument with a kettleshaped sound-body below from an instrument which has a wooden resonanceframe above, covering the upper ends of the strings like a shield. We are thus reminded of the lyres on Jewish coins and of the Assyrian harps (see figs. m, n, τ). Josephus, whose testimony has still the greatest claim on our to consideration, explains (Antiq. vii, 12, 3) the kinŷra as a ten-stringed instrument which was struck with a plectrum; and the nábla as an instrument with 12 notes, which was played with the fingers. But in Pss. 33,2; 144,9 a tenstringed nébel is mentioned; and in 1 Sam. 16, 23 David plays the kinnôr with his hand.7 Though there is no positive proof in the OT of a plectrum 15 being used, it must not be inferred that such an instrument did not exist.

The representations of stringed instruments found on Jewish coins are, in shape, like the Greek lyre and cittern. The lyre (figs. m, n) has a kettleshaped sounding-board below the strong oval body in which the lower ends of the strings are fixed; the frame is simple and nearly square. The cittern 20

^a The ancient cittern (or cithara) is, of course, quite different from the cittern (or cithern) used in the 16th and 17th centuries, which was shaped like a lute, but strung with wire, and played with a quill or plectrum; nor must it be confounded with the modern German zither (the so-called Bavarian zither; fig. o) which is placed on a table, and the performer uses both hands while playing on it.

⁷ [To infer from this passage that David, when playing on the kinnôr, used his hand only, and not a plectrum, is as unjustifiable as to infer from the phrase he slew him with his own hand, that the person referred to had not used any weapon. The addition with his hand merely emphasizes the fact that, in order to cheer Saul, David himself had to play; a placid mood was awakened in Saul only by David's playing and never by that of any other person. Whether or not David, in playing, used a plectrum is, in this passage, of no importance. Nor do the two passages 1 Sam. 18, 10 (J) and 19,9 (E) prove that David used no plectrum when playing on the kinnór; the narrators only meant to call attention to the fact that David had no weapon in his hand when Saul threw his spear at him.—P. sound-body. The sides of the frame are curved and joined across the top by a straight bar to which the strings are fastened. The number of strings in both instruments varies from three to six. In spite of their resemblance to Greek 5 instruments, it may be taken for granted that they would not have been employed as emblems on coins if they had nothing in common with those used in the Jewish sacred music. Besides, the stringed instruments on the Assyro-Babylonian and Egyptian monuments, even of the earliest days, are similar in shape to the lyres and citterns seen on these coins. Among the nations just named, that ancient instrument, the lute, was as common as it still is among Eastern peoples, a proof of the tenacity with which ancient customs maintain themselves in that department of art also with which we are dealing. Apart from the somewhat uncertain identification of the various OT terms with any particular instruments, the archeological evidence which we possess certainly warrants the conclusion that the harp, the lyre, and the lute were all in common use among the ancient peoples of Western Asia.

BEDOUIN PLAYING

THE LYRE.

The earliest of all existing representations of stringed instruments was discovered by the French excavations (1875–1880) at Telloh in Southern Babylonia (fig. r). It belongs to the pre-historic period. The instrument is of large dimensions, with a sound-body, and is rudely ornamented. Its numerous strings are fixed in a strong cross-bar, the right hand support of which is partly hidden by the figure of an animal which stands, by way of ornament, on the sound-body. The shape of the instrument is of special interest. It reminds us of the form and the use of the Egyptian and Greek lyres, but 5 when we reduce this instrument to a somewhat smaller and more manageable size it has also some resemblance to the famous picture of the Bedouin playing the lyre (fig. s). This figure is taken from a picture in an Egyptian tomb. It belongs to the time of the 12th Dynasty (about the end of the 30th century). A Semitic chieftain is immigrating with his followers, wives and to children, into Egypt and asking the Egyptian Governor to receive him. Here we see an instrument in use among a tribe of Semitic Bedouins living close to Egypt. The musician plays while walking. He carries the instrument, which is square, but slightly narrowed toward the front, under his left arm. picture indicates this in a very primitive manner by making the left arm together 15 with the whole shoulder project forward. The left hand seems to twitch the strings, while the right strikes them with a plectrum. Eight strings are stretched horizontally, some of them obliquely, from the board of the flat sound-body to the outside cross-bar of the frame, but it is impossible to determine from the picture in what way the strings are fastened. Later Egyptian figures show us 20 that this instrument was widely used in Egypt. The inference that such a lyre was in common use among the Semites of Western Asia is supported by a very remarkable Assyrian picture (fig. 1) of three captive Semitic exiles guarded by an Assyrian warrior. The captives are playing on lyres. From the dress, they are probably Israelitish captives. A comparison with other pictures such as 25 that on the Obelisk of Shalmaneser II. (see Judges, p. 58, note 5) and that of the captive Israelites before Lachish (cf. the full-page illustration in Isaiah, p. 48) makes this hypothesis probable. The type of face as well as the dress of all three is the same. The first two wear the head-dress which we meet with on the pictures referred to. All three are playing on the same kind of instrument. Like the lyre in the Egyptian picture of the Bedouin (fig. s), it is played with both hands, but whether with a plectrum, or not, cannot be clearly seen. The sound-body, if there be one, is out of sight under the left arm. The frame, to 5 the cross-bar of which the upper ends of the strings are fastened, seems to be lightly constructed of three round wooden rods; it widens toward the top. The picture recalls Ps. 137, 2.3.

Fig. t. Semitic captives playing on lyres, guarded by an assyrian warrior.

The Assyrian and the Egyptian monuments exhibit a great variety of instruments. The Assyrian band (fig. u), belonging to the time of Assurbanipal

10 (668-626 B. C.), consists of eleven musicians, some of them eunuchs. Seven are playing on large harps, held upright, two are blowing double-flutes, one beats the drum, and one plays the dulcimer, an instrument similar to the qânûn or santir^a of the modern East. The musicians have gone out to welcome home the returning conqueror. Ac15 companying them are a number of women and children who keep time to the music by clapping their hands, a custom prevalent also in an20 cient Egypt and still universally practiced by the modern Arabs. One of the women is compressing her throat with her hand, just as Arab and 25 Persian women do at the present day, in order to produce a peculiarly shrill and vibratory note.

The harps were held up-30 right and no doubt supported by the broad belts which the musicians wear round their waists (fig. v). The curved sounding-board of these in-35 struments is bent slightly forward at the top, covering the upper ends of the long strings like a shield (cf. p. 223, l. 7). The pegs for tuning are at the side of this shield-like frame. We observe also a number of holes in it, the object of which may have been to increase the volume of sound. The twenty strings are fastened on a horizontal cross-bar below, their ends hanging down a good way The whole instruover it. ment has the shape of a long triangle. One of the long sides is curved, and on the other long side the strings are not enclosed in any frame, just as the string of an archer's bow (cf. p. 222, l. 12). This absence of a post or third side opposite the sounding-board is a characteristic feature of both the Assyrian and the Egyptian harps. The instrument is played with both hands without any plectrum. A similarly formed instrument, but with the peculiarity

The musician represented in fig. x has an instrument similar in form to the one in fig. v, but held in a different way. The open side of the harp is not toward the outside, as in fig. v, but is next to the player. The sounding-5 board is not curved, but straight, and runs out to a sharp point in front; it forms the lower side of the instrument. The ornamented string-holder with the pegs for tuning stands upright on the side furthest from the player. This harp has nine strings and is struck with a long plectrum.

ASSVRIAN DULCIMER.

Fig. z.
MEDIEVAL PSALTERY.

The instrument of the musician (fig. r) who walks behind the first harper 10 in the sculpture of the Assyrian Band (fig. u) has only an apparent resemblance to the two upright and horizontal harps (figs. v and u), owing to the defective perspective (cf. p. 172, l. 25). It is not a harp, but a dulcimer (Ital. salterio tedesco, Arab. gânûn or santir; see p. 226, l. 13). The sound-body is not shaped like a rectangular box as in the medieval psaltery or dulcimer (fig. z) or as in the 15 modern Arab gânûn, but is flatter and shaped like a shallow pan. The bar to which the outer ends of the strings are fistened should, of course, have been drawn, not lengthwise, but crosswise. The longitudinal direction of the stringholder would be just as impossible as the arching of the strings, by means of which the Assyrian artist has endeavored to indicate the bridge which, owing to the horizontal position of the instrument, he was unable to represent. The

5 dulcimer of the modern Arab is made of fine wood, 30 inches long and 13 inches wide, the sounding-board is pierced in certain places, and over the apertures fish-skin is stretched; the strings of catgut are stretched over a low bridge; each note has three strings, just as in the Italian psaltery or dulcimer (fig. aa, 1761 A.D.) which has 75 strings for 25 notes. Like the Assyrian dulcimer, the 15 modern $q\hat{a}n\hat{u}n$ is struck with a plectrum.

ASSYRIAN CITTERN.

ASSYRIAN LUTE.

Another sculpture (fig. bb) shows a five-stringed Assyrian cittern with a boldly curved outer rim and strongly made side frames. The sound-body is hidden by the player's person. Certain details in the shape of this instrument remind us strongly of the more regularly formed Greek cithara which we have 20 compared with the instruments seen on Jewish coins (figs. p, q). In the Assyrian Quartet represented below (fig. qq, p. 232) we see a five-stringed instrument with a plain rectangular frame, and a six-stringed cittern with curved sides.

The lute-player (fig. cc) has a lute with a small oval body, the convex form of which is not clearly discernible in the picture. From the body of this instrument there projects a very long neck, over the head of which the ends of the strings hang down. The body of this lute rests under the right arm of the player, and the instrument is held up obliquely sideways. The strings are struck, with the right hand, directly above the body of the instrument and apparently stopped at their upper end with the left hand.

Quite similar to this Assyrian lute is the lute seen in the picture of the Egyptian band (fig. dd) which consists of two female harpers (1 and 5), three women with a cittern (2), a lute (3), and a double-flute (4) respectively, and a woman in the rear keeping time to the music by clapping her hands. This picture shows us clearly two kinds of Egyptian harps, differing not only in 35 shape, but also in the way they are played. One (1) is set upright on the ground, and the musician stands while playing; the other (5) is carried horizontally on the shoulder. In the Valley of the Nile the harp has been used from the earliest days and was the favorite instrument of the Egyptians. That the harp was employed in public worship is proved by the picture of the large harp played by priests, which has been reproduced as the frontispiece of this Book; the picture given below is an example of the large harp used for secular purposes.

EGYPTIAN BAND.

Egyptian harps are found in a great variety of shapes. There is a con-5 siderable difference between them and the Assyrian harps,—a point well worth noticing. In its earlier form the Egyptian harp is simply a curved wooden bow (cf. p. 222, l. 12), to the upper part of which the strings were fastened and stretched by pegs. In later times this part was broadened and thus developed into a sound-body. While playing on this harp the musician 10 kneels, and the frame of the instrument rests on his shoulder (fig. ce). The management of the large harp was afterwards made more convenient by converting the lower part into a sound-body, as in the case of the large instrument of the first female harper in the picture given above (fig. dd). This could be used as a pedestal. The the pegs are upper end οſ the frame, which is still curved like an archer's bow. It was then an easy change to the harp as we see it in our frontispiece of the two Egyptian harpers, 15 where the harp rests on the ground without being supported by the player; the body of the instru- 20 ment is ล kettleshaped sound-body handsomely carved. This instrument is as tall as a man; the 25 strings are twitched with both hands. The stringupper holder projects forward, whereby the original triangular shape is still retained. The open side is 30 turned away from the player.

Smaller portable harps are found in a great variety of shapes. But a triangular form is always retained, however much it may be modified. The small harp represented in fig. If has still the shape of a bow. The bent bow is hollow, thus strengthening the sound. The wooden bar inserted crosswise 35 holds the twenty strings, apparently without any pegs, maintaining at the same time the tension of the bow-shaped frame. Another of these small harps

(fig. gg) has ten strings and a sounding-board with holes; down the middle runs a projecting piece of wood to which the strings are fastened. The neat little nine-stringed harp (fig. hh) which ends in a bird's head is almost a regular triangle. Here conversely it is the upright string-holder that forms the sounding-board. When compared with the harp carried on the shoulder, on which the fifth musician in the picture of the Egyptian band is playing (fig. dd), two other forms of the Egyptian harp are easily explained. In the process of development these have come to be half lute, half harp. The triangular form has become exceedingly obtuse, adapted to the way in which they were used.

The sounding-board, above which the strings are played, and which was held in front, became in one case flat and long like a weaver's shuttle (fig. ii), in the other, oval and convex like the body of a lute (fig. jj). But the essential difference between this instrument and the lute is that the strings are not strung one alongside of the other across the body of the instrument, but, like the string of a bow, one 20 above the other to a string-holder placed in the middle of the sound-body. As in the other harps, the pegs are placed in the end of the curved part of the frame. The only harps carried on the shoulder were the large ones made in this form. The lute-shaped Egyptian hand-harp in fig. ii is not very different from the harps still in use in Africa, 25 especially in Zanzibar (fig. kk).

Fig. kk. Harp from zanzibar.

Fig. jj. LUTE-SHAPED EGYPTIAN HAND-HARP.

The nine-stringed cittern on which the second female musician in the picture of the Egyptian band (fig. dd) is playing, is in shape remarkably similar to the lyres of the three captive Semitic exiles (fig. t). It is played with a plectrum which is suspended by a ribbon as a regular part of the instrument. The picture of the lyre which we give here (fig. #) has been drawn not from an ancient Egyptian representation, but from the original, preserved in the Royal Museum, Berlin. The high, narrow sound-body and the low but wide frame is peculiar; so, too, is the string-holder, shaped like the sound-body and attached to it.

Fig. mm.
EGYPTIAN LUTE.

The shape of the lute played by the third musician in the picture of the Egyptian band (fig. dd) is quite like that of the Assyrian instrument (fig. cc). Both instruments are also held and played in the same way; sometimes the Egyptian lute is struck with a pleetrum. This Egyptian lute, as well as the Egyptian harp, is a very ancient instrument. On the other hand the instrument in fig. mm is in form exactly like the lute (mandolin, or guitar) played by the Arabs of the present day. This instrument (Arab. 'ûd') has for centuries been exclusively used by Arab musicians. The praises of it are celebrated in many an Arab song. The oval kettle-shaped sounding-board of the Egyptian lute (fig. mm) forms the principal part of the instrument, as in the modern Arab lute (fig. nn). The neck up which the strings run is hardly longer than is necessary for the hand to hold it. Nevertheless the difference in tone must be considerable. In the modern Arab lute, (fig. nn), made of fine pine wood, the strings are not stretched close together.

The head, or cross, in which the pegs are inserted, forms a sharp angle with the short neck. The strings are fastened in a low bridge near the lower end of the body of 30 the instrument. In the midst of the table, or front, are round sound-holes. The 'iid has generally seven double strings made of catgut. It is held like the Assyrian 35 to broad front is turned full toward the Instruments of Percussion.

Instruments of percussion were intended partly for marking time and partly 5 for increasing the volume of sound on joyous, festive occasions.

Characteristic of the musical taste of Egyptians and Assyrians, as well of modern Arabs, is their custom of keeping time by clapping their hands. 15 Drums are the instruments of percussion most frequently mentioned, especially tim-20 brels or tabrets

Quite similar to this Egyptian tabret is the Assyrian instrument which in the Quartet here represented (fig. qq) is struck by the front musician on the left. Like the Egyptian, it is 30 held aloft with one hand. It is probable that there were some strings stretched across 35 the skin just as in the modern Oriental tabrets. used exactly as it still is by Arabs of to-day.

The cymbals (Heb. měçiltáim) were beaten in order to mark the time. Josephus (Antiq. vii, 12, 3) describes the cymbala as large broad plates of This was the instrument by which the chief musician led the per-50 bronze. formers. The Assyrian musician in fig. ss has bell-shaped cymbals which are struck against each other from above downward. The musician, who in the Assyrian Quartet (fig. qq) stands behind on the right, has another kind of cymbals, circular dish-shaped pieces of metal with an outside handle, which are struck against each other sideways.

Castanets also must have been in use; some scholars think these are meant by the çilçelê-shéma of Ps. 150,5 (AV, loud cymbals); but this is by no means certain.

The sistrum (cf. RV, margin, 2 Sam. 6, 5) is an instrument for shaking (fig. #), which the Egyptians used in public worship in order to call attention to the several acts of the religious service. It consisted of an oval metal frame, through which passed a number of metal rods to the ends of which rings were hung. It was furnished with a long handle by which it was shaken.4

Neither on Egyptian nor on Assyrian monuments is there any instrument found like our *tri*angles, nor is this instrument of percussion known to the Arabs of the present day. It is therefore very questionable to translate the instrument to shalishim 1 Sam. 18,6 triangles (RV, margin, triangles or three-stringed instruments), though etvmology shows that it 15 must have some connection with the number three. In like manner the explanations of the name of the instrument 20 měna ně im 2 Sam. 6.5 (AV, cornets; RV, castanets; RV, margin, sistra) depend either on a tradition of little value or 25 on pure conjecture. In both cases it is natural to think of instruments of percussion [unless, indeed, by shalishim we are to understand small triangular harps; see p. 229, l. 32, and compare the Greek trigon, a kind of triangular harp.—P. H.]

Among instruments of percussion, modern Arabs are especially found of the 30 kettle-drum, the drum, the tambourine and the castanets, all favorites in the harem to accompany dancing. The drums, with two strings over the skin, have the same shape as Egyptian and Assyrian drums (fig. uu). Of very frequent occurrence is a mushroom-shaped clay drum (fig. vv), with a thin skin drawn tightly over its broad upper end, but open at the small lower end. A pair of modern Arab kettle-drums, also made of clay and covered on the tops with parchment, are represented by fig. ww; they are of unequal size and give different notes. The two drums are joined to each other and covered on the outside with a network of strings which keeps the vellum tight. The first two drums (figs. uu and vv) are beaten with the hand, the kettle-drums (fig. ww) with sticks.

The tambourine (fig. xx) has exactly the shape of the old circular tabrets. In the circular frame are five openings, into each of which three small round 10 pieces of brass are inserted. When the instrument is shaken these strike against each other with a jingling sound.

1. Egyptian Harpers Frontispiece. The Holy Mountain of Zion facing p. 2. Our illustration (from a sketch made by Otto Georgi, who accompanied Professor Lepsius on his expedition to the East) represents Jerusalem as seen from Kafr Silwan, that is, the village of Siloam, SE of Jerusalem, opposite the Pool of Siloam (see Isaiah, p. 12), on the other 5 side of the gorge of the Kedron (now called Wady en-Nar) which separates Mount Zion (the eastern ridge of Jerusalem) from the Mount of Olives (E of Jerusalem). In the foreground of the picture we see the bridge across the valley of Kedron, and above this bridge, on the right, the monument known as the Tomb of Absalom (2 Sam. 18, 18), which, however, 10 seems to be not older than the time of Herod (37 B. C.-4 A. D.). The part of Jerusalem before us is the south-east quarter embracing the sacred district of the Haram esh-sherif, the huge artificial platform of the ancient Temple area on Mount Zion. The Haram enclosure, next to Mecca the most sacred place of all Moslems, is oblong, measuring 926 15 feet on its south face and 1530 feet on its east side; the northern and western sides being respectively a little longer. Mount Zion was not so much a separate hill as the centre and highest portion of the eastern ridge of Jerusalem. Originally there was a mound of rock in the centre of this ridge, around which a vast platform was 20 raised, supported partly by massive piers and arches, tier above tier, and partly by walls of stupendous masonry, filled in with stones and earth (εf . TRISTRAM, Bible Places, London, 1897, p. 170). The crest of the hill is now crowned with the magnificent octagonal structure of the Kubbet es-Sakhra, or Dome of the Rock, which we see in the centre of our picture. 25 This mosque (or station, Arab. magâm, in the court of the Mosque el-Aksa; see below, I. 38) was built by the Omaiyad Calif Abd el-Melik. 691 A.D. The sacred rock (eg-çákhare) covered by the Dome of the Rock seems to be the place where David built his altar (2 Sam. 24, 25). Here, probably, stood also the altar of burnt-offering of the Temple 30 of Solomon. The Temple itself was behind (west of) it, probably on the place which was the threshing floor of Araunah in David's time (2 Sam. 24, 18 ff.). The crest of the sacred rock is so rugged that it is impossible to suppose that there ever was a threshing floor on it. Contiguous to the Temple, on the southern end of the platform (that 35 is, on the left hand side of the Dome of the Rock in our illustration) stood the Royal Palace built by Solomon. The south-western angle of the Temple area is now occupied by the vast pile of buildings known as the Mosque el-Aksa (el-aqçà), that is, more remote (than the Sacred Mosque of Mecca; cf. Koran, sura 17, 1), originally the Basilica of St. Mary, built 40 by Justinian (527-565 A. D.). The author of 1 Macc. expressly identifies Zion with the hill on which the Temple was situated (1 Macc. 4, 37 f.; 7, 33). The tradition identifying the holy mountain of Zion with the (somewhat higher) south-west hill, which we see in the background of our picture on the left, does not 45 reach beyond the 4th cent.
